7 STATES VOTE ON DRY REPEAL IN SEPTEMBER

Vermont Due to Go Wet Tomorrow.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Seven states vote or repeal this month, and the outlook as to the disposal of national prohibition appears to be as follows:

1. Nov. 7 will see the necessary 36 states, or more, in the repeal column by popular vote, unless there is a break in the present pace.

2. Dec. 5 will see the 18th, or prohibition, amendment expunged from the federal constitution by the ratifying conventions in the states, unless there is a halt in the present unbroken trend.

Vermont tomorrow starts the ball rolling for September. It elects 14 delegates to a convention to ratify the 21st amendment, repealing the 18th, and word last night from Montpelier was that repealists expect to carry the state by comfortable margins. The professional drys are counting on the farming regions, conceding the larger cities will go for repeal.

59% of Population Has Voted.

As the tally stands, 24 states in unbroken procession have voted for repeal in the last four months. They contain a population of 72,245,708, which is approximately 59 per cent of the population of the United States. Twelve more states are required to make up the necessary 36.

Twenty-one states out of the 24 now in the repeal column already have held their delegate conventions and have ratified the 21st amendment, wiping out the prohibition amendment from the constitution. Arizona is to hold its ratifying convention tomorrow, to be attended by 14 repeal delegates.

Dates of September Elections.

Election.	Convention.
Sept. 5—Vermont	Sept. 18
Sept. 11—Maine	Dec. 6
Sept. 12—Colorado	Sept. 26
Sept. 12—Maryland	Oct. 19
Sept. 12—Minnesota	Oct. 10
Sept. 19—Idaho	Oct. 17
Sept. 19—New Mexico	Nov. 2

Thus by the end of the next fortnight, or Sept. 19, 31 states will have voted on repeal, on the election of delegates to conventions to ratify repeal.

Seven other states have set elections for this year as follows:

	Election.	Convention.
Virginia	Oct. 3	Oct. 25
Florida	Oct. 10	Nov. 14
South Carolina	Nov. 7	Dec. 4
Pennsylvania	Nov. 7	Dec. 5
Ohio	Nov. 7	Dec. 5
Utah	Nov. 7	Dec. 5
North Carolina	Nov. 7	Dec. 6

In addition, Kentucky last week tentatively agreed upon Nov. 7 as date for an election on repeal, while in Kansas, Montana, and Louisiana special legislative sessions are being talked of to set repeal elections.

36th Convention Kills Law.

National prohibition will be wiped out of the constitution on the day when the 36th state ratifies in convention the 21st amendment, repealing the 18th. Announcement was made weeks ago by Attorney General Cummings that the repeal amendment would take effect immediately upon ratification by the 36th state, without requiring any official proclamation from the government at Washington.

As the lineup of election and convention dates now stands it points to Nov. 7 as the date when at least 36 states, and possibly 39, will have voted for repeal, and to Dec. 5 as the probable date on which repeal will have been ratified by the 36th state in delegate convention, provided, of course, no important break occurs in trend.

Drys Concentrate on Best Bets.

Professional drys are now concentrating upon some of the states, just as they did upon former bone dry areas in the middle west a few months ago, in a desperate endeavor to disrupt the parade so far unbroken for repeal. They are centering upon Maine, ancient home of prohibition, which votes Sept. 11, and also upon Colorado, which was dry long before national prohibition. In Maine repealist forces declare indications are that repeal will win by a better margin than it did in Tennessee, which the professional drys had been counting on as their Gibraltar in the south.

The "last stand" campaigns of the drys have been progressive. First they concentrated on the old bone dry territory in the middle west. In such

W. PALM BEACH IS LASHED BY AN 80 MILE WIND

Another Storm Is on Way to Texas.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Sept. 4 [Monday]. — (AP) — Hurricane winds swept this area early today as a tropical storm approached from the Bahamas.

Communications virtually were disrupted and meager wire connection to the north was routed through Miami and across the Everglades to Fort Myers.

The barometer had fallen to 28.60 since 10 a. m. Sunday. The wind was increasing steadily. Shortly after midnight wind velocities of 75 to 80 miles an hour were experienced.

The populace was prepared here for the blow, but apprehension was felt for numerous residents of the eastern and southern shores of Lake Okeechobee, where relief trains, sent at state order to remove the people, had not been reported out of the area.

Rain Pours in Torrents.

The streets here were deserted as the residents kept within doors to avoid possible flying debris. Rain poured in torrents.

The weather observer believed the center of the storm would pass north of the beaches, possibly between Jupiter and Fort Pierce.

Shortly after 1 a. m. the barometer here had risen to 28.91. The wind still blew vigorously, but with less fierceness.

Two Storms Move on Coast.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The first of two tropical hurricanes roaring out of the Caribbean was reported to have reached the east coast of Florida tonight.

The other, a terrific tempest that wrecked large sections of Cuba Friday, was about 300 miles east of Brownsville, Tex., and was expected by the weather bureau to hit the Texas coast between Corpus Christi and Freeport tomorrow afternoon or evening.

Reports from the edge of the storm indicated it was so severe that few ships could live through it. It is moving west-northwestward about 14 miles an hour, attended by gales over a wide area and by winds of hurricane force over a considerable area.

To Aid Distressed Ship.

At 6 o'clock tonight the United States cutter Uvalde reported it was leaving Port Everglades to go to the aid of the steamer Western Sword, which lost its propeller 20 miles off Bethel Buoy and which was in danger of drifting onto Bethel shoals.

At about the same time the cutters Corwin, Mahoning, and Legare from Pascagoula, Miss., reported they were trying to reach the steamer Northern Sword, which sent word that one of its crew was seriously injured. Both ships are of the same line.

The cutter Saukee was searching the heavy seas 26 miles north of Rebecca Light for the motorboat Mary, out of Jacksonville, with three men on board.

The weather bureau late tonight ordered hurricane warnings flown from Corpus Christi to Freeport, Tex., northeast storm warnings from Freeport to Port Arthur, and northwest storm warnings from Corpus Christi to Brownsville.

Hurricane warnings were ordered up at points north of Miami, Fla., and south of Melbourne. Storm warnings were flying at other points on the eastern Florida coast from Jacksonville to Cedar Key.

Drifting Barge Reported Safe.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The barge Wofford of the Pure Oil company, with seven men aboard, which broke loose from the tug Sabine on Saturday, was reported safe 48 miles from Southwest Pass by the S. S. Cobald late today. Two coast guard cutters were endeavoring to reach the barge.

Seek Safety for Thousands.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 3.—It is reported that the governor has ordered the residents out of the Everglades area and 6,000 are expected to move at once. From Moorehaven, on the west side of Lake Okeechobee, a train carried 550 residents to other places and a smaller train and motor trucks are taking about 2,500 residents of the east shore to Okeechobee City and Indiantown. Some persons stayed behind. They, for the most part, are persons with more secure shelter. More trains are ready at Tallahassee.

100 DEAD; 100,000 HOMELESS.

HAVANA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—With many small towns still unreported, the death toll in Friday's tropical hurricane neared 100 tonight, with thousands injured and approximately 100,000 homeless.

Runs Over Toe of Cop and Into Pecko'Trouble

Patrolman R. E. Dunavin of the south park police was directing traffic at Columbus drive and Roosevelt road in Grant park Saturday when an automobile swung around the corner and ran over one of Dunavin's toes.

"Hey, what's the matter with you?," howled Policeman Dunivan, limping toward the car.

Takes Driver to Bureau.

The driver gave his name as Andrew Chiorello, 38 years old, 25 East 101st place. After questioning him briefly Dunavin took Chiorello to the detective bureau as a suspicious character. There it was discovered that Chiorello's car had been reported stolen on May 1, 1931, by Julian J. Luster, 929 North Sacramento avenue. Chiorello asserted that he had purchased the car, but he was held on a charge of possessing a stolen automobile.

Then Policeman Dunavin looked up Chiorello's license plate and discovered that it had been issued to the prisoner's wife, under her maiden name of Angie Serra, for another make of car. The other car was at the Chiorello home.

More Trouble for Chiorello.

Then the policeman turned his attention to the city vehicle sticker on the windshield of the car and found that that had been reported stolen by Tony Sato, 11528 South La Salle street. Police said that, while the stickers were reputed to be theftproof when they were first issued, thieves have found it possible to remove them either by heating the glass to which they are attached or by scraping them carefully away with a razor blade.

Concluding his investigation, Policeman Dunavin found out that, while the Chiorello family was driving two automobiles, it was also getting relief for the idle from the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Then he limped back to his post.

MAN WHO NEVER HAD A HOLIDAY WILL BE 81 TODAY

A. F. Williams, who says he has never had a day's vacation in his life, will be 81 years old today and will go down to work as he has every Sunday, holiday, and weekday since he was 13 years old. Mr. Williams, who lives at 1055 Hollywood avenue, is president of the Trade Circular company, 221 West Madison street, the business he introduced to Chicago 49 years ago. His employés work under the NRA code, but Mr. Williams says he is too old to change his habits. "I get up at 4:30 every morning and am at the office at 5:30 without fail," Mr. Williams said yesterday. "I quit promptly at 5 p. m."

YACHT AGROUND OFF MACKINAC IN FOG; ALL SAVED

Mackinaw City, Mich., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Atlantic, a 126 foot pleasure schooner owned by Erwin Uihlein of Milwaukee, president of the Schlitz Brewing company, ran aground on Tin Shoal off Bois Blanc island east of here in Lake Huron, at 4:30 p. m. today.

There was a heavy fog in the straits. The Atlantic nosed over the ledge and the bow ran into deep water, leaving the stern high and dry.

The Seaforth, a 130 foot yacht owned by Herman Falk of Milwaukee, is standing by. Women passengers of the Atlantic were removed to the Seaforth in small boats.

The lake, quiet during the day, began to grow rough during the evening, and unless it abates the Atlantic is in great danger of breaking up before morning.

Capt. Harold Peterson, of the coast guard, is standing by in a small cutter, ready to take off the male passengers and the crew should the need arise. A call has been put in for the Seminole, coast guard cutter at Sault Ste. Marie, which is expected by morning.

The Seaforth has broken three lines in an effort to pull the Atlantic off the reef. She will stand by to assist the Seminole in a further attempt Monday morning.

Fire Destroys 18 Stables at Hawthorne

Fire destroyed eighteen stables at the south end of Hawthorne race track in Cicero last night and this morning, causing property damage estimated at $150,000 and for a while endangering more than fifty racing horses. So far as could be learned, no horses were lost, and only one, Noel I., was injured.

The fire was spectacular. It fed greedily on the wooden structures one at a time over a period of five hours and covered the area with a reddish light. More than 20,000 spectators gathered at the scene and followed the fire as it attacked one stable and then another. Chicago and Cicero firemen were handicapped in checking the blaze because of low water pressure at the hydrants and were forced to watch the flames spread, almost powerless to do anything.

18 of 22 Stables Burn.

The eighteen stables destroyed were the major portion of a string of twenty-two which stretched in an easterly-westerly direction and were located about 100 feet apart. Each stable had 48 stalls and cost $13,000 when new.

The fire started in stable 5. It was discovered by Raymond Ewing, an attendant. Risking his life, he dashed into the stable and saved Divine Lass. He then returned and led out Noel I., owned by L. M. Holmes of St. Louis, and Karl Eitel, Lillian Tobin, Very Well, George Maypole, and Camp Douglas, owned by Ald. John J. Coughlin. Noel I. was injured when he slipped in the mud canal while running from the flames.

Other Horses Saved.

Other horses believed to have been saved from other stables were Bridegroom and Bocaratone, owned by State Senator Emmett McGrath; Sweet Cup and Bichloride, owned by G. E. Lewis; Indian Runner, owned by D. A. Woods; Polydorus and Brown Wisdom, owned by A. Bartelstein, and Teralice, whose owner was not identified.

A west wind carried the flames toward the east, accounting for the fact that all the units east of stable 5, where the fire originated, were destroyed. Stables 1, 2, 3, and 4, to the west, were not harmed.

Had the fire occurred last week the loss of horses might have been tragic. There were more than 250 animals in the stables Saturday, when the Hawthorne season closed. Most of them were shipped Saturday evening and yesterday to Lincoln Fields, which opens today.

NRA Referee Ends Strike in Garment Trade

The two weeks' strike of 8,000 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, affecting 187 local shops, was settled shortly before midnight last night at a conference in the Hotel Sherman. The strike was called when the employés protested that the employers were not abiding by the provisions of the NRA code which they had signed.

The settlement was regarded as important for two reasons. It was the first test in Chicago of the ability of the national recovery administration to influence amicable adjustment of a labor dispute. It means that 2,000 additional workers will be employed under the terms of the recovery act.

Haggard faces lighted with smiles as a dozen representatives of the various groups reached agreement. They had been in conference for seven days and nights. Chief credit for the adjudication was given to Max Meyer, national labor board member and direct representative of Gen. Hugh Johnson, NRA administrator. Mr. Meyer had attended every minute of the parley.

Back to Work Tomorrow.

The agreement, to be adhered to for two years by employés and employers, becomes effective tomorrow, at which time, it is expected, the 8,000 strikers will return to work.

The union hailed the agreement as a victory. The agreement provides that hours will be shortened from 44 to 35 a week, with a wage increase of 15 to 25 per cent and minimum wages ranging from $14 to $29 a week. This, it was said, means a general pay roll increase of about 40 per cent.

Moreover, it is provided that a permanent, impartial arbitrator be appointed by the union and the manufacturers. The latter are members of the Chicago Association of Dress Manufacturers and the Independent Dress Manufacturers' association. In case they cannot agree on an arbitrator in ten days Gov. Horner will be asked to make the appointment.

Adds 2,000 to Pay Rolls.

Manufacturers' spokesmen said last night that the settlement means not only a 40 per cent pay roll increase but the addition of new equipment for the use of the 2,000 extra employés who are to be added.

They, like the representatives of the union, expressed gratification over the adjustment. David Dubinsky, president of the union, who had plenary power to sign an agreement for the workers, said he believed it was a forward step. He immediately called a massmeeting of the workers for today at 208 West Adams street to ratify the pact, although their approval is not necessary.

Mr. Meyer, who served in the capacity of a referee, notified President Roosevelt and Gen. Johnson of the settlement.

"I am pleased with the coöperation shown by the manufacturers and the workers in working out this agreement," he said. "We have agreed in accordance with the NRA on a collective bargaining program recognizing the International Garment Workers' union."

First Recognition of Union.

This "recognition" was one of the goals of the union. Although the union has been in existence in Chicago for 35 years, it had never before been recognized by the local manufacturers.

Among those who participated in the settlement were S. J. Eisenberg, president of the Chicago Association of Dressmakers; Abraham Heller, president of the Independent Dress Manufacturers' association; Morris Bialis, vice president of the Garment Workers' union; Rebecca Eisenstadt, head of local 100 of the union, and a dozen others.

"This is the first labor agreement entered into by any manufacturing group in the Chicago district on any labor question under the new deal," said Mr. Eisenberg, "and if the same spirit of coöperation will prevail throughout the life of the contract the industry will prosper."

Last night's settlement was the second affecting garment workers. Two weeks ago a strike of garment workers in New York was settled through the efforts of national recovery act representatives.

DUELISTS FIRE THRICE AND MISS, SO THEY EMBRACE

QUITO, Ecuador, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Col. Alberto Enriquez and Senator Adolfo Gomez Santistevan fought a duel today, but nobody was hurt.

The senator accepted Col. Enriquez's challenge and they met at the aviation camp this morning, each armed with his favorite weapon—a pistol.

Although both men are expert with pistols the first exchange of shots went wide of the mark. So did the second and the third. The combatants thereupon abandoned the dueling idea, embraced each other, and left the field.

500,000 VISIT CITY; 361,000 ATTEND FAIR

Gen. Johnson to Give Labor Day Talk.

Approximately 500,000 visitors from out of town are in Chicago today, attracted by A Century of Progress and the celebration of Labor day today at the Fair. This huge and friendly invasion, made possible because of the three day holiday, is record breaking.

The visitors crowded the Exposition grounds from 9 o'clock yesterday to 2 o'clock this morning. At midnight 361,361 men, women, and children had visited the Fair, breaking all previous attendance records. The old mark of 272,936 paid admissions was established on Aug. 25. It is expected that the new mark will be broken today, with forecasts being made of an attendance of 500,000.

Gen. Johnson Speaks Today.

The huge attendance expected at the Fair today is considered likely because of the address to be given by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, as part of the Labor day program.

Gen. Johnson arrived in an army plane from Washington, D. C., at 9 o'clock last night. As the plane landed at Chicago airport it was surrounded by federal agents who kept close to the general as he alighted and warded off questioners and cameramen. The recovery chief was escorted to a waiting limousine and whisked away to the Drake hotel. He slipped into the hotel through a side entrance, again avoiding interviewers.

The general is to deliver his address at 3:50 o'clock this afternoon in the court of the Hall of Science on the World's Fair grounds. His speech will be broadcast over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE radio station. Although his topic has not been announced, it is believed it will be on the NRA and and labor's involvements. Whether he will discuss Henry Ford's refusal to sign the NRA code for the automobile industry was a matter for conjecture.

Visitors Equal a Big City.

The half million out of town visitors in Chicago give the city a temporary population of almost 4,000,000. What 500,000 visitors means can be realized from the fact that Washington, D. C., New Orleans, Memphis, Cincinnati, each has a population of about 450,000. The Fair itself, with its 360,000 attendance, equaled the population of Rochester, N. Y., or of Jersey City, N. J.

The influx started Saturday. It continued Saturday night. It kept on with a bigger rush yesterday, and the visitors were still coming in last night. Automobiles, trains, buses, airplanes, and boats brought them. They came from every direction, gay and spirited—and, significantly, with money to spend. The railroads, offering special rates for the three day holiday World's Fair attraction, brought in more than 150,000 over the week-end. Some 170 special trains were required.

Traffic Flow Reversed.

Observers along arterial highways reported that the roads were packed with incoming cars—a reversal of the happenings of former Labor day holidays. In other years as many as 500,000 Chicagoans generally left the city to spend the holiday in the country. This year fewer than 250,000 left the city. The inflow, of course, represented visitors coming here for the Fair.

Railroad terminals were busy all day as trains in extra sections unloaded thousands of arrivals. The Pennsylvania railroad brought in 20,000 on forty trains, the Chicago and North Western 15,000 on fifteen trains, the New York Central 20,000 on regular trains, and the Burlington as many on regular and special trains.

The great invasion taxed downtown hotels to capacity. However, accommodations for all the visitors were found at outlying and suburban hotels and tourists' homes.

Speeches Audible to All.

Many thousands of the visitors were members of trade unions who came to see the Fair and to hear Gen. Johnson's talk this afternoon. This was ascertained by questioning visitors at random. The Fair management has made adequate preparations to enable every one on the grounds to hear the various speeches through loud speakers.

The Labor day program will begin at noon in the court of the Hall of Science with choral singing and music by Cavallo's symphonic band. At 1:45 o'clock William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will speak from Akron, O., and his address will be transmitted over the loud speaker system. One hour later Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation, will speak from Pittsburgh, and his talk will be similarly broadcast. John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago federation, will speak at 3:30, and will be, followed by President Rufus C. Dawes of the World's Fair. Twenty minutes later Gen. Johnson will speak.

Fair Officials Gratified.

President Dawes and Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair, expressed gratification last night over the record breaking attendance at the Exposition yesterday.

"The attendance was what we had expected, however," said Maj. Lohr. "Everything has pointed to an attendance of about 1,000,000 over the Labor day week-end. With good weather we should about realize that figure."

More than 256,000 visitors saw the Fair Saturday, and more than 360,000

Only 58 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair.

yesterday. Thus fewer than 400,000 are needed today to hit the 1,000,000 mark for a three day period, the general manager pointed out. To accommodate the expected crowds today, Maj. Lohr has ordered the gates opened at 8 o'clock this morning instead of 9 o'clock as usual. They will remain open until 1 tonight instead of midnight. The earlier opening was decided upon because thousands were waiting at the gates yesterday long before they were opened.

58,000 Admitted in Hour.

When the gates opened at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, 3,000 visitors were in line. During the first hour, 25,365 persons entered, and from then until mid-afternoon the hourly admissions averaged 40,000. Between 11 and noon, there were 58,659 admissions—an hourly record. At 3:26 p. m., the record attendance mark of 27,936 was broken, and the 300,000 mark was passed an hour later. At 7:30 the total was 344,000.

The transportation bureau, under the direction of W. O. Axtell, assistant chief, made a survey during the afternoon and announced that the record breaking crowd was being handled with ease. At no time, the survey showed, were persons held up for more than five or six minutes, and then only at entrances to buildings and bus stations.

The greatest press yesterday was felt at the gates and at the bus stations. Extra guides and cashiers were rushed to strategic spots to help handle the visitors at the entrances, and with sixty buses in operation, the intraground transportation system carried the traffic without a tieup, although a little slower than usual.

Today special guides, police, fire and other public service employés will be added to care for the expected throngs. All railroads, bus companies and other transportation agencies yesterday reported reservations in excess of anything ever known in an American city. Every piece of rolling stock was pressed into service to handle the throngs with expedition.

CUDAHY'S MISSING SILK HAT CREATES WARSAW 'CRISIS'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 3.—Checking his luggage upon his arrival in Warsaw, John Cudahy of Milwaukee, new American ambassador to Poland, discovered he had arrived without a silk hat. The news of the ambassador's loss created a near panic for fear the American ambassador cannot present his credentials to the Polish president on Tuesday.

The presentation will be a colorful ceremony, enabling ambassadors of other countries to parade in uniforms resembling hotel doorkeepers' with admirals' hats crowned with ostrich feathers. American diplomats, not having uniforms, will be compelled to appear in full dress, and when a diplomat has no silk hat it seems he is no diplomat.

Mr. Cudahy's hat is believed to be with the remainder of his baggage, which will arrive on a later steamer. The ambassador declared that no American could ever succeed in wearing out two high hats in a single lifetime. He balked at the suggestion of buying a new headpiece and instructed the embassy to attempt to borrow a hat for the ceremony.

BLAST KILLS TWO RAIL WORKERS.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Two Erie railroad workmen were fatally injured and a third was critically hurt today when an explosion occurred in the fuel tank of a gas locomotive they were refilling.

WORLD'S FAIR NOTES

Oak Park will celebrate its 100th birthday Wednesday, Sept. 27, by visiting the Fair and staging a historical pageant in the court of the Hall of Science. The day has been officially designated as Oak Park day. Special ceremonies will be staged at various places throughout the grounds, culminating in a musical program by the Oak Park Symphony orchestra at 8 o'clock in the court of the Hall of Sciences, to be immediately followed by the pageant.

The tentative program for Florida day at the Fair next Monday includes speeches by Gov. David Sholtz, Attorney General Cary D. Landis of Florida, Commissioner of Agriculture Nathan Mayo, Col. H. F. Miller, chief of federal and state participation at the Fair, and President Rufus C. Dawes of the Fair. The ceremonies will from 11:30 a. m. to noon in the Court of States. A reception in the Florida tropical home at 4 p. m. and music at 7:30 p. m. in the Florida Orange grove and at 9:30 p. m. in the Florida state exhibit will complete the program.

The possibility of an exhibit in the Smithsonian institution in Washington, D. C., similar to the "World a Million Years Ago" at the Fair, was indicated when it was learned yesterday that representatives of the natural history department of the institution have made intensive studies of the animals there. They discussed the mechanisms of the various reproductions of prehistoric animals with Harold Messmore and Joseph Damon, who built the exhibit.

Fourteen queens of as many national groups chosen in a contest conducted by the Cleveland News visited the Fair yesterday and were presented with World's Fair medals by Miss Catherine Palmer, Automotive week queen at the Exposition. The queens and the nations they represent are Mary Rody, Ireland; Sophia Ann Bugala, Poland; May H. Ainsworth, England; Lucia Caputo, Italy; Mary Boerin, Rumania, Sue Petersen, Germany; Rose A. Vaczyi, Hungary; Lillian Kuhar, Jugo-Slavia; Harriett Plevka, Czechoslovakia; Alvina Salasaviciute, Lithuania; Catherine Reisig, Austria; Eleana Kohanik, Russia; Peggy Bailey, Scotland, and Gertrude Allerton, America.

Miss Lillian Anderson, who was chosen queen of A Century of Progress in THE TRIBUNE'S recent international charm contest, has been made chairman of the reception committee of the Packard Motor company exhibit and of Johnson's Wax exhibit at the Fair during Automotive week now in progress. She is appearing from 2 to 3 p. m. daily in the motor parade on the Fair grounds in one of the newest model Packard cars. From 3:30 to 4:30 each afternoon she is appearing at Johnson's Wax exhibit in the Home Planning hall.

Saturday, Sept. 2, 1933, 256,680.
Saturday, Sept. 2, 1893, 148,560.
Total including Sept. 2, 1933 [99 days], 13,206,065.
Total including Sept. 2, 1893 [125 days], 10,276,244.
The Columbian Exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

R. Yokohama, who installed the Mikimoto pearl exhibit at the Fair, has been requested by Gov. Lawrence H. Judd of Hawaii to study the possibility of establishing a pearl oyster fishery in Pearl harbor in the Hawaiian islands.

Mary Pickford, film star, yesterday paid her second visit to the Fair in as many days, spending the greater part of the afternoon in the Hall of Religion. She was particularly interested in the chalice of Antioch.

A chorus of 400 women, directed by Carl Craven, last night gave a two hour concert in the German-American building at the Fair. An overflow crowd remained in the lawns surrounding the building to listen to the voices. Yesterday's crowds also thronged other cafés and restaurants on the grounds. At Old Mexico it was necessary to run extra shows so that the overflow crowds could be entertained.

A program of operatic music will be presented at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening on the Floating theater by several soloists and a chorus under the direction of Baroness Turk-Rohn. The program will continue until 8:30 p. m.

More than 175,000 persons visited the A. & P. carnival at the World's Fair yesterday. This set a new record for the carnival, and is believed to be a new record for attendance at any concession in the Fair grounds. The previous record at the carnival was 142,000, established on Illinois day.

EXPECT ONTARIO WILL SEND MORE VISITORS TO FAIR

Tribune Roadster Making Third Survey.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—An increase in travel to the World's Fair is expected this month from this province of Canada closest to Chicago. This is the hope of the Fair administration—and THE TRIBUNE roadster found considerable basis for this hope in a drive here today from Windsor.

The roadster is on its third tour as A Century of Progress official car to stimulate attendance at the Exposition and to stimulate the general business activity that Chicago is enjoying in entertaining thousands of out of town visitors.

Many Inquiries at Detroit.

At Detroit, on the main route from Ontario to Chicago, Eddie Mathewson of the Automobile Club of Michigan, said that inquiries from motorists indicated that the number driving to Chicago will continue to increase. The club, and also the Detroit Free Press, is coöperating with THE TRIBUNE in combatting false rumors about traffic, parking and police conditions in Chicago during the Fair.

In previous tours, from Ohio to Kansas and Nebraska, THE TRIBUNE roadster found that some of these rumors were started by railroad and bus agents so zealous to sell a ticket that they painted Chicago traffic conditions as being impossible for a visitor in a private car. In London, Ont., it was discovered that E. C. Bernard, secretary of the London Motor club, was advising inquirers not to try to drive into Chicago but to park on the outskirts.

Majority Come by Auto.

The Fair administration feels that any discouragement to visits by private automobile is hurting attendance at the Exposition, not to mention its effect on general business in Chicago. Motorist visitors are spending $50,000,000 in Chicago this summer. The Exposition estimates that between 50 and 70 per cent of its customers from out of town are arriving in private cars.

Mr. Bernard was furnished the facts on driving, parking, and hotel accommodations and facilities at the Fair by George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club and member of A Century of Progress traffic committee, who is accompanying THE TRIBUNE roadster on these tours. The Canadian welcomed the information and said it was timely because the cooler weather of autumn was the popular touring season among his countrymen.

In Hamilton, Ont., a city of 153,000, the Herald was furnished with this same information and a reporter said it would be published tomorrow

Here at the Falls border officials, in their rush of business during the holiday week-end, said that traffic from New York and New England states en route to A Century of Progress was consistently growing.

Mexico to Send 65 Piece Band to Fair Next Week

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A 65 piece band directed by Miguel Lerdo de Tejada, known as the Tipica orchestra, will leave for Chicago next week to participate in Mexican day ceremonies at the World's Fair Sept. 16, when this country celebrates its independence.

W-G-N TO BROADCAST JOHNSON AND PERKINS LABOR DAY SPEECHES

Two of the outstanding members of President Roosevelt's staff will be presented as speakers on W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station, today.

From the court of the Hall of Science at A Century of Progress Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the national recovery act, will deliver an address this afternoon from 3:50 to 4:45 p. m. W-G-N has installed special equipment to handle this broadcast on the speakers' rostrum at the court of the Science building. The general will give a general talk on the legislation with which he is associated and comment on the operation of the NRA.

Tonight at 8 o'clock Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins will be a special speaker on a Labor day program which is to be presented by W-G-N through the facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting system. A brief history of the United States department of labor, its founding, and its place in national affairs today will be given and there also will be musical selections by the United States Marine band. This program will continue for a half hour.

PLANE TO LAND IN GRANT PARK ON AIR MAIL DAY

Lewis A. Yancy, ocean flyer, will land his autogiro in Grant park next Wednesday afternoon as part of the ceremonies commemorating National Air Mail day which will be observed throughout the country. He will land his plane at a spot near the foot of Monroe street where, fifteen years ago, the first air mail plane alighted in Chicago. He will be accompanied to the lake front by an escort of 200 airplanes.

After the landing Capt. Ben B. Lipsner, known as "the father of air mail" and first superintendent of the postal air service, will give a short address in the park. Capt. Lipsner started the mail with nine airplanes borrowed from the army, and a personnel of four pilots and seven mechanics. The first New York-Chicago trip took 27 hours 47 minutes. Now it takes four hours and 30 minutes.

The ceremonies will be concluded in the court of the Hall of Science at A Century of Progress Exposition. There civic leaders will speak and a program of music will be given.

Aurora Poor Relief Depot Is Destroyed by Fire

Fire of unknown origin yesterday gutted the commissary depot of the Associated Relief Organizations of Aurora at 8 North River street, Aurora. Food valued at $7,000 was destroyed. Damage to the building was estimated at $40,000. The commissary was housed in a three story brick building. Officials of the relief organizations had recently stocked the building in anticipation of a rise in prices.

TRIBUNE ORDERS 34 UNIT PRESS; COST $1,250,000

Will Print Four Colors and Reduce Noise.

THE TRIBUNE has contracted to spend more than a million and a quarter dollars in improvement of its pressroom and printing machinery during the fall and coming year. This amount will be expended for a new press of thirty-four printing units, with attachments to print in three colors immediately, and provision for a fourth color later.

This press, purchased from the Goss company in Chicago, is an improvement on the thirty unit, all in line, press patented by Col. Robert R. McCormick in 1919. The one now in use was not designed to print in colors, the color attachment having been added later.

It is considered by THE TRIBUNE that color printing in daily newspapers has reached a point where it may be regarded as standard, if not imperative to maintain the industry in competition with other forms of communication.

Signing of the contract means that one more Chicago factory will be operating full tilt with two shifts daily from now until well past the first of next year, while more workmen will be engaged in making necessary alterations in the pressroom, preliminary to the installation, which will start shortly after Jan. 1. This job will of necessity be accomplished in relays, in order that sufficient units will always be available to print the daily editions, while others are being set up and harnessed to electric current.

Reduces "Rumble of Press."

One of the major improvements in the new apparatus is the reduction of volume of sound made by the press in motion. For many a year, literature has abounded with palpitating phrases relative to the "rumble of the press" in the annals of newspaperdom. But there are those to whom it is more racket than romance, and who are annoyed by the clatter. The numerous features of mechanical advancement in the Goss press will inevitably dim the pressroom hubbub—though they will not abolish it.

Another advantage is the enclosure of many formerly exposed parts, by which the degree of safety is raised for the workmen. Roller and ball bearings for all revolving parts insure less friction and smoother motion for the press.

Technically this improved product is known as the Anti-Friction press of the Goss company. All gears are totally enclosed with oil tight guards, and the gear, operating mechanisms and bearings are oiled by means of an oil circulating system, through pumps attached to the printing units. A sufficient amount of lubrication results, with protection from dust, and there will be no oil dripping on the floor below to make footing insecure.

New Foundations Required.

Of the 34 new units, 32 comprise the tier that stretches from Michigan boulevard to St. Clair street. Since each unit is to be materially heavier than its predecessors, installed from 1920 to 1925, each will be mounted on a heavy cast iron substructure. This necessitates the reconstruction of the foundation of the press, and strengthening of walls and floors with steelwork.

The arrangement consists of various numbers of press units, single file, with folders at intervals. Each folder is connected with a number of the units, so that it may handle the output of from one to eight simultaneously, depending upon the size of the paper, insuring flexibility of operation. It is an arrangement of units and folders originated and first used by THE TRIBUNE.

The new press is the first of its type and design to be sold. Each of the units and folders is operated by means of a 35 horsepower motor, to be furnished by the Cline Electrical Manufacturing company, another Chicago firm.

As an added safety feature, floors around the press will be replaced by anti-slip cast iron plates, giving the pressmen the benefit of a greatly reduced risk of accidents in their work.

MORE CHILDREN ABLE TO IDENTIFY QUARTER; SIGN OF BETTER TIMES!

Salem, Ore., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Prosperity is returning, says Mrs. Mary Fulkerson, county school superintendent, and she offers proof.

An aptitude test given children 5 years of age wishing to attend school includes identification of coins. During the last two years only 2 of 30 children were able to identify a quarter.

This year 2 out of 6 knew the coin when it was displayed.

LABOR POLICIES OF NRA DRAWING NEW OPPOSITION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—From a new and significant source today came further evidence of the increasingly unified opposition of business and industry to the labor policies fostered by the labor advisory committee of the national recovery administration.

From Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, went an appeal to all chamber members bidding them stand shoulder to shoulder in defense of the open shop, and in opposition to an interpretation of the labor clauses in the national recovery act, which, he charged, would be writing a mandate for a closed shop into law.

News of Mr. Harriman's letter came out as Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, was leaving from Bolling field in an army airplane for Chicago, where he will speak before the Illinois Federation of Labor in a Labor day speech tomorrow.

Urges Adequate Assurance.

President Harriman asserted that employers throughout the United States had shown a splendid spirit of coöperation in preparing and adopting codes of fair competition. In return, he declared, industry should be given adequate assurance that the recovery program is not to be turned into a vehicle for forcing the closed shop upon the country.

The publication of the Harriman letter was looked on here as but another sign of the increasing unity of purpose on the part of American employers, who see in the recovery act and its labor provisions organized labor's long awaited opportunity to seize the upper hand.

From this increasing sentiment employers now engaged in drawing up codes have found a new strength. The coal operators, for example, have already held out far beyond the deadline originally set for the soft coal code.

The same issue arises with respect to Henry Ford's failure to sign the automobile code.

Administration officials have been informed that it is not the provisions concerning wages and hours which are unacceptable to Mr. Ford, but the requirement, written into the recovery law itself at the behest of organized labor, that employers must agree to collective bargaining.

Sees Clauses as Confusing.

"The provisions of the national recovery act which are known as the labor clauses, and which appear as section seven [a]," wrote President Harriman to the national chamber members, "are giving rise to confusion and misunderstanding which should receive the attention of all business men and their organizations.

"The benefits which can accrue from voluntary codes of fair competition are so great, and so directly in fulfillment of the national policy declared in the first section of the recovery act, that none of these benefits should be diminished or lost through any distortion of the labor clauses that tends to substitute industrial disorder for the coöperation in labor relations that alone is consistent with the nature, spirit, and declared purposes of the recovery act."

Mr. Harriman cited the automobile code's clause protecting the open shop, reading as follows:

"Employers in this industry may exercise their right to select, retain, or advance employés on the basis of individual merit without regard to their membership or nonmembership in any organization."

But the inclusion of such language, he said, had been resisted by the labor advisory committee and others in the recovery administration.

W. W. ATTERBURY URGES ALL TO SUPPORT NRA

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Any attempt by either labor or industry to make selfish capital out of adjustments incident to the national recovery act should meet with "universal condemnation," W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, asserted tonight.

Asserting he was delighted to have the privilege of joining in the NRA program, Mr. Atterbury praised President Roosevelt for his courage to try "something experimental" when "many of our old formulas had ceased to work."

The nation's railroads, adding more than 100,000 men to their pay rolls since June 1, are "doing their part," Mr. Atterbury said, and he urged every citizen "to get in line and keep step and push forward" in the campaign directed by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

Unemployment—with the means to remedy it provided by the recovery act—was the "one real issue confronting the American people today," said the rail executive.

"We have another winter facing us, and unless there is a decided measure of success in putting men to work before the snow flies, infinite suffering will again result."

LOS ANGELES NOT WILLING TO BUILD UNDER NRA TERMS

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Los Angeles county board of supervisors is loathe to press a county building program under terms of the NRA requirements, according to John R. Quinn, chairman of the board.

"I hope Los Angeles county will not participate in the $3,300,000,000 national public works program unless the government finances the projects 100 per cent, Quinn said.

"I am opposed to any further incumbrance on common property. If we can not get financing to fully 100 per cent, so far as I am concerned, we do not want any."

"The present method of financing as provided by the government for public buildings, roads, grade separations, bridges, storm drains, and sanitary sewers obligates the county to pay 70 per cent of the cost, the remaining 30 per cent being a gift from the government.

FORD RESTING; PHONES FACTORY; IS SILENT ON CODE

Likely to Spend Day at His Ease.

Big Bay, Mich., Sept. 3.—(AP)—By remaining in seclusion in his Huron Mountain club cabin over the weekend Henry Ford today gave indication that he may let Tuesday's deadline for signing the automobile code pass without definite action on his part in his controversy with the NRA.

While piles of letters and telegrams await his attention, he went to Big Bay yesterday and made a long distance telephone call to his offices in Dearborn, a Detroit suburb.

Reports that he had ordered a special train for tomorrow morning to take him back to Dearborn were denied. He is about 15 hours' journey from Detroit by train or motor. He does not favor airplane trips, although a manufacturer of planes.

Associates on Vacation, Too.

Meanwhile, in Detroit, the list of Ford executives who are on vacation grew. It was impossible to reach any one who is close to the manufacturer. During the last week those close to Ford smilingly had given assurance that "the chief would not disappoint the public."

Inquirers were assured Ford would return to Detroit and that he would have something to say that would be just as interesting if not more interesting than NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson's prediction that the public would "crack down on" Ford if he doesn't sign the code. Today there was nothing but "He's on vacation" when these same people were sought for news of Ford's plans.

His Own Code Expected.

As far the only statement that has come from Ford in connection with the NRA—and that was some six weeks ago—was to the effect that if he adopted the code he would have to "live down to it" instead of up to it. About the time the automobile code was agreed on by practically all other motor manufacturers the Ford Motor company announced it was putting its employés on a five day week eight hour day basis with minimum pay of 50 cents an hour. The code provides for the Detroit area a maximum work week of 35 hours and a minimum wage of 35 cents an hour.

Again last week when Detroit held its NRA parade, with 15,000 persons expressing thanks for new jobs, the Ford company—naturally not officially represented—made another announcement. This was to the effect that between 3,000 and 4,000 former workers were being recalled. Some weeks ago there was an "estimate" of 42,000 as the number of persons employed at the Ford plant here.

Henry Ford's Peace Ship Brings $67,500 as Junk

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Henry Ford's peace ship, the old Danish liner Oscar II., has been sold to a British ship breaking company for $67,500 and will be scrapped. Ford chartered the ship in 1915 for a party of pacifists who hoped "to bring the boys out of the trenches by Christmas."

2 Youths Sleeping Under Box Car Seriously Hurt

Toledo, O., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Two of five youths who went to sleep under a box car on the New York Central railroad were injured seriously today when a switching train shoved the car over them.

PRESIDENT AND HOST SAIL ON OCEAN IN YACHT'S WHALE BOAT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—After a day of perfect weather President Roosevelt was off the eastern shore of Maryland tonight on his leisurely yacht cruise back to the capital from Hyde Park. During the day the President and his host, Vincent Astor, boarded a motor whaleboat for a several hour side trip over the deep ocean waters.

Stephen T. Early, the President's secretary, reported to the navy department today that two members of the Nourmahal's crew went along "but the President and Astor, acting respectively as skipper and crew of the whaleboat, who sailed it over ocean waters, two miles deep thereabouts, until it returned safely to its mother ship several hours later."

The yacht was being convoyed, as usual, by the destroyers Manley and Twiggs, through which imperative messages could be relayed, but otherwise the President was temporarily away from the cares of office.

Early reported that during the day "one of the yacht's crew caught a shark measuring twelve feet. No sooner was it hauled up the ship's side, however, than it lashed with such fury that it succeeded in escaping."

Another message from Early tonight indicated the President would near the Virginia capes tomorrow morning and that the Nourmahal, changing its course, was headed for the Chesapeake lightship at the entrance to Chesapeake bay at 14 knots.

WINE GROWERS TO CONSIDER THEIR NRA CODE TODAY

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Anticipating repeal of the 18th amendment, California's vintners will hold their first "wine congress" in fourteen years here tomorrow.

One matter of business is consideration of an NRA code for the industry, tentative proposals calling for minimum wages of 30 to 40 cents an hour and a 40 hour week except in vintage season.

Many of the wine men have preserved products of former days in bonded warehouses. Others who had virtually stopped production have started again.

26 MILLIONS IN TAX FUNDS TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Penalty Date and Skarda Act Aid Collector.

County Collector Joseph B. McDonough announced yesterday that within the next two weeks he would distribute more than $26,000,000 in real estate tax collections to the local governments. It will be turned over to the taxing bodies daily as fast as it is audited, he said. The collections include both current and delinquent taxes. They include about equal amounts of cash and tax warrants.

The warrants, as well as the cash, declared the county treasurer, will be of equal value to the taxing bodies. Much of the cash must be used to pay outstanding warrants and the liquidation of warrants, whether by cash redemption or by being turned in to pay taxes, increases the borrowing power of the local governments which have operated for years on money borrowed on warrants.

Two Factors Aid Collections.

A large part of the $26,000,000 collections, said the county collector, has been paid into his office within the last two weeks. It poured in, he declared, under the lash of the Skarda-Kerner law and under the impetus of the arrival Friday night of the penalty deadline against the second installment of the 1931 taxes.

The amount he will distribute in daily portions is made up of about $18,100,000 in current 1931 realty taxes, all paid last week; of $3,000,000 in delinquent 1928, 1929 and 1930 real estate taxes paid since Aug. 16; of $2,000,000 in current 1931 taxes expected to be paid by Sept. 15, and $3,000,000 more in delinquent taxes expected to be paid by Sept. 15. The grand total is $26,100,000.

Approximate Distribution.

The money will be distributed approximately as follows: City, $8,800,000; school board, $7,500,000; sanitary district, $1,900,000; county, $1,800,000; state, $1,300,000; south park, $900,000; Lincoln park, $500,000; west park, $300,000; and forest preserves, $150,000. The balance of $2,850,000 will be distributed among the multitude of smaller park districts, school districts and other municipalities in the county.

So far approximately $94,365,402 in 1931 real estate taxes have been paid. This is nearly 53 per cent of the total 1931 real estate bill of $179,915,404. Of the total collected, $61,860,945, or 69 per cent, of the first installment totaling $89,957,702 in taxes due last April 8 have been paid. Of the second installment of 1931 taxes totaling $89,957,702 and due by Friday midnight, $32,504,457 approximately, or 36 per cent, have been paid.

Await 15 Per Cent Cut Decision.

Most of the 411,000 residence and two and three flat building owners, whose properties fall under the 15 per cent assessment reduction order the legality of which is to be decided by the State Supreme court, have not paid any of their second installment.

McDonough repeated yesterday that they should at least pay between 80 and 90 per cent of the second installment of taxes, since the reduction order, if upheld, will affect their taxes by less than 10 per cent of that bill. He announced that all such property owners who pay between 80 and 90 per cent of their second installment before Sept. 15 will be permitted to escape the monthly 1 per cent delinquency penalty which should now be added to unpaid taxes.

JUDGE JARECKI FINDS TAXPAYERS LIKE HIS INSTALLMENT PLAN

Proposals to allow property owners to pay 1932 and 1933 real estate taxes over a ten year period has been favorably received by many home owners, County Judge Jarecki announced yesterday. The judge has received letters commending the funding plan which he outlined last week.

Under the plan the 1934 real estate tax bills, instead of the 1932 bill, would be sent out on March 1, 1934. Ten pre cent of the 1932 and 1933 tax bills would be adde dto the 1934 bills. This procedure, according to the plan, would be added to the 1934 bills. This the interest at 6 per cent on the remaining principal of the 1932 and 1933 tax bills added each year. In this manner all the tax bills would be paid up in 1944.

Judge Jarecki expects to confer this week with Assistant State's Attorney Hayden N. Bell, Attorney Thomas D. Nash, representing County Treasurer McDonough, and Assistant Corporation Counsel William L. Sullivan, who have been studying the plan.

"The plan should work," Judge Jarecki said, "and I believe that with better times coming the taxpayer will not mind the 10 per cent and interest added each year, when he realizes that under this nearly painless plan he is also paying his taxes for the two years we would skip."

NEW U. S. ENVOY IS EXPECTED TO PUSH INSULL CASE

ATHENS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Lincoln MacVeagh, arriving tomorrow as new United States minister to Greece, is understood here to have special instructions regarding handling of the case against Samuel Insull whom the American government is trying to extradite on charges following upon the breakdown of his public utilities chain.

An eminent Greek lawyer stated the opinion today that unless Insull received money or otherwise benefited from the alleged fraudulent bankruptcy of his interests, or through transfer of property in contemplation of bankruptcy, Greece would not sanction the demand for extradition.

On the other hand, he said, if evidence were forthcoming—and very clear proof would be required—that Insull did benefit in the slightest degree, this would be punishable under Greek law and Insull would be handed over to the custody of the United States government.

Foes of Spanish Regime Lead in Vote on Tribunal

MADRID, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Early returns indicated a victory for anti-government Republicans and Rightists in today's election for members of a tribunal of constitutional guarantees. The tribunal will be charged with studying the constitutionality of the laws, the protection of individuals against authorities abusing their power, examination of the appointment of presidential electors and the judging of any irregularities of the Supreme court and government officials.

4,000 More Seats; Eliminate 85 Portables.

More than 4,000 seats will be provided and eighty five ill-ventilated portables abandoned through the operation of the school board's economy program this fall. This was disclosed in a statement issued yesterday from the offices of James M. McCahey, president of the school board, outlining the changes to be made in Wards 38 to 41, inclusive, embracing the territory west of the Chicago river and north of Belmont avenue to the city's northern and western limits.

The new seats will be provided for high school children through the conversion of two former junior high schools into senior high school plants. Six elementary schools with half day classes will be put on full time. Thirty special rooms will have seats installed as well as four heretofore unused rooms. Seven other rooms, which have been vacant, though they are provided with seats, will be put back into use.

1,789 High School Seats.

The Foreman Junior High school at 5100 Belmont avenue will be converted into a senior high school building, making 1,789 seats available. The building will also house an elementary branch of 468 pupils. The Wright Junior High school at 3400 North Austin avenue will be used as an elementary school with a branch of first and second year Schurz High school students who otherwise would be forced to travel to the Foreman.

The reorganized school system will relieve the overcrowding at the Schurz High school at 3601 Milwaukee avenue. Last year the enrollment at Schurz was 10,000, making it the second largest high school in the country.

The changes will eliminate twenty-eight portables on the Foreman High school grounds, two in use at the main Schurz building and twenty-two at the portable branch at Lawrence and Central avenues.

Abandon More Portables.

A heavy overload at the Roosevelt Senior High school at 3436 Wilson avenue will be relieved by setting up the Von Steuben Senior High school district. Eight portables in use will be abandoned at Roosevelt. For the time being the commercial branch will continue to be maintained in the Mayfair school at 4556 Wilson avenue.

Conversion of the former Von Steuben Junior High school at 5039 North Kimball avenue into a senior high school will provide 2,166 seats for students who otherwise would be crowded into the Roosevelt. The building will also house elementary school branches of 591 pupils.

GERMANY DOES NOT WANT WAR, HITLER INSISTS

100,000 Storm Troopers Hear His Message.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 3.—Germany is not looking for war, Chancellor Hitler told his storm troops, 100,000 strong, in the fifth biennial Nazi party convention today.

The chancellor, clad in a simple brown private's uniform, reviewed the hand picked representatives of Hitler's private army of 1,500,000 men in Luitpold meadow. The storm troops, Hitler Guards, and Steel Helmet war veterans had arisen in their bivouacs outside this city at 3 a. m. and marched to the meadow.

Parade for Four Hours.

There the brown, black, and gray uniformed hosts were greeted by Hitler in the presence of 250,000 spectators. Then the men paraded for four hours, filing past their leader in full army marching equipment with the exception of guns.

A contingent of 2,000 Austrian storm troopers were cheered wildly and showered with flowers. Many of the Austrian Nazis had risked death by climbing over Alpine glaciers to appear before Hitler. Others had tunneled their way beneath the Austro-German frontier.

As Hitler stepped on to the rostrum the assembled troopers rent the air with the greeting, "Heil, Hitler!"

"Our gathering here should not be interpreted by the world as an expression of a wish to win new laurels on the battlefield," the chancellor said.

Won Honor in World War.

"The German people know no war could bring us greater honor than we gained in the world war. It was then a greater honor gloriously, gallantly, and valiantly to hold out against a world force for four and a half years than it was honor to vanquish one with twenty."

Again emphasizing the reich's desire for peace, Hitler continued:

"We do not need to rehabilitate the honor of our people on the battlefield. None ever took it from us there. Our only dishonor struck us—not in the east, not in the west—but in our fatherland. That has now been wiped out."

Dedicates 216 Flags.

After his address Hitler dedicated 216 new flags. Each was dipped alongside the "blood flag" carried during the attempted Hitler putsch of 1923, in which 23 Nazis were killed.

The Nazi congress terminated with a gigantic meeting tonight when Hitler again addressed his followers. He said that Nazi-ism by fighting bolshevism was "fulfilling a truly European mission." The chancellor added that communism is only suited for primitive races.

"There is as great a difference between the highest and lowest races as between the lowest and monkeys," said Hitler in his argument that only a few races developed cultural capacities which entitled them to rule over others.

"When a higher race subjugates a lower, then many must often submit to the will of a few. That is based on the only conceivable, because it is the reasonable law of nature—the right of might. Just as a mustang resents the human yoke, so a nation chafes under the yoke of another nation. Nevertheless, a long period of development very often proves such a subjugation to be a blessing.

Attacks Democratic Doctrine.

"I drew up a program in 1919 with a line of thought that conspicuously slapped the pacifistic democratic world in the face.

"Common administration of values by all is impossible, because not all contributed equally to their creation. It follows that the state cannot be administered by all, as democracy claims.

"Just as only the ablest reached the pinnacle in the various arts and sciences, so in politics only those best qualified should administer state affairs. Leaders of the people should be made up of that section of the people whose forebears created the nation.

"These people rebel against leadership only if it is poor leadership," he added.

Hitler concluded by telling his former opponents how they could have crushed the Nazi movement in 1919—either by utterly destroying it in the bud or else ignoring it.

"They had not the courage and nerve to do either," he added.

Viscount Grey Gets Day of Rest After Bad Night

CHRISTON BANK, Eng., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Tonight's official bulletin said Viscount Grey of Fallodon "passed a restful day. His strength is maintained." This is the first reference to the patient's strength since his condition became serious several days ago and was regarded as a definitely satisfactory sign after a restless Saturday night.

AUSTRIAN CHANCELLOR URGES YOUNG MEN TO ENLIST IN NEW ARMY

VIENNA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, addressing a nearby rural massmeeting today, listed among his most important chievements the recent plan for increasing Austria's army from 22,000 to 30,000. He urged Austrians between the ages of 18 and 26 to seize the opportunity to rally to Austria's colorsan d get military training.

France, Great Britain, and Italy, in identical notes Saturday, approved Austria's request to raise a special corps of 8,000 men for duty against "terrorist elements" within Austria and on the German border. Austria's military strength was limited by the treaty of St. Germain to 30,000 men, but she never recruited her army to full strength.

The present strength of Austria's armed forces is about 22,000, but under the treaty of St. Germain the enlistment period for noncommissioned officers and privates is set at 12 consecutive years. Under the plan as approved by the three powers, a one year voluntary enlistment period will be established, thus giving Austria an opportunity to train more men.

RUSSIANS PLAN 2 STRATOSPHERE TRIPS THIS MONTH

MOSCOW, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Possibility of two stratosphere flights this month loomed with the announcement tonight that the soviet army air force intends to send away a secretly constructed balloon within the next few days and an announcement that a civilian balloon likewise will take off shortly.

The civilian flight will be sponsored by the Civil Air society, Osoaviakhim, in coöperation with the Leningrad Air institute.

Moscow newspapers disclosed that the army balloon will take off Sept. 6 from the local airdrome, weather permitting, and will attempt to reach an altitude of 20,000 meters [approximately 65,500 feet].

It was emphasized that both ventures are to be for purely scentific purposes with no attempt to break records.

FRENCH FOREIGN CHIEF SAYS NAZIS ARE PEACE PERIL

No Violence! He Warns German Nation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour today attacked the recent Nazi demonstrations at the Niederwald monument near the French frontier and declared in so many words that France was not intimidated.

Speaking at the dedication of a monument to Aristide Briand, French "apostle of peace," at Ile Millau on the Brittany sea coast, Paul-Boncour, who is a pacifist, said, "France is well able to defend herself."

The foreign minister reaffirmed France's intention not to swerve from a policy of safeguarding Austria's independence and of building a central European economic union. He added that recent negotiations "seem to justify our point of view and our hopes."

Assails Nazi Activity.

Paul-Boncour assailed Nazi activity almost at the outset of his speech.

"I know," he said, "that contrasts are easy to make between demonstrations like this. There are those far from the frontier at the edge of the ocean, where crowds cry for peace, and the agitation that has just taken place at the approaches to our territory. The situation would be grave if our patience was born of a knowledge of our weakness. But that is not so, for France knows she is strong enough to resist violence."

Calling attention to Premier Daladier's visit to fortifications on the Lorrain frontier, he said.

"The silent visit of the premier to the defense organizations in the east was the proper reply to the attitude [of the Nazis] of which the least that can be said is that it is troubling profoundly the atmosphere of peace so necessary to the recovery of Europe. France unanimously accompanied the chief of government on his tour of inspection."

Refers to Security Pact.

He then cited the article of the Locarno treaty of 1925, negotiated by Briand, which calls for sanctions in case Germany violates her western frontiers.

"The states of central Europe," Paul-Boncour concluded, "are founded on the right of nationalities, which is precisely contrary to racial conceptions from which only can come confusion of frontiers."

Preparedness Is Advised.

CHARLEVILLE, France, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Lucient Hubert, vice president of the French senate, told a patriotic meeting here today that preparedness would be advisable "so long as the menace lasts." He referred to Hitlerism.

Speaking at a memorial service for the war dead of the Sedan sector of 1870, he said: "I have not the right to affirm that Hitler wants war, but it is certain he has started the German people on a dizzy course, during which the pilot may lose control."

13,000 Troops in Sham War.

VITRY - LE - FRANCOIS, France, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Thirteen thousand French troops were massed along a 90 mile front tonight for army maneuvers in the old Champagne battlefields.

The "exercises" were to be much smaller than the war games of previous years as a matter of economy, but the maneuvers will include all branches of the army.

ZIONISTS SEEK FUNDS TO AID JEWS IN RUSSIA

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 3.—[Jewish Telegraphic Agency.]—The 18th world Zionist congress rushed through several important matters tonight preparatory to final adjournment.

In the first resolution unanimously adopted by the congress the executive was instructed to devote more attention to relief work organized in behalf of persecuted Zionists in soviet Russia and to support the Magen, the organization created to further this relief work.

A call to the Jews of the world to help the executive collect funds for the relief of the Russian Zionists was sounded by Dr. Leo Motzkin, president of the congress.

DIES SUDDENLY AT WORK.

Fears It Is Falling Under Nazi Influence.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 3.—The Saar gendarmerie, recently organized for the purpose of gradually replacing French troops policing the turbulent mandated territory, may soon be dissolved, according to reports reaching Paris. Commissioner Knox, head of the league of nation's governing body, is stated to have lost confidence in the new police as a result of a campaign to undermine its prestige chiefly carried on by the left press. The left papers charge that the Saar gendarmes daily are falling under the influence of Nazis whose campaign to obtain an overwhelming German vote in the 1935 plebiscite is already well along.

1,000 Police in Saar.

The Saar gendarmerie was organized some time ago and was gradually increased in size until now it numbers 1,000 men. Previously French troops were garrisoned in the territory and did the police work but it was hoped that the establishment of a local gendarmerie would alleviate the friction in the Saar which it failed to do in part.

What the Saar commission would do if the local force were dissolved it is difficult to say, although it is agreed that again charging French troops with maintenance of order would bring considerable influence to bear in increasing the Nazi strength in the basin.

While Nazi activity prior to the plebiscite is worrying the French considerably, Jacques Bardoux, well known French commentator, writing in Le Capital today, admits that the French, if tardy in beginning their campaign, at least have not been idle.

Plebiscite Battle Opens.

He says that the "battle of the Saar plebiscite has opened on the French side. It conforms to the methods of French propaganda, with discretion and liberalism. While reports of an impartial investigation of conditions in the Saar published in various papers aroused public opinion, the necessary steps were taken. Indispensable organizations have been created. The administration of mines—turned over to France as reparations—is being kept informed."

Lindberghs May Fly to England from Copenhagen

NEWCASTLE, England, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Information received tonight said Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh may fly here from Copenhagen tomorrow. However, it was understood the couple's plans are indefinite and subject to change.

Chicagoan Returning from Germany Suicide at Sea

New York, Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Leon Kass, a tourist passenger on the White Star liner Olympic, committed suicide Saturday afternoon by jumping overboard, a wireless dispatch from the liner's master informed the local offices of the line today.

Leon Kass, who leaped to his death from an ocean liner, lived at 3500 Fulton street, and went to Germany two months ago to visit his mother, according to neighbors. He was unmarried and lived with a brother, Samuel, who was not at home last night.

JUDGE SULLIVAN TO PUSH COURT WAR ON CRIME

Takes Office Today as Chief Justice.

Judge Philip L. Sullivan, one of the younger members of the judiciary, will be inaugurated as chief justice of the Criminal court at 10 o'clock this morning. It was indicated yesterday that Judge Sullivan's inaugural address will declare his intention to push the crime war started by his predecessor, Judge John Prystalski, at top speed until the Criminal court dockets are cleared on the 866 pending indictments.

Judge Sullivan has plenty of experience in the Criminal court. He served as an associate judge during the last year and served several other terms in the court during his 12 years on the bench. He is 46 years old and when elected was the youngest judge ever to sit on the Circuit court bench.

The new chief justice has indicated to his friends that he will ask for the permanent assignment of at least ten judges to the Criminal court. It was demonstrated during the recent crime drive that if ten judges each put in a full day the courts can keep pace with current crime and catch up on the back docket.

Makeup of Court.

The court will be made up at first of seven judges. They are Judges Sullivan, Thomas J. Lynch, James J. Fardy, Michael Feinberg, Walter Steffen, Harry B. Miller, and Donald S. McKinlay. However, Judge Charles P. Molthrop, who was appointed to fill a vacancy until December, is expected to continue in the Criminal court for the present. Judges Walter LaBuy and Francis Allegretti have also announced that they will serve a volunteer period in the Criminal court. This will give the court ten judges to start the fall term on Tuesday.

"I believe in speedy and substantial justice," said the new chief justice yesterday. "I will outline my policies tomorrow."

During the crime war period Chief Justice Prystalski demonstrated that if the court has enough judges it is not necessary to bargain with criminals for lighter punishments in return for pleas of guilty or submission to bench trials. The judges held over 300 jury trials, the statistics show, in order to impose the maximum penalties on defendants.

4 Jury Trials in One Day.

Judge Denis E. Sullivan, who sat in the Criminal court for the first time in 20 years, established the record by holding four jury trials in one court day.

Court employés pointed out that prior to the crime drive some judges considered it a day's work to hold one jury trial. However, it was the exception rather than the rule during the last month, if a judge did not have at least two jury trials a day.

The court calendars have many important cases listed for trial during the fall term. Among them are several trials involving slayers of policemen. These are expected to be forced to trial within the next week.

JURIES SET RECORDS

An army of 960 jurors was mustered into service last month in the Criminal court in the campaign against crime waged under the leadership of Chief Justice John Prystalski. This is a record for August. In the month's campaign by the veniremen, according to Melzar P. Delano, chief deputy clerk of the Criminal court.

A record was set for the number of jury trials in any one month of the court's history. The number of jury trials was 317. Guilty verdicts returned by juries accounted for the majority of the 251 penitentiary sentences imposed in the crime war. Three death verdicts were returned.

A second record was set when 27 juries heard cases in a single day. A third record was established when three juries were at work in one court at the same time.

Ask for 60 Jurors.

Before the campaign opened the clerk's office had asked the jury commissioners for only 60 jurors. It was believed this number would be sufficient for the first two weeks of August. For the last half of the month a similar number was to have been called.

As judges continued to volunteer to aid the chief justice appeals for more jurors were made to the commissioners. Groups of 100 jurors were sent to the court. These were not enlisted for the customary two week period, but for the duration of the crime war. In all, nine groups were summoned.

County Unable to Pay.

The jurors, who were characterized by one judge as "the soldiers in the fight on crime," served without pay because of the financial condition of the county. They will be paid the customary $5 for each day's service when funds are obtained by the county.

DANIEL BOONE'S GRANDSON IS 93; HAPPY IN HILLS

New Lexington, O., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Watching the world move by from his isolated hill home south of here, the grandson of Daniel Boone has decided that character and religion as well as economic conditions have been depressed by modern tendencies.

Rugged and happy at 93, Wilson Shannon Daniel Boone possesses a lone memento of his Indian-fighting ancester who helped blaze the trail of young America.

It is a dictionary of the Bible, inherited by his father, John Boone, from Daniel Boone, and passed on to him years ago.

Like the famous frontiersman, who campaigned in Kentucky along the Ohio river at the turn of the century, however, Wilson Boone is a fighting man when necessity demands. He was a member of company A of McGlaughlin's Ohio cavalry in the civil war.

A lover of isolation, Boone lives alone on his 40 acre estate buried in the rocky, wooded hills.

TWO GOVERNORS AND SENATOR PAY HONOR TO CLARK

Dedicate Memorial Bridge at Vincennes.

Vincennes, Ind., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The winning of the old Northwest Territory for the United States and the achievements of George Rogers Clark and his associates in the war of the American revolution were commemorated here today on the sesquicentennial anniversary of the peace of Paris that ended the revolutionary war.

The day was made the occasion for sealing the corner stone of the imposing George Rogers Clark memorial erected on the site of old Fort Sackville, captured by Gen. Clark from the British in February, 1779.

New Bridge Dedicated.

Ceremonies were also held during the day dedicating the new interstate bridge spanning the Wabash river at Vincennes and forming a link in the proposed Lincoln memorial highway which will follow a trail from Abraham Lincoln's birthplace in Kentucky, through his boyhood home in Indiana and to his final resting place in Illinois. The Clark memorial stands at the Indiana approach to the bridge.

Governors Henry Horner of Illinois and Paul V. McNutt of Indiana were the principal speakers at the ceremonies dedicating the bridge. Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the George Rogers Clark sesquicentennial commission, spoke at the ceremonies held in connection with the sealing of the corner stone.

Gov. Horner in a tribute to Gen. Clark said the memorial "will aid to bring even closer together the people of the great states that have been carved out of the great northwest which Clark won for us."

Binds States Together.

"It emphasizes," continued the Illinois governor, "that they have a common history, a common destiny, and that what is for the benefit of one is for the benefit of the others. Petty jealousies between communities will be dissipated by the bright rays of Clark's accomplishments.

"The story of his achievement recalls the debts of Illinois to Indiana and the obligations of Indiana to Illinois. It binds both more closely to Kentucky and old Virginia. It incites all of us to a greater love for our common country, a greater determination to be worthy of this great heritage that has come to us through the deeds of this great American and his patriotic band."

Indiana Governor Speaks.

Gov. McNutt in a brief address also paid tribute to Gen. Clark and those who aided him in the capture of Fort Sackville, a conquest that won for the United States the territory now comprising the states of Indiana, Ohio Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

Senator Fess likewise spoke on the significance of the peace of Paris and the winning of the Northwest Territory through the bravery of Clark and his band.

School Children Take Part.

Vincennes school children participated in the ceremonies at both the dedication of the bridge and the sealing of the memorial corner stone. D. Frank Culbertson of Vincennes, vice chairman of the George Rogers Clark sesquicentennial, presided at the bridge dedication.

Rain necessitated a hurried termination of the afternoon ceremonies.

ST. PAUL NEWS TO GO INTO HANDS OF NEW OWNERS

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Dispatch-Pioneer Press company, publishers of the St. Paul Dispatch and the St. Paul Pioneer Press, daily newspapers here, today announced it had contracted to purchase the St. Paul Daily News, evening newspaper here. The transfer to be made Tuesday.

The Dispatch-Pioneer Press company announced that the Daily News will be continued by its present staff as a separate institution under independent editorial direction.

In a statement, the Dispatch-Pioneer Press said:

"The financial position of the Daily News resulting from the prolonged economic depression presented a difficult problem. The holders of the majority of the common stock of the Daily News came to the conclusion that the only solution possible lay in the purchase of the Daily News by the Dispatch-Pioneer Press company. For this reason, the Dispatch-Pioneer Press company agreed to buy and has decided to operate the Daily News."

RACE PILOT FLIES 297 MILES HOUR; FAILS AT RECORD

Designer Passes Mark Set by Doolittle.

BY HUGH SEXTON.

Glenview, Ill., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—James R. Wedell flew faster than the world's land plane speed record of 294.38 miles an hour this afternoon at the International air races at Curtiss-Wright airport, but his average speed of 296.94 miles an hour was not considered official. Wedell flew a plane of his own design, a Wedell-Williams special, powered by a supercharged Wasp motor of 800 horsepower, the same motor that enabled Maj. James H. Doolittle to set the existing record a year ago at Cleveland.

Wedell made his record speed on only two laps of the three kilometer course. Four laps, two upwind and two down wind, are required to make a speed record official. He did not carry a barograph, another requirement for official records. The barograph is a recording altimeter, which serves to certify that the pilot did not dive his plane from a prohibitive height to attain speed on the course.

Designer of Planes.

Maj. Doolittle's world record, furthermore, will have to be beaten by at last 4.98 miles an hour to create a new world speed record. Wedell is from Patterson, La. Planes designed by him have won many important speed events, including the women's world speed record, held by Mrs. Mae Haizlip of St. Louis.

Col. Roscoe Turner, flying a Wedell Williams special racer [Wasp 800 h. p. motor] failed to stay on the course in an attempt to break the world speed record. Two of his laps were timed at 289.91 miles per hour.

Military Planes Perform.

Twelve Boeing fighters [Wasp motors] of the Marine corps, led by the colorful Lieut. L. McP. Sanderson and piloted by veterans of the Nicaraguan campaign, and seven Curtiss helldivers [Wasp motors], led by Lieut. Col. Ross E. Rowell put on a typical leatherneck show which included demonstrations of bombing and smoke screen laying.

Mrs. Mae Haizlip, St. Louis, nosed her racing plane over as she landed after winning the women's free for all in the international meet but climbed out uninjured. Her plane was only slightly damaged.

The results of today's events were:

Parachute drops to a mark from 2,000 feet—First prizes of $70 each won by Joe Crane, Mineola, N. Y., and Joe Brown, Cincinnati, O., when they tied; third prize of $30, Ralph Nyborg, Evanston; fourth prize of $20, Jerry Wessling, Toledo, O., and fifth prize of $10, Henry J. Novakoski, Lansing, Mich. Distance of winner from mark: 64 feet 11 inches.

Twenty mile closed course free for all—[For planes with motors of less than 200 cubic inch piston displacement]—First prize of $180, S. J. Wittman, Oshkosh, Wis., Wittman Special [Pobjoy motor]; second prize of $100, Lyman Voelpel, Bloomington, Tilbury Flash [Church motor]; third prize of $60, Walter Bagnick, Detroit, Mich., Heath Racer [Continental motor]. Average speed of winner, 110.17 m. p. h.

Thirty mile closed course free for all—[For planes with motors of less than 375 cubic inch piston displacement]—First prize of $360, Arthur C. Chester, Joliet, flying a Chester Special [Menasco motor]; second prize of $200, Leland S. Miles, Los Angeles, Miles and Atwood Special [Menasco motor]; third prize of $120, S. J. Wittman, Oshkosh, Witman Special [Cirrus motor]; fourth prize of $80, Russell Hosler, Huntington, Ind., Kolkert's Special [Cirrus motor]; and fifth prize of $40, Arthur Gross, Los Angeles, Howard Special [Gypsy motor]. Average speed of winner 181.10 m. p. h.

FIFTY MILE CLOSED COURSE FREE FOR ALL [for planes with motors of less than 550 cubic inch piston displacement]—First prize of $810, Roy Minor of Los Angeles, flying a Howard Special [Menasco motor]; second, prize of $450, Arthur C. Chester, Joliet, Chester Special [Menasco motor]; third, prize of $270, Gordon Israel, St. Louis, Israel racer [Menasco motor], and fourth prize of $180, Leland S. Miles, Los Angeles, Miles and Atwood Special [Menasco motor]. Average speed of winner, 195.4 m. p. h.

WOMEN'S FIFTY MILE CLOSED COURSE FREE FOR ALL FOR WOMEN [for planes with motors of unlimited cubic inch piston displacement]—First prize of $1,125, Mrs. Mae Haislip, St. Louis, Wedell Williams Special [Wasp Jr. motor]; second prize of $625, Florence Klingensmith, Minneapolis, Geebee racer [Wright motor]; third prize of $375, Martie Bowman, Burbank, Cal., Geebee racer [Wasp motor], and fourth prize of $250, Henrietta Lantz, Los Angeles, Howard Special [Gypsy motor]. Average speed of winner, 191.11 m. p. h.

Jack Cope, 716 Monroe street, Evanston, broke his right leg below the knee in landing with a parachute after leaping from the wing of a plane. Cope's parachute opened properly but he landed at an awkward angle, he said. The injured man was taken to the Evanston hospital.

SEEK PERMIT TO LINK MANILA AND HONGKONG BY AIR

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Pan-American Airways flyers surveying the possibilities of regular air service between Manila and the China coast, flew back to Hongkong today, but before going filed with the Philippine legislature an application for a franchise to establish Manila-Hongkong schedules.

The three aviators, H. M. Bixby, W. S. Groch, and William Ehmer, arrived here Aug. 16, having taken ten hours to fly here from Hongkong. The return journey of their seaplane took only seven hours and a quarter.

Bixby, who is from St. Louis, said it is "entirely possible" the proposed service will start next year, connecting with the new bi-weekly Canton-Hongkong-Shanghai line of the China national aviation corporation.

PILSUDSKI ASKED BY STALIN TO RED ARMY FESTIVAL

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, Sept. 3.—Marshal Josef Pilsudski, Polish dictator, has been invited to Moscow as the guest of the soviet government to participate in the Red army celebrations on the anniversary of the bolshevist revolution, Nov. 7.

According to the Polish press, which announced this news, the invitation was accompanied by a personal gift to Marshal Pilsudski from Joseph Stalin in the form of old czarist police documents relating to Marshal Pilsudski's prewar revolutionary activity against the czarist régime.

These soviet-Polish courtesies, together with the recent nonaggression pact signed in London, lead to the belief that a military pact between Poland and soviet Russia may be contemplated.

RACE BALLOON OVER ONTARIO; TWO BAGS DOWN

Two Unreported as Bags Drift Over Lakes.

At least one of the six balloons in the James Gordon Bennett international races was over Ontario last night some 26 hours after the contestants had taken off at Curtiss-Wright airport in Glenview. At 9 p. m., Chicago daylight time, yesterday a balloon passed over Lionshead, Ont., on the east shore of Lake Huron. Later a balloon, believed to be the same one seen at Lionshead, passed over Goderich, Ont.

Two other balloons were down at that hour, another had been sighted over the Straits of Mackinac, 300 miles from Chicago, and a third contestant, Lieutenant Commander Thomas G. W. Settle, United States navy, winner of the 1932 Bennett trophy at Basel, Switzerland, had reported by radio earlier in the evening that he was somewhere near Caro, Mich., which is 30 miles east of Saginaw and 75 miles north of Detroit. Race officials in Chicago said the balloon seen over Lionshead might possibly be Settle's.

Two Still Unreported.

Late last night at least two of the bags were still unreported. It was believed that low clouds which covered much of Michigan and the lake district yesterday had prevented their being seen.

Still another balloon, which might have been the one seen over Lionshead, passed over Sturgeon Point, Mich., on the western shore of Lake Huron yesterday. Sturgeon Point is about 290 miles out of Chicago. Coast guardsmen who saw the bag were unable to identify it because of its great height.

The two balloons which landed were the French entry, piloted by Georges Ravanine and Georges Blanchet, and the German Deutschland. The Frenchmen descended in a corn field a few miles south of Albion, Mich., after covering approximately 180 miles. Neither of the crew speaks English and had difficulty in finding out where they were, dispatches said. They were obviously disappointed to find they were still in the United States.

Gas Bag Is Ripped.

A low pressure area which expanded the gas, and ripped the bag, brought the Deutschland to earth near Kingston, Mich., which is a few miles east of Caro. The German balloon descended abruptly, but the basket struck a ditch containing about a foot of water and the two members of the crew, Dr. Erick Koerner and Richard Scheutz, were uninjured. It was believed they had covered less than 300 miles.

Other balloons still in the air include the second American entry, Goodyear IX., piloted by Ward T. Van Orman and Frank Trotter; the Polish entry, carrying Capt. Francizek Hynek and Lieut. Zbigniew Burzynski, and the Belgian entry, piloted by Philippe Quersin and Martial Van Scheele.

The light winds which were carrying the balloonists over Lake Huron and toward the wilds of Ontario were believed to have precluded a new record for distance in this year's contest. Last year's race was won by Commander Settle, who covered 961 miles, a mark not likely to be broken this year. The 1933 winner will be the pilot whose balloon covers the farthest distance from Chicago before landing.

SHOOTS TWO CHILDREN, ENDS LIFE.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—After writing a farewell note, Laverne Yeager, 34, an employe of the Frankford arsenal, shot and critically wounded his two daughters today and ended his life.

CARMODY OFFERS PLANS TO SPEED UP FIREBOATS

Daniel J. Carmody, acting fire commissioner, revealed yesterday that he is considering two plans for modernizing Chicago's fire fighting craft. One is to scrap the present engines and install some type of internal combustion engine, and the other is to replace the fire tugs with new boats, built especially for service in the Chicago and Calumet rivers and the lake.

The necessity for having up to date equipment on the water was shown last week when the fireboat, Graeme Stewart, was an hour and one-half in reaching a fire at the Chicago coast guard station at the mouth of the river.

"It took up the matter with the late Mayor Cermak," said Commissioner Carmody. "He realized the need for new equipment, but the condition of the city's finances at that time did not permit any purchases. I have talked also to Mayor Kelly and he agreed that when the city's finances are straightened out the department should get new fire boats."

The city has three fire boats, the Graeme Stewart, the Joseph Medill, which reached the coast guard station in ten minutes from its Navy pier station, and the Illinois. The Medill and Stewart are 25 years old, while the Illinois is 35 years old.

Fuel cost for the three steam propelled boats averages between $17,000 and $20,000 a year, as steam pressure has to be maintained constantly while the tugs are tied up at their docks. An internal combustion engine consumes no fuel during the time it is not in operation.

The construction of new boats, according to recent estimates, would cost over $125,000 each.

Bulgar King in London; Seeks Aid for Balkans

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 3.—King Boris of Bulgaria and Queen Giovanna, his wife, daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, arrived in London tonight for a visit which is expected to last several weeks. King Boris, who had stopped at Paris en route, is believed to be studying plans for the economic reorganization of the Balkans. He had lengthy conversations with Premier Daladier of France. The monarch was received at the railway station by a delegation of Bulgarians and Italians and the earl of Munster, representing King George.

YOUTHS TAMING WASTE AREAS OF SKOKIE MARSH

822 Workers Thrive Under Army's Care.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

The President of the United States would be a proud and happy man this morning could he see what I saw in the miles of Skokie marsh in the northeast corner of Cook county.

Ditching draining, dyking, building. Transforming pest-breeding, mosquito breeding, peat-burning miles into sightly plaisances, canals, parapets, dams, and reservoirs.

They are taming and putting in order hundreds of acres that in spring and autumn used to create flood trouble over thousands of acres.

Cellars in towns as far away as Winnetka and Glencoe on the east would be flooded. The water would rise to the level of Willow road on the south.

Trouble from Floods and Fires.

In the dry season the peat fires, which, some say, smoulder all winter, would gain such headway that residents in suburbs two miles away would have to close their windows against the acrid smoke. Some nights they could not keep their windows open at all.

And, when the wind was right, clouds of mosquitos would be blown 'way over to the villa area on the north shore of Lake Michigan. People could not enjoy their lawns and gardens of an evening.

Since the earliest suburban development of Chicago the Skokie marsh has been a picturesque nuisance.

Now men sprung from the people are making a beautiful people's park out of desolate swamps that grew weeds seven feet tall.

Reclamation at $1 a Day.

Two months ago many of the men who are doing this salutary work at $1 a day from the United States government were physically emaciated, broken in spirit, despairing, ragged.

They were typical victims of "the depression."

Today all of them are of a reddish bronze; fleshed up; smiling, and when they laugh you can hear them a furlong away.

Besides the $1 a day they are receiving:

Strong apparel.

Clean housing on a prairie aglow with red and white clover and golden rod and shaded here and there with oaks and poplars.

Medical attention.

Shower baths.

$25 a Month to Home and Mother.

And they are sending home to mother or the wife $25 a month, retaining $5 to play around with—cigarets, beer, sweets, magazines, and such like.

These 822 happy men—not all angels by a long shot, for the sulker, the slacker and "the guardhouse lawyer" are found everywhere—are members of the C. C. C. [Civilian Conservation Corps] which Franklin Roosevelt thought up and which hundreds of U. S. army officers put into operation—and are operating—for him.

When the officers finished their task of organizing the C. C. C., laconic Maj. Gen. MacArthur, chief of staff, U. S. A., and not a man easily pleased, wrote this comprehensive compliment: "Good work, army!"

The 822 hardworkers in the Skokie valley are a cross-section of a peace corps of 289,000 men who are employed from coast to coast of this republic, ditching, draining, dyking, putting forests in order.

From Sighing to Singing.

Their camps, considering what our country has been through since the winter of 1929-'30, are the most inspiring places you ever visited.

The contrast is a song.

Men who were college students, high school graduates, clerks, surveyors, chauffeurs, truck driver, cooks, and even business men in a small way, are members of the C. C. C.

"No preachers yet," said Maj. R. T. McCarron, 6th infantry, U. S. A., and the high man on the Skokie scene, "but some mighty good carpenters!"

Somehow I got from the glad emphasis on the word "carpenters" that carpenters mean much in his scheme of salvation.

"See the Dirt Fly!"

He looked over the bronzed men and he mused like a proud parent:

"Look at them! See them make the dirt fly! Run your eye along the beautiful lines of those canals. Professional contractors don't turn out better work than these kids are doing—few as good.

"Some when they came in were just pitiful looking. Thin, hollow-eyed. Some didn't have shirts. Some practically no clothes. But some were pretty well dressed. All of them had been up against it bitter hard."

Lieut. Pendell, U. S. A., who has been on the scene since work started, nodded grave agreement with all the major said.

Keeping the Record Honest.

One must not write Pollyannese.

Their life is not yet a bed of roses.

But it is respectable, productive, and cheerful, beating—despite the decisions of certain pikers of American finance—suicide all hollow.

I sought civilian testimony on the quality of the work the men are doing and got a specific earful from Messrs. Max Wainright and Clarence Schafehen of the Cook county forest preserve staff and directors of operations.

Mr. Wainwright said:

"The boys are very enthusiastic about their work and anxious to learn. Take something I saw this morning for illustration: Twenty-five men dug, loaded, wheeled, emptied and spread 161 wheelbarrow loads of clay in one hour, and they had to move these loads up a ten-foot incline 180 feet long."

Mr. Wainwright then burst into enthusiasm as follows:

"And I want to tell you that's going like hell!"

"It certainly is!" added Mr. Schafehen.

"Of course," continued Mr. Wainwright, "we have some men whose idol is not work. The trade name among the boys for loafers is 'goldbrickers.' But you put 9 gold brickers in with one good man and in a week you've got 10 good men. I've tried it."

Major McCarron had spoken of the C. C. C. men as "kids." But I saw one white haired man, and he was the cheerfulest of all I saw—just beaming.

When the men first arrived in the Skokie they were stiff and dog tired at quitting time—4 o'clock. Now they come in laughing and cheering, and they beat it to the shower baths like bees to a posey. While the different groups lathered themselves and exchanged greetings there was a good deal of perfectly meaningless and jovial goddamning.

Our Pointless Profanity.

You could not call it blasphemy, for it had no point. It only illustrated once more that we are the most profane of civilized peoples. The effect is ignoble.

I saw some lads with scapulars hung around their necks, and amid the paeans of profanity one of them shouted "O, cut it out!"

Then we had supper—for I horned in—and it comprised:

Beef stew with vegetables, bread and butter, chocolate pudding and iced tea. You could eat until you gasped—and one and all did.

A mess sergeant from Fort Sheridan exhibited specimen C. C. C. bills of fare and they read thus:

Breakfast: Cantaloupe, scrambled eggs and bacon, oatmeal, bread and butter, fresh milk, and coffee.

Dinner: Pot roast with brown gravy, potatoes, creamed carrots, vegetable salad, bread and butter, and fruit pudding.

One of F. R.'s Ideas.

The sergeant said there is a good variety from day to day. Breakfast is at 6:30, dinner at noon. Supper was going strong from five to six.

The three meals did cost 32 cents a day per man when Major McCarron bought from army supplies but now that he is "buying locally"—that is, from neighborhood stores to "spray the money around," which was President Roosevelt's idea—the ration runs 33 cents a day per man, or more.

The Colonel's Questions.

One day Col. Thuis of the 6th corps area headquarters came out to the Skokie, and he volleyed thus at a young toiler:

"How do you like it here?"

"Swell, colonel!"

"How's the chow?"

"Fine!"

"How much have you gained?"

"Twelve pounds."

And Maj. McCarron called out to a colored man: "How do you like it here?"

"Fine! First job I ever had, majah, where I got three square meals a day."

The men are on a two year job in the Skokie valley, building a system of dams, diversion channels, flood plains, lagoons, and dykes. There will be eight lagoons and three dams, and the dykes will be six feet high. Some of the diversion channels have twelve foot bottoms.

All the area they are taming is part of our forest preserve. So, you see, Chicago will reap a substantial benefit from Uncle Frank's C. C. C. idea.

To Carry on Next Winter.

The plan is to carry on through the winter, sheltering the men in 300 portable schoolhouses, which have been offered by the Cook county government. They now are housed in army tents. Mr. Hugh Kent, general civilian superintendent of the Skokie project, and appointed by the federal government, told me something I did not know, although I have followed armies in Cuba and in Europe many, many weary months. He said tents are the most expensive kind of housing. Would you have thought it?

About peat fires Supt. Kent was very interesting, saying:

"The Skokie reclamation will control the peat fires that smoke out this part of Chicago every autumn. They are a mystery. Some think they are caused by spontaneous combustion—methane, or 'marsh gas,' exploding and igniting the peat. The explosion will make a flame 8 feet high and 3 feet broad. [Pointing excitedly to the east, 'There's one now!'] The flame will burn strong for ten minutes, then die down. But the peat will burn for weeks—sometimes all winter, I am told—spreading, spreading, spreading underground.

And Beating Peat Fires.

"You can beat a peat fire by digging a trench around it and then pumping in water. That is why we built that forty foot tower—to spy out the fires—and organized a C. C. C. fire department of 25 men on 24 hour duty. The boys got an old fire engine from the city and tinkered it up. It works."

As to the quality of the work the C. C. C. is doing, Mr. Kent said: "Superior to that done by contractors. As to quantity, it compares favorably with contract labor. On farms these boys probably would get $16 a month and food, and they'd be sleeping in the haymow. And theirs would be a six day week, each day from daylight to dark, and chores on Sunday. I know, because I've worked on a farm. Here a five day week, 7 hours a day, including the walk to and from work, $30 a month, and all "found," including medical attendance, and a first aid man out in the field with every unit of 35 men."

Much Volunteer Work.

The C. C. C. lads built the camp streets voluntarily and after regular working hours, doing all their own sign painting, grading, gravelling and sanding. "Where they got the sand, God knows," said Lieut. Pendell.

All, if they did not have them, are acquiring habits of neatness and order. Company 634 of the Skokie group gives from its share of the canteen dividends a weekly prize of $2 for "the best tent"—as to order. For "the best bunk" an honorable mention. Also, "the worst tent," and "the worst bunk" are pitilessly posted. "Never," said Mr. Pendell, "does a unit get 'worst tent' or 'worst bunk' twice in succession. The 'riding' is too hard."

The C. C. C. working uniform is blue denim trousers and jacket with canvas hat; for dressup the army's olive drab trousers and coat, on which the brass buttons have been replaced with black. Shoes and underwear are army issue.

Militarism's Best Side.

To keep the truculent pacifists pacified, all military terms like "platoon" and "first sergeant", are eliminated from C. C. C. But military scrupulousness is there, as the man said of the fur coat that apparently was not in his expense account.

In short, the army pays, feeds, houses, clothes, doctors, and disciplines the men and administers their financial affairs, but does not go into the field with them. There they are under civilian superintendents.

If there is trouble in the field, reports from both sides are heard by army officers. Usually the shifting of men cures the trouble. If a man is persistently unruly he is sent home with a dishonorable discharge. If he is A. W. O. L. ten days he is automatically discharged. If he returns within ten days he is fined a day's pay for each day absent. There is no guardhouse and there have been few runaways. A man ranked as an A man can go home over the week-end. An A A man has additional privileges. A B man must stay in camp over the week-end. The army, in other words, can fire and fine.

Money Not Muddled Away.

A man has no choice about sending $25 a month to his dependants. The army sends it for him. He never sees it.

All C. C. C. men who are doing work as foremen clerks, mechanics, supply men, and cooks rate at from $36 to $45 a month.

Amusements are the radio, the company library—well disposed people in nearby towns motoring over with books and magazines—movies twice a week, boxing matches twice a week, and ball games against teams from nearby suburbs and from Fort Sheridan.

Pets are prevalent—mostly dogs and kittens. "Connie," a lady dog, has been brought up on a bottle. She has 300 strong men to wait on her and spoil her and she takes attention like a duchess, saying to one "Rub my back," and to another, "Now bring me a wienie." I noticed that at supper time the colored boys saw that the pets were fed before they fed themselves.

But They Will Find One.

Knowing grouped men pretty well I asked Maj. McCarron if the boys had a goat mascot yet.

"No, thank God," said he.

Health is good. All are gaining flesh—good, hard flesh. Up at six. Start work at 8. Lights out at 10. Behavior is good—even on the evening of pay day.

They get a fine example all the way—in big things and little—from the finest gentlemen on earth. I mean American regular army officers. For example: Before I started from Maj. McCarron's quarters to view the work he said: "Excuse me for ten minutes, please. I don't like to go out among the men without being clean shaven."

There are 30 of these camps in Illinois. I didn't vote for Franklin Roosevelt—I was scared—but when I left our Skokie camp I said to myself, "God bless the President of the United States," and I am going out to the camp again before snow flies—and not empty handed, I promise you. For I learned a lesson there—about fortitude.

7 STATES VOTE ON DRY REPEAL IN SEPTEMBER

Wets See 25th Victory in Vermont Tomorrow.

states as Indiana, Iowa, and rural Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin. When these areas went for repeal by overwhelming votes in rural sections as well as in the cities, the drys made a desperate struggle to keep the old bone dry [politically] south. They concentrated on Arkansas, Alabama, and Tennessee, all of which went for repeal. Virginia, Florida, and the Carolinas have elections set for October and November, and reports from the south are that all indications are they will follow the lead of Tennessee, Arkansas, and Texas, once bone dry.

Rocky mountain states, it is indicated, are to see one of the "last stand" efforts of the professional drys. Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, and Idaho, home of Senator Borah, an 18th amendment pillar, are to be campaigned by drys. But repealists hold that sentiment in these states will be akin to that of Wyoming, Nevada, and Arizona, which rolled up repeal majorities. On the prohibition question, Idaho is regarded as no different in sentiment from its western neighbors, Oregon and Washington, which went better than two to one for repeal.

Minnesota, which votes Sept. 12, is regarded as headed for repeal by a margin comparable with those registered in rural Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Illinois.

Maryland, which also votes Sept. 12, is conceded to repeal by the drys, while Pennsylvania and Ohio, birthplace of the Anti-Saloon league, which vote Nov. 7, are regarded as likely to roll up repeal margins as great as those of other industrial states.

VERMONT VOTES TUESDAY

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The final drive for votes for repeal or retention of the 18th amendment closed today.

On Tuesday the state votes on the question of repeal and the partisans who have waged campaigns for months in their search for support prepared to rest during the Labor day holiday tomorrow.

Bishop Edwin Hughes of the Methodist church issued the final appeal for support in behalf of those favoring retention of prohibition at a meeting in Rutland. The repealists heard Representative Wadsworth of New York last night speak here in a plea to make Vermont the 25th state to register its verdict against prohibition.

Dr. Wilson Speaks.

For several months leading partisans have been brought to Vermont in an effort to sway the voters. Dr. Clarence True Wilson and Bishop Hughes of Washington have spoken in several cities and towns in a "resist repeal" campaign, while the anti-prohibitionists have sponsored the appearances of Wadsworth and James A. Farley, the postmaster general.

The voters will, on Tuesday, elect 14 delegates to a convention, which will be held between 20 and 30 days after the election, at which the state's action on prohibition will be officially placed on record. There are two slates of 14 candidates each, one for and the other against repeal. The candidates were selected by Gov. Stanley C. Wilson under authority granted by the last session of the legislature.

Regardless of the outcome of Tuesday's balloting the state will continue under a prohibition enforcement law which was passed by the legislature after adoption of the 18th amendment and passage of the Volstead act, until further legislation is enacted.

Farley Sees Repeal Victory.

New York, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley, in a telegram to Frank H. Duffy, chairman of the Democratic state committee of Vermont, expressed confidence today that state will go for repeal in Tuesday's voting.

Acting in his capacity as chairman of the Democratic national committee, Farley wired:

"The people of America are looking to Vermont to join the other 24 states in favor of repeal and I am sure they will not be disappointed.

"Please make every effort to get every vote possible to the polls. I am sure that your workers will be joined by thousands of Republicans and independents who are thoroughly in sympathy with the movement and that we can count upon them for wholehearted support."

WITNESSES FOR READ DUE WEDNESDAY IN CLAIRE WINDSOR SUIT

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Court evidence to finish out the other two sides of the Claire Windsor-Alfred Read Jr.-Marian Read "love triangle," involving the latter's $100,000 suit for alienation of her former husband's affections, was marshaled today in Oakland and Los Angeles.

The handsome Oakland stock broker took advantage of the three day court holiday to visit Oakland, his home city, and arrange to bring several witnesses here for resumption of the trial Wednesday. He said they would testify his love for his former wife was dead before he met the winsome motion picture actress.

Attorneys for Mrs. Read, silent as to their plans, said they believed the numerous love letters written by Read and Miss Windsor, which were introduced into evidence along with the actress' testimony last week, had greatly benefited their case.

Miss Windsor, sole witness so far, testified she was in love with Read at one time, but said the romance had faded.

HUTTON ASSERTS HE HAS NRA OF HIS OWN MAKING

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—David Hutton, singer husband of Sister Aimee McPherson Hutton, today said he had an NRA of his own—No reconciliation with Aimee. He said one of his troubles was that he seemed to have married Angelus temple.

"She talks too much," said Hutton in reply to a question about a purporting reconciliation while lounging in his room in a quiet hotel here. "What does she think this is, a game of checkers?

"I made the first move, didn't I when I filed the divorce action? It's her move now."

Outwardly indignant, Hutton with his manager, Harry C. Brandon, eluded a crowd at the station last night. Loosening a flood of grievance, including his wife's observation that "there were singers better than him" he blamed the evangelist, here for a series of gospel meetings, for creating the impression that a reconciliation was in prospect.

"She has been talking reconciliation ever since I filed the divorce suit," he said. "When I married Aimee I married the whole Angelus Temple, Brother Arthur, Sister Hattie Jordan and the Bible school. Why the elders of the temple even told her whether to get married."

Hutton, who came here to hear "a good preacher," planned to leave Monday or Tuesday for the World's Fair at Chicago.

BLAMES CHICAGO GANG FOR HOLDUP AT CRYSTAL LAKE

Sheriff Lester Edinger of McHenry county blamed Chicago gangsters for the robbery early yesterday of the Crystal Lodge roadhouse at Crystal Lake. He said the robbers are members of a gang which has specialized in roadhouse holdups in northern Illinois and lower Wisconsin. He does not believe the Touhy gang was responsible.

Mrs. Louise Rich, owner of the roadhouse and divorced wife of Scotty Rich, formerly connected with the Aurora race track, said the robbers wore handkerchiefs over their faces. They obtained nearly $300 from the cash register and searched a dozen male guests, Mrs. Rich said. The patrons were mostly young folks and she said their losses were not much.

"The robbers worked swiftly and were not in the place more than eight or nine minutes," Mrs. Rich added. "The spoke nicely to the patrons and no one was alarmed."

Kansas State Treasurer Freed from Jail on Bond

Topeka, Kas., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Tom Boyd, state treasurer, charged with using the mails to defraud and conspiracy in connection with the state bond forgery scandal, today was released from the county jail on $25,000 bond. The bond, signed by friends of the treasurer, was approved by Judge George T. McDermott of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Four Killed, Including Two Women, as Train Hits Auto

North Baltimore, O., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Four persons were killed today when the Capital Limited, Baltimore and Ohio passenger train, struck their automobile at a crossing. They were Grover McCartney, 48; his wife, Sarah, 45; their daughter, Bell, 19, and Carey McCartney, 41, brother of Grover.

ENDS LIFE WITH SHOTGUN.

BUTLER ASSAILS DRY LAW AS FOE OF FOUNDATIONS

Urges Forming Council on Foreign Relations.

Southampton, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler declared today retention of the Eighteenth amendment "would have done for the federal form of government of the United States what the Nazis are doing for the federal form of government in Germany."

The president of Columbia university, speaking at the Parrish Art museum, pleaded for establishment of a council of foreign relations to enable our government to "negotiate in responsible and definite fashion" with other nations.

"No one of the ten actual amendments to the constitution," he said, "has touched the foundations of the form of government itself except the eighteenth, and that, fortunately, is about to be wiped off the statute books by the substantially unanimous consent of all the states."

Sees Police Power Danger.

"The Eighteenth amendment did challenge the foundations on which the American form of government rests, and had it been permitted to remain indefinitely in the constitution it would have been the beginning of a radical alteration in our form of government, first by weakening and then by destroying its federal form and steadily concentrating and unifying the police power at Washington.

"Happily, the American people have recognized this danger before it is too late, and the Eighteenth amendment, with all its appanage of public and private immorality of lawlessness and of crime, is about to go, where it belongs, into what Grover Cleveland so felicitously described as innocuous desuetude."

Nations "Interdependent."

On economic relations, Dr. Butler, in reviewing possible constitutional changes affecting our election practices as well as foreign commercial intercourse, said:

"We are each and all of us absolutely interdependent with other nations great and small. Our purely national problems and the purely national problems of other peoples grow steadily less numerous and steadily less important.

"Just as no man can live for himself alone, so the time has come when no nation can live for itself alone.

"Every attempt at national isolation, whether made in Europe, in Asia, or on one of the American continents, is merely a first step toward national suicide."

Wants Council Formed.

Either by establishment of a council of foreign relations, composed of members of both legislative branches and the secretary of state, or in some other way, he said, "it is most important that the capacity of our government to negotiate in responsible and definite fashion with other governments be greatly strengthened and improved."

Regarding election practices Dr. Butler said it "must be confessed" that the "intellectual level of the senate has gone down very considerably" during the the last generation and expressed belief that "the breakdown of the nation-wide party system has also tended to lower the tone and standard of congressional system."

Nurse Killed by Train When She Drives Into It

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Miss Florence Tower, 26, a nurse at the Ypsilanti State hospital, was decapitated when she drove her car into the side of a speeding southbound Ann Arbor freight train during a rainstorm shortly before midnight last night. The accident was discovered when a railroad detective riding in the caboose of a northbound train two hours later, saw the overturned car on the right of way and found the body. Miss Tower's home was in Carson, N. D.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A JEFFERSONIAN SPEAKS OUT.

The outspoken and vigorous speech at the convention of the American Bar association delivered by Senator McCarran of Nevada indicates that the traditional doctrines of Democracy still have alert defenders in the party. Senator McCarran evidently has not been carried away by enthusiasm for the administration program for recovery and is not satisfied with its declared limitation to an emergency. His Jeffersonian principles cannot stomach a centralization and expansion of the powers of government which as he says Hamilton himself would not have dreamed of nor even the masterful egotism of Jackson ventured upon. "Under the recent legislation," he declared, "the sower, the gardener and the harvester must look to a centralized government in Washington for codes, rules, licenses and regulations" and "these acts and others of their kind, all couched under the declaration of 'national emergency,' constitute an avalanche that sweeps away the structures fought for and reared by the great Jefferson and his adherents."

This protest was inevitable if there survives anything of the principles to which the Democratic party, party of personal liberty, of state rights, of the Jeffersonian doctrine that the best government for freemen is the least government. There has been at least enough left of this body of doctrine to induce the limitation of the program explicitly and to base the defense of it upon the special condition of emergency. But Senator McCarran is not satisfied with such qualifications and reserves, and we shall be surprised if a large proportion of his party will not increasingly feel his alarm. Certainly experience does not encourage a confident expectation that powers once acquired will be willingly surrendered. The definition of emergency is vague and its application elastic, while a program which necessarily brings into being an army of administrators has built a machine for its perpetuation which will not easily give ground or sign away its powers and privileges.

This is the predicament that not only Jefferson but even his great political adversaries acknowledged, and men of both parties in all walks of life who are not carried away by the new conceptions of economic order must share the concern which Senator McCarran has faithfully and courageously declared.

The danger within the administration is in the influence of partisans of government control and of what lacks only the name of state socialism, who have no respect for the principles and truths of political and economic experience which the American people for nearly a century and a half have cherished to their own great good. It is an astonishing phenomenon that this force has suddenly arrived in authority. The campaign which elected Roosevelt developed none of the proposals now in process of painful experiment. The profound issues now raised made no appearance in the party appeal. Therefore no mandate exists for it in the popular decision. The situation is unique in our history and its far reaching implications must be frankly confronted. All the nation is earnestly desirous of the relief of unemployment and the revival of the economic energies upon which prosperity for all depends. But all the more necessary is it that we know what we are about, that we examine not merely the instant effects but the eventual consequences of projects and policies which have been presented without submission to the debate and decision of the body politic, and which, moreover, challenge most of the basic principles of American economic and political philosophy.

BEER, MUSIC, AND LIVING.

Arthur Pryor, one of our leading bandmasters, has some cheering news. He says the return of beer is bringing back not only the beer garden but the old fashioned band concert.

We do not tend to reckless optimism but if Mr. Pryor is right and beer is to restore at least a reasonable amount of the music of the pre-jazz period, folks of middle age and older will be grateful. The beer garden programs contained, of course, a good deal of musical trash but also not a few selections from the lighter and more romantic operatic and symphonic classics. These were good music, needing no apology.

Mr. Pryor's report raises a question which the musical critic might join with the social analyst to explore. Is beer a specific for the nervous craving to which jazz ministered? Is it going to slow down the national tempo and restore rhythms which are deep and sustaining instead of nervously exciting if not irritating? Or are we confusing cause and effect? Perhaps we want beer and the older musical fare because we are tired of the unrelieved incitements of jazz and the jazz age. Something in us may be craving slower rhythms and larger, simpler designs because they are more restful and secure. There is a limit to the human capacity for stimulants and the régime of prohibition which did not prohibit must have reached it. We could hardly go further than it took us and now we are turning back.

It may not be merely fanciful to find an even larger hint in this event. The present flux of ideas in the world, the strident challenges of everything hitherto accepted, is not comfortable to most of mankind, which has always sought peace and security. Perhaps an era of what Arnold called concentration is beginning to show dimly in the midst of the uproar. How far disintegration and new experiment will go nobody can know, but it must have an end, though it will not leave us unchanged. "The old order changeth, giving place to new," yet the new has elements as old as man's story.

OUR NEGLECTED CIVIL LIBERTIES.

Russians who never knew anything but tyranny exchanged czarism for communism. Germans who had been brought up on the divine right of the kaiser and the sacred duty of obedience to his will found it easy to accept the divine right of Hitler and the duty of obedience to his will.

It will be harder to implant a tyranny upon Americans, who have been brought up under a more wholesome tradition but not as hard as it should be. Americans sense their liberties but they do not know them. The fault lies almost entirely with the public schools, and the Chicago schools are no exception.

On Feb. 27, 1929, a "Course of Study in the Social Sciences" was adopted for pupils of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades. The outline has much to commend it, but the fact cannot be overlooked that scarcely any mention is made, even indirectly, of the liberties which are the birthright of an American and no emphasis whatsoever is placed upon them.

How nearly completely the first ten amendments and the fourteenth are neglected in our schools is suggested by such references as the manual contains to instruction in the constitution. One of the standards of attainment for the seventh grade is described as: "Pupils should know the main features of the constitution; departments of government; equal rights to all citizens; means and methods of amending the constitution." The phrase "equal rights to all citizens" can, perhaps, mean the inalienable liberties of every citizen, but it is astonishing that if that is what was meant it was not so stated. At another point the manual suggests that the "pupils should understand the necessity of obeying the constitution and all its amendments," but here the context indicates beyond all doubt that the reference is to the eighteenth amendment. At another point there is a mention of the writ of habeas corpus. Beyond this wholly inadequate treatment there is nothing to suggest to the prospective American citizen that he has civil liberties and that they are his most sacred possession.

The neglect might have made small difference a hundred years ago when the population was small and homogeneous and liberty was in the air; it is vastly more serious today when children of all the races of the world, many of them removed by only a generation from old-world tyrannies, are coming into the schools. It can safely be said that many of the evils, political and social, from which we are suffering today derive directly from the failure of our schools in the past to teach the liberties and the corresponding obligations of citizenship. If the 1929 manual may be taken as typical of what is currently being taught as "civics" to American children the end of the American experiment in ordered liberty may be expected as a matter of course.

MISAPPLIED MONEY.

A survey of the program of highway construction announced by the state director of public works as approved by the federal officials is not encouraging. The principle which if followed in allotting expenditure would give the maximum of public benefit and the minimum of waste has not been, it seems to us, sufficiently applied. Money and effort will be scattered and wasted without giving more employment than a proper plan would give. The most urgent needs of the greatest number of road users will be sacrificed.

Since public funds, even under present lavish planning, have limits, the first concern of a construction program should be the axial highways. We have already spent millions upon roads which carry so little traffic that they can never return in service what has been spent upon them and will be spent if they are kept up. The same money spent upon the improvement by the widening and, where needed, the elevation of main traveled thoroughfares would have brought greatly needed facilities to a maximum number of road users.

There is no conflict here between urban and rural users. It is as much to the advantage of the latter as the former that main traveled roads be developed to their proper capacities. The waste of money upon the less needed roads penalizes the rural population as well as the urban.

Nothing is more obvious in our road system than the need of centers of population and commerce for main highways adequate to care for the large traffic which is now impeded through lack of them. The elevation of some of these axial highways is essential to safe and expeditious handling of traffic and travel. It is not the cost of such improvements that is high, but the cost of many improvements which are less needed and will never make proper returns.

Editorial of the Day

NEW TECHNIQUE FOR GANGSTERS.

[Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph.]

When bootlegging received its hardest blow in the advent of legalized beer the men who had grown rich on illicit sales of liquor had to think up some other ways of exercising their habitual violence in abstracting money from helpless victims.

One method they have adopted apparently on a wholesale plan is that of hijacking trucks loaded with valuable merchandise. Some of this kind of work has been going on for a long time, but the frequency of such holdups has increased alarmingly of late.

Just the other day hijackers stopped a truck on the border line between Indiana and Illinois and threw the drivers out and told them to be on their way. The pair of bandits then drove the truck away toward Chicago, loaded with $3,500 worth of butter and eggs. The truck had made its way from a town in Massachusetts, picking up crates of produce at various stops. The owners and drivers of the truck were helpless even to get their truck back again. They were left stripped. This sort of highwayman operation has the old James boys method of more romantic days beaten in a thousand ways, both as to the size of the loot and the ease with which the "job" is performed. Truck drivers who will hereafter go well armed and get the drop on their assailants, filling them full of lead, will be doing a public service in discouraging hijacking.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT'S THE UNCERTAINTY nowadays that is the most annoying thing in life. Coming back from Canada I heroically gave the hostess at Strathroy two bottles of imported Scotch, one bottle of sherry, and a bottle of Benedictine, because I didn't want to tell a lie to the custom house man at Port Huron when he asked me: "Have you any alcoholic liquor in your car?" But he never asked me; he took my word for it. And I was so disappointed. When I tell custom officers the truth I love to have them doubt me and peek and pry into my baggage and look under the back seat and the floor and in the battery box. It's a human frailty to take great pleasure in displaying one's stern integrity to the doubtful. But that custom house officer at Port Huron never gave me a chance to show how sweetly truthful I was. It took all the joy out of my homecoming. Anyhow, if I had tried to sneak in a pint of Scotch he would probably have been all through the car like a weasel. Those fellows don't have to ask you if you've got liquor. They can smell it a mile away.

THE OLD COACH ROAD.

On the old coach road to Smolletville
Is a covered bridge and a leaning hill
Where a phantom coach called The Baying Hound
Treads on the wind above the ground.

A brick house shuttered and cupolaed
Where Electa Ulett, ninety-three,
Faces a bright eternity.

For years she has gone each day at noon
To put on her mantle of rich maroon,
A shirred silk bonnet . . . scarf of wool,
In a room where a voice said: "You're a fool!

"Theophilus Lee bought a gun today,
He'll use it the minute you go away
To marry a coachman in deerskin shirts;
You with your braid-bound, fringed hoopskirts."

But Electa went each day at noon
To put on her mantle of rich maroon.
The day of threshing at half past four
A shot crashed out through the Ulett wood
And the coachman slumped down where he stood.

But small Electa, then eighteen,
Said: "Bullets shall not come between!
For love is master, not a slave,
And life a seasonal tidal wave."

And Peter Stivers at Prescott Ridge
Says every year when the wheat is gold,
The cornbins full and the live stock sold,
Electa dresses like a bride
And makes her hired folk stand aside
When she climbs to the cupola at high noon
To put on her mantle of rich maroon.

She walks down the road to Smolletville,
Through the covered bridge near the leaning hill,
Where the Phantom Coach called The Baying Hound
Treads on the wind above the ground.

CAME A LETTER yesterday with the slogan boldly printed on the envelope, "Friends of Germany.". Another proof of this changing world. During the late guerre if a man proclaimed he was a friend of Germany the mob would chase him east until his hat floated. Remember the story of the fat woman on the street car who stood all over another passenger's feet until he meekly asked her not to crowd him so closely. The woman turned on the man and shrieked, "Why, you pro-German!" and the man had to jump off the street car and run for his life.

RHEUMATISM AND HEART DISEASE.

THERE is great interest in the prevention of heart disease—as there should be. A worthwhile effort to that end consists largely in work with children, since the foundations of heart troubles are usually laid in childhood. These disorders, as a rule, do not cause many symptoms until the years of middle life, and the great majority of the fatalities from them come in the old age periods; but the basic damage is done in youth.

The principal disorders of childhood that are to be prevented if possible, and are to be well cared for, are: Rheumatism, growing pains, and St. Vitus dance. Rheumatism includes rheumatic pains in the muscles, as well as those in the joints. Rheumatic pains in the shoulders, arms, wrists, and hands are more dangerous than similar pains in the legs and feet.

It is recognized that acute inflammatory rheumatism belongs in the group of contagious diseases, but it has few points of resemblance to smallpox and other forms of contagious disease. It rarely spreads from patient to patient, there is seldom more than one case in a family, and the infectivity is very low. Yet although we know that infantile paralysis and cerebrospinal meningitis have similar peculiarities we do not hesitate to class them among the contagious diseases.

The cause of rheumatism is probably one of the streptococci and the portal of entry is the throat. There is generally a ten day interval between the sore throat and the attack of rheumatic heart disease. Therefore children with sore throat should have good care not only during the attack but for two weeks thereafter. Children who are subject to sore throat and rheumatic pain should be protected especially against exposure to scarlet fever. Exposure to diphtheria ranks below exposure to scarlet fever in danger to the heart. Measles ranks still lower.

When we seriously undertake to lessen the prevalence of heart disease we will have something akin to a periodic physical examination of children as to the condition of the heart and as to a history of sore throats and rheumatic pains. This will enable us to pick out those who are most prone to heart trouble in later life. Many of those will be pale or sallow, emotional, and nervous. This is the heart disease build in childhood. Many of them will give evidence of abnormality in the tonsils and adenoids.

The measures of protection will consist, among other things, in seeing that they wear good shoes and are feeling warmly clad. If their feet get wet they should change their shoes and stockings. The same advice is given as to wet clothing. They should not sit in schoolrooms that have cold floors. If they get a sore throat, rheumatic pains, or growing pains they should have care that is based on the heart possibilities rather than on the present symptoms.

MILK AND MILK.

M. P. W. writes: Is milk fattening?

REPLY.

You can get the question answered either way. In the milk propaganda now being spread over the country you will find that both sides are being pushed. If the chief demand is from those who want to put on weight, milk is recommended. The ladies who wish to remain slender are recommended to drink milk. Milk is a rather dilute solution and suspension of fats, proteins, carbohydrates, minerals, and vitamins. It is easily digested and absorbed. If it is the sole source of food supply and is consumed in moderation the weight will be reduced. The same can be said of bread and water. If it is eaten in fair or considerable quantities along with an ample allowance of other food the result is usually an increase in weight. The same is true of bread and water. Whether milk causes an increase in weight or a decrease depends on how it is used.

MAY BE MILD SCURVY.

O. J. writes: What causes a 5 year old boy to sweat profusely when he sleeps? He often has a head cold and he sometimes has a cough.

REPLY.

The probability is that he has a mild scurvy. The foods that cure mild scurvy are raw tomatoes and cabbage, tomato juice, and all kinds of fresh fruits and fruit juices.

VACANT BUILDING.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—[Friend of the People.]—What can be done about a vacant house which is advertised "for sale" next door to my home on Troy street? The windows and sidewalk are broken, the inside has been torn up, and it is dangerous to allow children inside. In addition, the back yard and garage are littered with refuse and garbage.

J. S.

Inspection of the premises reveals that the windows are broken, rear doors open, and interior of building partly wrecked. Notice has been sent to the owner to close up all doors and window openings and secure door of shed on rear of lot.

JOHN E. ERICSSON,
Commissioner of Buildings.

CONTRACTS.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Three men draw a contract to operate a small business. 1. Can this contract be broken by two of them without court order? This is not a corporation. 2. Could you advise me which is the best way to break such an agreement? E. H.

1. Obviously, any party can break any agreement. If you mean to ask whether you can break it without having to pay damages, the answer is no unless you have some legal ground.

2. In order to set aside the agreement without paying damages you would have to have the co-operation of all the parties or a legal ground releasing you.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on problems of farm management, financing or governmental regulations sent to this department must be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

S. S. T. asks: What is there to prevent a man owning several farms from reducing his wheat acreage on one farm, collecting his government bonus, and then increasing his wheat acreage on another farm?

Answer: The government proposes that every farmer signing an application in which he agrees to reduce acreage shall become a member of a county wheat control association. This in turn names a committee to pass on every contract. Each application calls for signatures of farmers who say they know the farm listed in it, and can verify the report. The committee is also bound to publish in one or more county newspapers the full list of contract signers and their acreage. It is assumed that neighbors will report violations of the printed list to the committee, and that the committee will be responsible for not permitting a farmer to grow more wheat than he signs for. The contract stipulates all this for such a farmer as you mention.

M. C. W. asks: I live in Iowa and own a farm in North Dakota. How do I apply for the government bonus without going up there?

Answer: Instruct your tenant to secure an application blank and other forms provided by the government from the county agricultural agent in the county seat of the county in which your farm lies. If he can give the information asked for in the application to those in charge in the agent's office, he can sign it. When the contract is ready it can be sent to you for signature. If your tenant is unable to do this, he should send the blanks to you for filling out.

Mrs. B. C. asks: We have grown no wheat on our farm for five years; this year's corn and bean crops are almost complete failures. Will I be allowed to plant wheat by the government? Will have to grow wheat next year to pay taxes.

Answer: Yes, you can grow all the wheat you want to, but cannot share in the government bonus payments.

A. P. asks: I own 40 acres and work some more land. I understand the government will pay me for leaving it idle. How is this done?

Answer: Unless you have been growing wheat on your farm the last 3 years or more you could not qualify for the bonus from the government. Even then you would only be required to reduce your wheat acreage by 15 per cent.

NRA QUESTION BOX

(Compiled by the Chicago Association of Commerce.)

QUESTION—I am a short hour waitress working three hours a day, six days a week. I get 28 cents an hour and I am charged for my luncheons. I was not charged for luncheons prior to signing the code, neither was this system in effect before June 16, 1933. What is the ruling on this?

ANSWER—Twenty-eight cents an hour is correct. However, you should not be charged for luncheons, as Gen. Johnson's ruling states specifically that charges can be made for meals only when such was the practice before June 16, 1933. In the event that such was the practice, meals are deductible at not to exceed 25 cents a meal and $3 a week.

QUESTION—Do railroad men come under the code?

ANSWER—Under a special ruling handed down by the legal department of the NRA, railroads and railroad workers are exempted from the classes of industry and labor included under the industrial recovery act. Railroad workers should benefit very largely, however, from other legislation and from coördinating work now being conducted by the government.

QUESTION—Do all hospital employés, such as floormen, housemen, maids, and laundry workers, come under the NRA? Are they entitled to the same wages that they received two years ago and previous to the time when they had their wages cut 10 per cent?

ANSWER—Hospital employés do not come under the NRA, since hospitals are classified as public institutions and are accordingly being exempted from the operation of this act.

WHAT MAKES AIR FRESH!

Chicago, Aug. 31.—"Constant Reader" in the Voice of the People this morning expresses the opinion that the summer season is free from flu epidemics because the windows are open in warm weather and plenty of fresh air is allowed to enter the building. He overlooks the fact that the spread of influenza is much more serious in armies camped in the field, and even on islands where primitive people live in tents or trees or rude huts or out of doors the year round. It can be easily shown that this disease is the least serious among those portions of the population which are the best housed and live indoors.

We would indeed be fortunate if we could control the spread of influenza as easily as "Constant Reader" seems to think. This letter again demonstrates the fact that it takes fully one generation for the demonstrated facts of science to filter down to the public. It was in 1905 that Karl Flugge conducted the classic cabinet experiments and exploded the old fresh air theories. He produced all the symptoms supposed to be caused by bad air in a tight cabinet containing human subjects and then caused these symptoms to disappear by modifying the temperature, humidity, and air motion without introducing any so-called fresh air. Leonard Hill at the London Hospital Medical college in England reproduced and confirmed all of these experiments and definitely laid to rest the old fresh air fetish.

Freshness is not a term to be applied to air. We can properly apply the word "fresh" to butter or milk, or any other organic substance that deteriorates with age. But the air we are using today is the same air that circulated around the pyramids 4,000 years ago.

Outside air, which some people still think of as "fresh," is usually not as good as the treated air inside a building. In air conditioning we still use a considerable portion of this outside air, not, however, because it is good, but because it is cheap.

If "Constant Reader" will investigate he will find that thousands of people today are obtaining relief from hay fever, asthma, and even the common cold by living as much of the time as possible in a cooled, conditioned atmosphere indoors.

We should like to mention that August and September, contrary to "Constant Reader's" opinion, are usually very hot months in this latitude. Heat should be measured by the wet bulb thermometer, not by the dry bulb.

One other point is worth considering. "Constant Reader" believes that air cooling is not essential, as "there are only two months of extreme heat in the entire year." He should consider that a man can freeze to death in only one day of cold weather. And one day of torrid heat or one sultry, sleepless night tips the balance between life and death for many helpless infants or for those who are aged or infirm.

Air conditioning, which includes both heating and cooling, will be an essential part of almost every building occupied by man in this latitude in the very near future. DR. E. VERNON HILL.

THE WAGES OF SKIN.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 29.—We, the models of the Streets of Paris "life class," wish to correct a statement made by your prolific writer, James O'Donnell Bennett, in last Sunday's TRIBUNE. Mr. Bennett gives the models the rosy salaries of 25 to 30 dollars a week under, if you please, the grand and glorious NRA. Know this, Mr. Bennett, that we earn 12 to 18 dollars a week—counting extra hours and the gaping public. Our usual salaries are not 50 dollars weekly, either. The rates at the Art institute are a dollar an hour. Paris or the model has no conception of what the NRA is doing for them—for their benefit, that is. They never heard of it at Paris!

NET GAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—In regard to the printing of colored currency in order to encourage spending as proposed by Dr. Arthur Dahlberg and ably reported in your paper of Aug. 27, I wish respectfully to suggest that Dr. Dahlberg, in casting about in his mind for a suitable currency, has overlooked the possibilities of the commodity, fish. If fish were substituted entirely for printed currency its nature would act as a greater stimulus to spending than would the colored currency, which is to be merely dated so as to suggest deterioration in an effete and ladylike manner. A FISHERMAN'S FEUD.

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 30.—The commonwealth of Massachusetts made a liberal appropriation to send the fishing schooner Gertrude Thebaud as her representative to A Centry of Progress.

Now as a result of a feud with the Bluenose of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, over the docking rights on the Fair grounds, which the Bluenose is not using, the Massachusetts representative is kept at the Navy pier, miles from the Fair, while the dock lies idle at the Fair and Bluenose carries passengers for hire—technically in violation of the coastwise act. CAPE CODER.

THRUST.

CHILE'S FARMERS DEFEAT SCHEME TO EMPLOY IDLE

Not Fitted for Work, Their Argument.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 3.—An attempt to foist 50,000 idle upon Chilean farmers failed here because of energetic action by the farmers, supported by the National Agricultural society.

The government was eager to dispose of the last remnants of what had been a large idle army. It began to distribute quotas among the farmers, especially those in the south. The government contended that the farmers needed more help, that the idle would provide cheap labor and that, in any case, the men would be fed.

Farmers Open Offensive.

But the state reckoned without the farmers, who had had previous experience with the unemployed. A general agricultural offensive was launched against the invading "workers." An ultimatum was dispatched to the government that the farmers would not be responsible for what might happen to "tranquil rural life" if such a policy was maintained. In several cases the idle were forcibly driven off farms.

The farmers' objections were outlined in a communication sent to Gov. Julio Bustamente of Santiago, head of the unemployment bureau, by President Mauricio Larrain of the National Agricultural society.

"Idle Too Urbanized."

"They are too urbanized," he said, "and are continually craving for movies and other forms of entertainment which present farm workers can do without."

He said that not 5 per cent of the idle who had been forced upon the farmers had any agricultural knowledge or were able in any way to engage in farming.

Larrain said the greatest peril of all was the many radical, anti-social elements within the ranks of the idle. Farmers, he pointed out, were having political troubles for the first time in their experience. He cited one case in which police intervened when communists established a "headquarters" on a farming estate.

"The germ of anarchy has been planted in rural communities hitherto noted for their staunch patriotism and tranquillity," the communication concluded.

MILK TRUCK HITS CREW IN STREET; WORKER KILLED

One workman was killed and another seriously injured yesterday afternoon when a Bowman Dairy company truck struck a Chicago Surface Lines crew making street repairs at Ingleside and South Chicago avenues.

Thomas Peronic, 37 years old, 3225 Princeton avenue, was the workman killed, and Joseph Galich, 42 years old, 3214 Normal avenue, was injured. The driver, Leslie Lockwood, 2128 East 80th street, was arrested after members of the repair crew charged that he drove through a red warning flag they had set up in the street.

Two youths were killed early yesterday when the motorcycle on which both were riding skidded and struck a light pole on the outer drive in Lincoln park opposite Diversey parkway. The victims were Reinhard Haasler, 22 years old, 818 Aldine avenue, and Naghew Tibor, 21 years old, 2331 Greenview avenue.

David Herzog, 9 years old, 4714 North Lavergne avenue, was killed last night at Milwaukee avenue and Grimm street, by an automobile driven by Miss Elizabeth Mayer, 24 years old, 4752 North Kilpatrick avenue. Miss Mayer was held for the inquest.

These deaths and three others yesterday increased the traffic toll in Cook county since the first of the year to 693. The other victims:

Iver Johnson, 34 years old, 5542 South Morgan street. Fatally injured in a collision at 60th and Morgan streets.

Arthur Anderson, 21 years old, 1910 Grant street, Evanston. Died in St. Francis' hospital, Evanston. A motorcycle he was riding collided with an automobile Saturday night.

End Convention

The Polish Legion of World War Veterans yesterday concluded a two day national convention in Cicero with the placing of a wreath in honor of their dead comrades in front of the Cicero city hall. The ceremony was begun with a parade of veterans and various local civic and church organizations. Preceding the placing of the wreath speeches were made by Anton J. Majciejewski, town supervisor of Cicero; Capt. M. Glod, national commander of the Polish Legion of American Veterans; John Stacek, state commander of the veterans; Jerry Veterna, town clerk of Cicero, and Stanley Halick, convention chairman.

U. S. TO LAUNCH NEW WARSHIP NEXT WEDNESDAY

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The thirteenth of eighteen 10,000-ton cruisers the United States was authorized to build under the treaty of London, the Minneapolis is being prepared for launching at the Philadelphia navy yard next Wednesday.

Miss Laura Newton of Minneapolis, whose father, Walter H. Newton, applied the first rivet at the time the keel was laid in June, 1931, has been invited to christen the vessel. Newton at that time was secretary to President Hoover.

The Minneapolis, which is 578 feet long and has a beam of 61 feet 10 inches, will be the first vessel to be launched at the navy yard since 1924.

Nine eight-inch guns, eight anti-aircraft guns, a catapult for airplanes and other equipment and machinery is to be installed at the navy yard after the launching. It is expected she will be ready to be commissioned by next April.

Thomas B. Mauer, a member of the Minnesota bar, has been invited to represent the city of Minneapolis at the launching and representatives of the federal and state governments will be present.

SALVADOR NOTE TO U. S. ATTACKS TREATIES OF 1922

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A note asserting that the Central American treaties drawn up at Washington in 1922 are invalid will be dispatched shortly to the governments of a number of countries including the United States. The treaties specify that the nations shall not recognize a régime gaining power by force.

The contention, which was approved by the national assembly yesterday, is based on the ground that the treaties never were submitted to the league of nations as stipulated in one of the clauses.

Earlier reports of a move by El Salvador to denounce the Central American peace treaty were received without surprise in Washington. It was pointed out that the United States and Caribbean signatories to the pact had refused to recognize the government of Gen. Maximiliano Martinez, who ousted the previous administration in December, 1931.

4 YOUNG MEN HELD IN FATAL STREET BATTLE

Rudolph Zelinski, 26 years old, of the Howard hotel, Hoyne and North avenue, died early yesterday in St. Elizabeth's hospital of a fractured skull received a few hours before in a street fight outside the home of Miss Elizabeth Spiegel, 2722 North Western avenue.

Police are holding four alleged participants in the fight, John White, 23 years old, 2450 Diversey boulevard; Roy Swanson, 25 years old, 4624 North McVickers avenue; Bernard Stevens, 23 years old, 1441 North Washtenaw avenue, and Nick Tummilo, 23 years old, who lived with Stevens.

White and Swanson left a party in Miss Spiegel's home to escort two young women home. Zelinski, Stevens, and Tummilo drew up in an automobile, and the fight started, police were told, when White and Stevens objected to their speaking to the young women.

Italy to Invite Two Youths from U. S. to Air Academy

ROME, Sept. 3.—(AP)—As a remembrance of Air Marshal Italo Balbo's squadron flight to Chicago, the government has decided to appoint two young Italians living in America to the Royal Air academy. Selection of the young men, who, if they complete their courses successfully, will receive commissions in the aviation corps, has been left to the bureau for contact with Italians abroad. This bureau is a division of the foreign ministry.

Poles Bound for Fair in Sloop Sail from Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Lieut. A. Bohomolec, Polish cavalry officer, and two companions, J. Witowski and J. Swiechowski, sailed for New York today on the last lap of a voyage from Gdynia, Poland, to the United States in a 25 foot sloop. The men plan to attend A Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago.

AUTO CRASHES INTO ENGINE OF TRAIN; 2 KILLED

Sycamore, Ill., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Two youths were killed and two others were injured tonight when their automobile, traveling at an estimated speed of 60 miles an hour, crashed into a standing freight locomotive at the Main street crossing of the Chicago Great Western railroad. The gates were not down, according to witnesses.

The dead are William Swanberg, 17 years old, son of George Swanberg, director here for the Pure Milk association, and Ralph Wilkinson, 18. George Vosburg, 17, and Gerald Scott, also 17, were injured, the former probably fatally. All but Wilkinson were high school students. He was graduated from high school in June.

Gen. Machado and Three Aids Arrive in Montreal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 3.—Gen. Gerardo Machado, deposed and exiled president of Cuba, arrived here today from Nassau, Bahama. He was accompanied by Dr. Octavio Averhoff, former secretary of the treasury; Eugene Molinet, former secretary of agriculture, and Manuel Mireno, Machado's aid-de-camp. The four registered at the Mount Royal hotel.

2 Heyworth Men Seized on Charges of Arson

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Orten Powell, 24, and Joseph Van Valey, 32, both of Heyworth, Ill., are in the McLean county jail here today, arrested on charges of arson in connection with a fire which destroyed the Luther Schoeffel building at Heyworth. Incendiarism was suspected by Fred L. Ewert, Heyworth fire chief.

Chicago Boy Drowns When He Falls from Boat

William Park, 16 years old, of 311 West 106th street, was drowned yesterday in Lake Marie, two miles west of Antioch, in Lake county, when he fell from a rowboat. He was standing in the boat when the backwash of a passing motorboat caused his boat to rock, throwing him into the water.

Flyer Killed When Plane Falls at Legion Air Show

Greenfield, Ia., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Cliff Burnham, 36, of Omaha, Neb., was killed here today when the plane he was flying in an American Legion air show crashed.

JAPAN REVEALED PLAYING A GAME OF JEKYLL-HYDE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 3.—Japan today is playing Jekyll-Hyde in its relations with the United States. At the same time it is sending good will missions to America and mailing a flood of inspired pro-American literature abroad, it is picturing the United States to the people here as a dreadful foe. This attitude is likened by some to that of a man who, while assuring a neighbor of his friendship, sicks his dog on the neighbor.

Japanese apologists give the excuse that the anti-American propaganda which is deluging the country is for local consumption—to have the huge naval appropriations passed in the diet in January or to increase newspaper circulations. Such propaganda, say these apologists, is like a barking dog. But what true adherents of a policy of peace on the Pacific are asking is whether Japan's barking dog knows that it isn't supposed to bite.

Charge U. S. Is "Plotting."

Coincident with a genuine desire in influential quarters here to revamp American-Japanese trade and political relations on a more friendly basis, within recent weeks there has been a flood of "news" of the propaganda type purporting to reveal secret American activities.

Anything pretending to reveal nefarious operations by the United States that can be tied up in some way with the Pacific area or Japan is pounced upon.

At present the "naval base" story is a great favorite. One of the latest is that the American navy is on the point of setting up a naval establishment on the shore of Magdalena bay, Mexico—an interesting counterpart to the story spread in the United States a few years ago that Japan was seeking to do the very same thing.

Called Treaty Violation.

One of the several widely circulated Tokio papers that is giving sensational prominence to this story declares that such a project, if carried out, would be a grave violation of the Washington naval treaty. Another asserts that it would be a grave menace to the "peace in the Pacific."

Another naval base scare, liberally published in sensational dressing, is that the American navy had all but concluded secret preparations for establishing a base for itself on the coast of Fukien, China.

And the spy endemic is always present. During the air defense maneuvers over Tokio last month, several Americans were accused of "spying" for no other apparent reason than that one of them happened to be carrying a camera, against which there is no law or regulation in Tokio.

Half a dozen other "revelations" and charges have been made in the past few months.

These included the publication of what was purported to be the full text of a secret treaty between the American and Chinese governments in the Tokio Asahi, one of the most reputable papers in the country, and the holding up of Mrs. Virginia Teusler Crow, daughter of one of the leading Americans in Japan and wife of a secretary of the British embassy, no less than four times as she motored to and from her summer home in Hayama, a fortified area, and Tokio.

INCOME TAX WEEK OBSERVED BY MOTION PICTURE COLONISTS

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Federal officials spent a busy week imposing income tax liens against motion picture notables, each denoting an amount in dispute between the taxpayer and the government, which may be adjusted shortly.

Those named and the amounts are: Betty Compson, $1,092; Lillian Bond, $633; Eric von Stroheim, $544; Bette Davis, $375; Harvey Thew [writer], $229; Dr. Arthur Rodzinski [orchestra director], $301; Olga Baclanova, $79; Matt Moore, $144; Jack Mulhall, $80; Mrs. Mulhall, $101; Joan Gale, $50.

BRITISH LABOR UP IN AIR; PONDERS 'ROOSEVELT DEAL'

Trades Union Congress to Debate Platform.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Trembling back and forth like a speedometer needle between dictatorship ideas on one side and a timeworn belief in social democracy on the other, the annual trades union congress meets at Brighton tomorrow, uncertain whether its traditional "gradualist" social program shall be scrapped for what Chancellor Hitler or President Roosevelt stands.

It will be a long, doctrinaire session. It might have telling effects on the character of the Labor party. For decades British labor unions have stood between the bomb throwing revolutionary Russians and capitalists. They have advocated socialism by easy legislative stages.

Group Advocates "Dictatorship."

Now a young faction led by Sir Stafford Cripps and others is anxious to put a little pep into the movement. They are advocating in a hazy way a dictatorship of the British proletariat.

Old wheelhorses will fight such a program to the finish. But to their amazement they see Mr. Roosevelt doing in a few weeks what they have been attempting in 30 years of parliamentary activity. He has established a minimum wage and maximum hours on the general basis of a 40 hour week.

The revolt in the party is based on European post-war experiences in which one strong man after another has toppled over parliamentary institutions and made himself the big boss. This is advocated as essential to meet Fascism in Britain and elsewhere.

Labor Unions Feel Pinch.

Labor unions in Britain are feeling the pinch like other institutions. Two hundred and eight unions are represented with a total membership of 3,367,000. The figure represents a decline of nearly 250,000. The delegations also have been reduced in order to economize.

The big debate on "dictatorship" linked with Mr. Roosevelt occurs Thursday. Tonight A. G. Walkden, union president, pointed to Mr. Roosevelt—as a number of so-called British capitalists have done recently—as the kind of man needed to lift the country out of the depression.

A group of idle communists is marching to Brighton with the intention of kicking up a row. The congress has already decided to receive two handpicked Socialist idle men, however, and a gang of stewards is ready to toss out the Reds as soon as they appear.

DEER UPON LEDGE DRAWS BUSINESS TO PARK ON EIGHTH DAY

Watkins Glen, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—In spite of rain the streets of Watkins Glen were crowded with thousands of automobiles today, bringing visitors to Watkins Glen State park, where a deer has remained for eight days on a narrow ledge.

Restaurants did rushing business with the tourists, many of whose license plates were issued in other states.

The deer meanwhile continued to avoid the wooden suspension bridge thrown across a gorge to the ledge. The deer had climbed to safety there after tourists had frightened its companion to jump to death in a rushing waterfall Aug. 26.

Watches Boy Clean Pistol; Accidental Shot Fatal

Edward Wittmeyer, 38 years old, 3314 Ward street, a butcher, died last night in the Garfield Park hospital. He was shot accidentally Saturday night while watching Ernest Haegele, 19 years old, clean a revolver in the rear of Wittmeyer's shop. Haegele was released by Cragin police.

Get TENANTS the way Chicago's department stores get CUSTOMERS!

MOST of the business done by Chicago's department stores is with women. Women also rent, or directly influence the renting of, apartments. To get tenants, simply employ the same method that Chicago's department stores use to get customers—place your rental advertising in the newspaper that reaches more women.

Chicago's department stores, now more than ever before, use Tribune advertising to reach women in Chicago. They place more advertising in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper!

The Chicago Tribune prints more news, features, and advertising of interest to women than any other Chicago newspaper. Naturally more women read the Tribune.

Convention Promoters Ask Rooms in Homes.

Advance registrations for the 15th annual convention of the American Legion, to be held in Chicago Oct. 2 to 5, indicate that mare than 250,000 delegates, alternates, and members of their families will attend, according to the Thirty-Three Corporation of Chicago, which is underwriting the event. Joseph F. Novotny, president of the corporation, said this year's convention would easily be the largest ever held.

So great is the expected attendance that the convention headquarters, in the old Guardian National Bank building, 105 North Dearborn street, is appealing to householders who can spare rooms to register them, so that a possible overflow from the hotels may be cared for.

535 Bands and Drum Corps.

The convention program really begins on Saturday, Sept. 30, with the football game between the University of Iowa and Northwestern university in Soldiers' field, under the auspices of the Legion. On Sunday, Oct. 1, there will be a memorial service, probably in Grant park, and that evening a total of 535 bands and drum corps will be available for community concerts throughout the city and suburbs.

The opening session of the convention proper will be held in the Chicago Stadium on Monday, Oct. 2, when President Roosevelt is scheduled to address the gathering.

10½ Hour Parade of 138,000.

Tuesday, Oct. 3, will be devoted to the parade of 138,000 men, marching sixteen abreast down Michigan avenue. It wil ltake the parade 10½ hours to pass a given point.

The main business session of the convention will be held in the Chicago Civic Opera house on Wednesday, Oct. 4, with final business matters and election of officers to follow on the 5th.

Mayor Kelly to Welcome Postal Clerk Convention

Five thousand delegates and visitors to the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks' convention, opening today at the Palmer house, will be welcomed by Mayor Kelly and Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen. First Assistant Postmaster General Joseph C. O'Mahoney will give the main address of the morning session. The clerks, who will meet jointly for six days with the National Federation of Rural Mail Carriers, will discuss recommendations to Postmaster General Farley advocating a return to the 2 cent postal rate on first class mail, a 30 hour week, abolishment of the franking privilege, and retraction of the 15 per cent salary cut.

ON LAW FACULTY

PROF. MINIER SARGENT.

Minier Sargent, director of the legal publications board and the son of Fred Sargent, president of the Chicago North Western railroad, is one of three new appointees to the law faculty of Northwestern university, announced today by President Walter Dill Scott. The others are Prof. Pendleton Howard of the University of Idaho Law school, who will hold the title of visiting professor for the year 1933-34, and Prof. Samuel E. Thorne, who has been appointed librarian of the law school. Both Prof. Thorne and Prof. Sargent will hold the titles of assistant professors of law.

Prof. Sargent has practiced in Chicago for the last three years with the firm of Butler, Pope, Ballard and Elting. He received both of his academic and law degrees from Yale university where he was graduated from the law school in 1930. He will teach the subjects of mortgages, administration of insolvent estates, negotiable instruments and banking. The latter course will be a study of the new banking act.

DENEEN G. O. P. TO HOLD ANNUAL OUTING TODAY

Deneen Republicans will hold their annual picnic today in Riverview park. The year 1933 finds the local Republicans, for the first time in many a decade, almost shorn of all offices and patronage. The Republicans expect to voice their hopes today of regaining part of the party's lost prestige next year, when there will be elections of county officials, state treasurer, and a few other offices.

Arthur F. Albert, an alderman for ten years and a primary candidate for mayor in 1931, will be chairman of today's gathering.

CODE TO IMPROVE BABIES IS URGED BY MRS. SANGER

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Birth control for human babies is at least as important as pig control for farmers, said Mrs. Margaret Sanger, birth control's pioneer advocate, last night.

Mrs. Sanger enumerated the various codes developed under the recovery act in an address before the convention of the world fellowship of faiths at the Morrison hotel. She proposed "a code for babies," contending that each child brought into the world should be assured the certainty of a happy home, a sound body and mind, and proper care. Until this code is written, Mrs. Sanger warned, "real national recovery can never be realized."

Keeping Alive the Delinquent.

"Futile extravagance," Mrs. Sanger exclaimed as she referred to charity doles of various sorts. She argued that "this effort to keep alive the delinquent, the defective, the dangerous classes," is not good sense. They should not have been brought into the world at all, Mrs. Sanger declared.

"Christianity was founded on the suppression of the sex instinct," Mrs. Sanger continued. "Previous forms of religious worship, from prehistoric times, were founded upon the unfathomable, inevitable mystery of sex. People were and still are as ignorant and confused about sex as they are about God. As long as religious teaching confuses sex with shame and sin, mankind cannot rise to its highest possibilities.

Two States for Women.

"Our ecclesiastical fathers decreed that there were only two states of respectable womanhood open to women —virginity or motherhood. Sex in any of its manifestations was akin to sin, and for the women only the bearing of a child sanctioned its expression."

Mrs. Sanger flung the challenge of cowardice before the leadership of the various women's organizations of the country for not joining the movement looking toward sex hygiene and sex reform.

Monument Rite Climaxes Batavia Centennial Fete

Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan yesterday dedicated a monument to the pioneers of Kane county at Batavia. The monument, a twenty ton red granite bowlder from Batavia township, with a bronze plaque, stands in a city park, which was once a portion of the land of the county's first settler, Christopher Kane, for whom the county was named. The dedication was part of the four day celebration of the centennial of the community. In the spring of 1833 he arrived at Batavia with his wife to erect the first home in the county. The celebration ends today.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: An Old Smoothie

DENIES RUMORS ITALIAN FLYER COURTED DEATH

New York, Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Rumors that Capt. Francesco de Pinedo, Italy's ranking air hero, when he became a political exile from his native land, deliberately killed himself by crashing his trans-Atlantic plane on Floyd Bennett field yesterday at the start of a flight to Bagdad, were denied by his colleagues today.

"This is a crowning insult to a man of so fine a character and spotless a reputation," said Ugo D'Annunzio, son of the noted Italian poet. "For not only did he undertake this flight in sincerity, but as proof of his intentions he had even mapped out the route for a return flight to the United States."

In death De Pinedo has wrung from the Italian government the honors of which he was stripped in life, because he dared to love a princess, now Bulgaria's queen. His body will be sent home on an Italian line ship, with the government paying the costs.

Several experts at Floyd Bennett field today expressed the belief a new "gadget" invented by De Pinedo had failed to work, sending him to death in a flaming plane. It was disclosed he had built an extension on the joy-stick that would enable him to add leverage in lifting the plane into the air. Experts believe the extension may have slipped off the stick and that De Pinedo could not get it back in time to get the heavy plane under control on the runway as he sought to take off.

FINDING OF SKULL MAY VOID PART OF VERSAILLES PACT

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

NAIROBI, Kenya, Africa, Sept. 3.—One of Germany's grievances against the Versailles treaty may be removed with news of the long lost skull of Sultan Mkwawa of Tanganyika, the chieftain who rebelled against the Germans during the war and committed suicide when on the point of being captured.

The sultan's people believe they are doomed to endless calamities until the skull is returned to tribal custody. Demand was made in the Versailles treaty that Germany return the skull, although the German government denied having removed it from East African territory.

H. Malcolm Ross, land agent in Tanganyika, now turns up with the information that, as custodian of enemy property in East Africa in 1921, he found a great number of packing cases in a building formerly occupied by a German company. He discovered, carefully packed in one of these cases, a native's skull. If this skull was really Mkwawa's its existence in East Africa in 1921 would strengthen the German contention that it had never left the African country.

PLAN REVISED FOR SAN PEDRO AVIATION BASE

San Pedro, Cal., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Commander John Whitbeck, just arrived from the east, today announced plans for establishing a six-plane coast guard aviation base on Terminal island, San Pedro.

The plan as now announced involves more government activity and expenditure than the original schedule, which ran afoul of the government retrenchment program last winter, and was announced as abandoned. The first plan involved a plant to handle three amphibian patrol planes.

Commander Whitbeck expressed belief that several former navy destroyers which were turned over to the coast guard in the east would be transferred to this coast in the spring.

Registration of 2,500 Expected at Notre Dame

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's freshman enrollment has passed the 700 mark of last year and is expected to be more than 800 when classes begin Sept. 14, Registrar Robert Riordan said today. Total enrollment of 2,500, a slight decrease from last year, is expected. The greatest loss was in last year's freshman class, but the upper class halls are filled. Registration will be Sept. 12 and 13.

7 Prisoners Shot to Death in Jail Riot in Turkey

BASRA, Turkey, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Seven prisoners were shot to death here today and 20 others were wounded in a jail riot.

Col. Arthur Schermerhorn of New York Guards Dies

New York, Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Col. Arthur Frederic Schermerhorn, a member of one of the oldest Dutch families in the United States, who was connected with the New York National Guard for half a century, died today from the effects of a stroke of paralysis. He was 73 years old.

H. M. PARMLY OF NEW YORK BANK FIRM DROWNS

New York, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Henry M. Parmly, New York banker, was reported at his home tonight to have been drowned when swimming near his yacht, the Sequin, while it was anchored near Essex, Conn., today.

Inforation reaching the Parmly home was that the banker, who was a partner in the firm of S. B. Chapin & Co., set out from the yacht with another member of his party and failed to return.

It was understood at his home that he was accompanied by Richard Lippincott, a friend, and Henry Chapin, a cousin, but it was not learned here which of the two went swimming with him.

HENRY BARKMANN FUNERAL WILL BE HELD WEDNESDAY

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday for Henry Barkmann, 62 years old, 2514 Huron street, past president of the Chicago Coal Dealers' association. Burial will be in Acacia Park cemetery.

Mr. Barkmann died suddenly Saturday night while returning home with his wife, Bertha, from the Glenview air races. He collapsed at the wheel of his car just outside the town. A passenger in the car which was alongside jumped from his car to Mr. Barkmann's and stopped it before the car had a chance to leave the road. The unidentified passenger had seen Mr. Barkmann slump over the wheel.

Surviving Mr. Barkmann are his widow and four sons, Edward, Elmer, Robert, and Charles.

W. B. SULLIVAN FUNERAL RITES TO BE TOMORROW

Funeral services for William B. Sullivan, who was the oldest employé of the sanitary district in point of service, will be held at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow in Our Lady of Sorrows Roman Catholic church, 3141 Jackson boulevard. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Mr. Sullivan, who was 57 years old, died of heart disease early Saturday while sleeping in his home at 3527 West Adams street. He was born in Coolygorman, County Limerick, Ireland, came to the United States as a boy, and when he was 16 years old went to work for the sanitary district as a rodman. He rose to the position of division engineer for the district.

Will H. Collins, Piano Trade Veteran, Is Dead

William H. Collins, who was connected with the piano business for more than 50 years, died yesterday at his home at 4565 Woodlawn avenue. Prior to his retirement about five years ago he was in charge of retail piano sales for Lyon & Healy here. Mr. Collins is survived by his widow, Anna Mae, and a daughter, Annabelle. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the chapel at 42d street and Cottage Grove avenue under Masonic auspices.

F. G. Farrington of Maine Supreme Court Dies at 60

Augusta, Me., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Frank G. Farrington, associate justice of the Supreme court of Maine and former speaker of the Maine house of representatives and president of the state senate, died at his home here tonight. He would have been 60 years old Sept. 11.

Swimmer Dies of Heart Attack at Evanston Beach

Elmer Strickler, 28 years old, 4940 Main street, Niles Center, was drowned at the Calvary beach in Evanston yesterday afternoon when he was seized with a heart attack while swimming. Rogers Park and Evanston police worked on Strickler for an hour in a futile effort to resuscitate him.

LAMSON ENLISTS AID OF SCIENCE TO SAVE HIM

San Jose, Cal., Sept. 3.—(AP)—David A. Lamson, battling for his life against the state's accusation that he bludgeoned to death Allene Thorpe Lamson, this week will bring the knowledge of science into his defense that the attractive Y. W. C. A. secretary fell to her death.

One of the principal witnesses in the trial resuming Tuesday will be the widely known criminologist, E. O. Heinrich of Berkeley, Cal. Heinrich, although he examined the couple's cottage on the Stanford university campus more than two weeks after Mrs. Lamson's death, declares he has found "sufficient evidence to show she struck her head against the wash basin in the bathroom, causing the fractures which brought about her death."

Not alone on Heinrich, however, does Lamson depend for his hope of wrecking the circumstantial evidence the state built up in support of its accusation. His attorneys will call six or seven reputable San Jose physicians.

Lamson will take the stand himself, probably late in the week, to tell his story of what happened last Memorial day.

SON OF MILLIONAIRE DIES IN RESERVOIR ON MOONLIGHT SWIM

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 3. —[Special.]—Moonlight and gin that prompted youthful revelers to shed clothing and disport in the waters of springfed Kensico reservoir, north of White Plains, brought tragedy early today when Hugh S. Jarvis Jr., son of Hugh S. Jarvis, millionaire New York City shipper, was drowned in the chilly depths.

As the 23 year old youth dived into the waters from which New York City derives most of its drinking supply, two girl companions applauded. Two brothers, who completed the quintet, prepared to follow.

Jarvis failed to reappear. Mark Couch, 22, dived in to attempt a rescue, but failed. Troopers recovered the body.

JURY TO PROBE THRIFT FIRM IN CALIFORNIA CITY

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—Financial affairs of the National Thrift corporation, $60,000,000 nationally known organization, are to be investigated by the Los Angeles county grand jury this week as the result of a four month investigation by the district attorney's office.

Whether criminal action will be taken against any one is a question that must be determined by the grand jurors, Daniel Beecher, deputy district attorney, in charge of the investigation, declared.

The National Thrift corporation was placed in the hands of receivers a year ago. The organization holds savings of nearly 2,000 persons.

At the time of the receivership Nathan T. Porter, former superintendent of banks in Utah, was president.

Wins Auto at Carnival; Is Robbed of His Purse

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—James Hamlin, who won an automobile at a carnival here last night, paid the girl $10 for drawing his number, displaying a roll of bills in his billfold. When he got out of the grounds with his new car he found his billfold was missing containing $40 dollars.

Dr. Woodbridge Riley, Vassar Professor, Dies

Cape May, N. J., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Dr. Woodbridge Riley, author, educator, and professor of philosophy at Vassar college since 1908, died yesterday at his summer cottage. He was 65.

CAMERA TAKES 3 INCH FLIGHT OF RIFLE BULLET

A moving picture camera, perfected in Japan, which makes 20,000 exposures per second, was described last night before a meeting of the international congress of the Society of Automotive Engineers at the Palmer house by Dr. I. Sumimoto. He read from a paper written by Dr. R. Wada, director of the Tokio Institute of Aeronautical Research. The camera, which is to be used in aero development, can catch a rifle bullet in flight and show the bullet entering one side of an electric lamp and going out the other side before the lamp breaks into bits.

Mrs. Erich von Stroheim Given Chance to Recover

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Physicians said today Mrs. Valerie von Stroheim, wife of Erich von Stroheim, motion picture actor and producer, had a good chance to recover from burns suffered yesterday in a Hollywood beauty shop. She was somewhat improved. Mrs. von Stroheim was burned about the face and shoulders and her lungs were seared as the swallowed flames ignited by a short circuit in a hair drying machine.

Kay Francis Is Physician in This Film

"Mary Stevens, M. D." Offers Hour's Diversion.

"MARY STEVENS, M. D."
Produced by Warner Brothers.
Directed by Lloyd Bacon.
Presented at the Roosevelt theater.
THE CAST.

Mary Stevens	Kay Francis
Don Andrews	Lyle Talbot
Glenda	Glenda Farrell
Lois Rising	Thelma Todd
Mrs. Simmons	Una O'Connor
Walter Rising	Charles Wilson
Mr. Simmons	Hobart Cavanaugh
Tony	Harold Huber
Pete	George Cooper
Dr. Lane	John Marston
Gus	Christian Rub
Hospital Superintendent	Reginald Mason
Dr. Clark	Walter Walker
Miss Gordon	Ann Hovey

By Anna Nangle.

What doth the lady doctor do when, minus her instruments, she's suddenly confronted by an infant suffering violent indigestion as a result of partaking of a safety pin? A hair pin, my dear Watson, a hair pin!

So does the resourceful Mary Stevens, M. D., conquer not only the pin, but her personal despair over a number of things, as shown by the film now running at the Roosevelt.

Kay Francis wears a stunning uniform and a businesslike air and succeeds in being pretty convincing as the reliable Mary. Lyle Talbot gets a break this trip and proves how likable he can really be if given half a chance. They're a couple of young M. D.'s who, having finished school together, take adjoining offices and embark on their respective careers. The wealthy blonde daughter of a big politician causes their paths to deviate for quite a troublesome time, but, after the way of all good little movies, by the last reel they're about to live happily ever after.

The film moves quickly, has enough humor, quite a touch of pathos, and the cutest baby you ever saw. In fact, the entire cast is excellent, with a particular good word for Miss Glenda Farrell, who always comes through with an effective performance. It's a neat little program picture, and will provide a pleasant hour's diversion.

"THIS DAY AND AGE."
Produced by Paramount.
Directed by Cecil B. De Mille.
Presented at the McVicker theater.
THE CAST.

Garrett	Charles Bickford
Gay Merrick	Judith Allen
Steve Smith	Richard Cromwell
Don Merrick	Eddie Nugent
Morry Dower	Ben Alexander
Herman	Harry Green
Sam Weber	Lester Arnold
Max	Fuzzy Knight
The Sheriff	Wade Boteler
Toledo	Bradley Page
Manager Night Club	Billy Gilbert
Mr. Smith	Harry C. Bradley
Mrs. Smith	Louise Carter
Billy Anderson	Michael Stuart
Chief of Police	Guy Usher
Judge Maguire	George Barbier
Gus	Oscar Rudolph
District Attorney	Charles Middleton
Defense Attorney	Warner Richmond

Mr. De Mille does pretty well by himself in this latest production—but he's always De Mille, as the mob scene at the finish of the picture proves.

It's an improbable piece, but has plenty of action and a number of attractive, intelligent youngsters working in it. Richard Cromwell, Eddie Nugent and Judith Allen deserve special mention.

A group of daring high school students take the law in hand when a gangster causes the death of two of their friends—an old tailor who refuses to join the gangsters' "protective" association, and a young boy who very foolishly goes to the home of the gunman for the purpose of gathering evidence against him. Garrett, the criminal, is exonerated for the first murder and succeeds in pinning the second on an innocent companion of the dead youth.

Most gangsters are too wary to be caught the way this one was, I believe, and I don't see how the police landed on the scene so quickly—or why they didn't take charge when they did—in fact, there are a lot of things I thought were rather peculiar—but if you're not too particular you may moderately enjoy "This Day and Age."

Anyhow, I imagine the kids had a swell time working on it—and I also think they'll like watching it—it's just the sort of thing most imaginative boys would like to think of themselves as doing.

Velvet Plaits Trim Newest Dance Gowns

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Velvet . . . yards of it wherever you shop. You find it used as new plaited trimming in piquantly different separate jackets for the very decorative new evening gowns; in the long shirred lengths of the newest long evening gloves; in ascots that are the biggest things you can spread over your coat or frock front; for new waistcoats that are the swankiest things you can wear under the short coatof your newest street suit.

These waistcoats double for blouses and all the guimpe ideas you learned to like this last summer . . . the new velvet numbers are made with high necklines, a row of shining chromium buttons marching from collar to the lower edge of the vest effect and two small, well tailored pockets one over each hip. You can find gloves to match, and the colors are good, a deep turquoise blue-green, a rusty red and a tobacco brown . . . others will arrive later.

Delectable velvet evening jackets are made with both long or short sleeves, the long variety made with puffings moderately distributed around the top shoulder sections, the short sleeves usually achieved with rows and rows of ruffled velvet ribbon one over the other . . . other dramatizing jackets come in burnished mahogany and the cherry ripe reds that do grand things for nearly every colored evening frock you may possess.

And the velvet handbags are here . . . gay colored affairs with lots of jeweled clasps and frames, brilliant tints with plain gold and silver frames, and among the bags are the clever new puffed things that look like they had been shirred onto the metal twin circles that form the unusual clasps. The vermilion shade and the cobalt blue tones are the loveliest things imaginable.

La Rabida Meeting.

The La Rabida-Jackson Park sanitarium will hold its September meeting at 10:30 on Sept. 11 at the Del Prado hotel, 5307 Hyde Park boulevard. Mrs. John F. McKeon will preside.

Leander J. McCormick and Bride in City

Mr. and Mrs. Leander J. McCormick as they arrived yesterday on the Twentieth Century Limited at the La Salle street station. Mrs. McCormick is the former Countess de Fleuriau of France. The couple, who were married in London in July, have been in New York visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick. After visiting friends and relatives in Chicago and Lake Forest the couple will go to California to visit Mr. McCormick's brothers and their families, the Alister H. McCormicks and the Edward H. McCormicks. The Edward H. McCormicks, who live in England, have been visiting in California. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Pauline Seipp Will Make Bow to Society at Dinner Dance

Function Will Be Held at Casino Club During Christmas Holidays; Will Return to Vassar.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE management of the Casino club has been declining requests for parties the evening of Dec. 22. On that evening Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp are giving a dinner dance for their charming daughter, Miss Pauline Seipp, in the club's moderne ballroom and lounges.

The party, certain to be remembered as one of the best of this fall and winter season, will mark the formal introduction of Miss Seipp into society. For many months Mr. and Mrs. Seipp have considered the possibilities of a debut tea for their tall, Titian haired daughter at the Thanksgiving holiday. Now, however, they have cast their decision in the negative, as far as a tea is concerned, since it means a flying trip home from Vassar, where Miss Seipp is a student.

On the 21st of this month Miss Seipp will return to the eastern campus. Previous to her enrollment there she studied at the University School for Girls and the Mount Vernon seminary in Washington. With her parents and her brother, Edwin Jr., she spent one winter in St. Moritz, Switzerland, and a summer traveling on the European continent.

Last year's debutantes, as well as those of this season, are welcoming the Christmas holidays as a time to renew acquaintance with this popular member of the younger set for many of the holidays she has spent, skiing, ice boating, and skating at the Lake Placid club. The summer months the members of the Seipp family pass pleasantly in their Barrington home, which, because of their generous hospitality, is filled with guests almost every week-end.

Julianne Doane Becomes Bride.

In a ceremony marked by simplicity Miss Julianne Doane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Edwin Doane, was married at 4:30 Saturday afternoon to Charles David Carey, son of Mrs. Joseph M. Carey and the late Judge Carey of Cheyenne, Wyo. The Rt. Rev. T. J. M. Van Dyne read the service before the candle lighted altar of the tiny chapel in St. James' Episcopal church.

Senator Robert Carey, who flew from Wyoming for the ceremony, served his brother as best man. The only others present were the bride's mother and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Holabird III.

Wed in a tailored gray suit and a tricorne hat of black velvet, the bride was dressed for the wedding trip on which the young couple departed immediately after the service. After Oct. 1 they are to be at home at the C-Y ranch near Meadow, Wyo.

It was just this summer that Mr. Carey was introduced to his bride at A Century of Progress dinner. Ever since his graduation from Yale he has been a Wyoming rancher, making frequent visits, however, to the east.

Woodlands Have New Grandchild.

From the household of the Leroy Woodlands in Kenilworth comes the news of a new grandchild born last Thursday at the Evanston hospital to Mr. and Mrs. William T. Heagney, the Woodlands' daughter and son-in-law. Mrs. Heagney was before her marriage Virginia Woodland.

Mr. Heagney did not get away from Havana, where he and Mrs. Heagney make their home, in time for the happy event. He will arrive in another fortnight. Mr. and Mrs. Heagney with their new little daughter who has been named Virginia, after her mother, and their other daughter, Ann, are planning to spend a whole month in Kenilworth.

A stag fishing party is being held this week-end at Au Gres, the Michigan ranch of the Edwin W. Sims family. Mr. Sims went up the beginning of last week, and then wired back to a half dozen of his friends to come with their fishing tackle for the three day holiday.

Frank Sims, the Sims' elder son, has committed himself to a week-end of real "labor" at his downtown law office, since he is just back from a house party vacation at Au Gres. When he and Mrs. Sims [the former Betty McNair] went up a fortnight ago they took with them the John Derns, the Stanley Zarings, the Scott Dows, and the young George Getzes. Young Mrs. Sims has remained to spend today with the senior Mrs. Sims while all of the men of the ranch go fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. Dern after returning from Au Gres have as their guest Miss Dorothy Newton of West Newton, Mass. Miss Newton, who was a bridesmaid in the Dern wedding, is here to see the Fair.

More News of Holiday Travel.

Just returned from a Michigan vacation Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith Gorham Jr. drew straws to see whether they would spend this Labor day at Kohler, Wis., or in Quincy, Ill. The latter won.

On Saturday they motored to Quincy to be the house guests of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pearson. In Kohler they would have been the week-end guests of Mrs. Gorham's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Kohler Jr.

Mrs. Gorham's younger sister, Miss Jean McVoy, has vague plans for an autumn quarter of study at the University of Chicago followed by a European trip next January.

Mrs. Walter R. Kirk and two dozen of her friends are going to celebrate Labor day with several hands of contract bridge. Following luncheon at 1 o'clock, Mrs. Kirk and her guests will play on the veranda of her Lake Forest home.

This group meets every holiday and several times in between. They organized themselves a couple of years ago in revolt against all of their friends who prefer golf to bridge.

Mrs. Arthur Cable, the Thomas Fishers, and Mrs. Walter Paepcke are a few of the Chicagoans who will be on the sidelines in Santa Fé today watching the beautiful pageantry that marks the annual Labor day fiesta in the New Mexico city. The celebration started on Saturday and continues through tonight, with parades and dramatizations portraying all of the

Brushing Still Sole Road to Lovely Locks

Styles of 1933 Demand Quality, Texture.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Comparisons of the styles prevailing during the World's Fair, '93, and those current at the present time continually arise among the older group. At one such discussion it was remembered how hair beauty in the '90s was a matter of length and luxuriance. Now, length has little to do with it, as you know. A luxurious look to the hair—yes! But our moderns get this gloss and smooth finish in new ways.

And herein lies an argument as to whether the old system or the new is better. When women gave up the brush they did something that shows in a good many heads that are otherwise well cared for. The brushing habit pursued by the long haired generation has no perfect substitute unless it is the same brushing habit. But not so many women pursue it today. Oils, brilliantines, waving lotions, and hair conditioners are used—and, indeed, are very good to use. But when it comes to getting right down into the scalp and stirring up there the circulation that influences hair beauty you just can't get away from the hair brush as the prize winner.

It is doubly a pity that the habit is not pursued by the great majority, since the hair brush makers have gone a long way in improving their products. There are hair brushes on the market today that almost guarantee healthy scalps if used persistently. Designed, as they are, to get right down at the scalp, easily cleaned and easy to handle, too—it is too bad that more women are not daily users. Of course, we know economy is behind the hair brush neglect. A fresh wave cannot be afforded daily. So I feel there isn't much use talking the brushing habit except that hair goes on needing it.

I do think, then, that if one won't use the brush daily she should see on her shampoo day that she makes up for the deficit. Not that a once in two weeks' brushing is comparable—but it is better than nothing. And in the meantime slipping the fingers in under the wave and manipulating the scalp in massage moves will counteract some of the ill effects of no brushing at all.

If one's hair gets dry and disorderly or the scalp is in poor shape for any reason why not just declare a wave holiday for a month, say. Bury pride and go around with straight locks until you've caught up on some of the brushing benefits. You see the dryers, the permanents, and so on have a drying influence.

Horn of Plenty.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Of the "Horn of Plenty" quilt design there is an old and a new version. The one illustrated today is the old one—from early colonial days, in fact. The difference in the two versions is that the older one combines both fruit and flowers in the design.

A soft old ivory material is recommended for the background to produce that "mellowed with age" effect and to enhance the dark purple of the velvety grape clusters, the rich green leaves, and the soft pastel tints of the flowers.

Seeing Them in Raw Aids Taste for Vegetables

Trips to Grocery Prick Child's Imagination.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A vacation trip that brought me in touch with a number of mothers made me realize once again the prevalence of eating problems.

Urgent mothers could be overheard saying, "You haven't finished your milk, Mary," or "What shall I tell Mrs. White if your plate goes back into the kitchen with all the vegetables still on it?" Incidentally, never did I hear any coaxing over the meat or dessert. Children almost universally love meat—even more than they do sweets. Milk and vegetables are the foods that have to be hurdled. Milk, since it will often all slip down once the first swallow is taken, isn't quite the problem that vegetables are. These are always largest in quantity, have to be chewed, and so present the greatest difficulty.

Putting aside psychological causes of eating troubles like too much attention, there is one way which many a tactful and inventive mother has found for establishing a friendly feeling between child and vegetables, and that is to make them interesting.

Taking your little son or daughter to the market or green grocer's with you is one way to accomplish this. Many stores with an eye to effect display their vegetables in engaging ways these days. The baskets and shelves where they are shown are usually low, so that a little child can see and touch them.

The little child who chums around home with his mother meets some of these vegetables when the boy delivers them. Helping to put away carrots and spinach, observing the strings come off the beans, talking about how things are grown and where they come from, helping with the shelling of peas and the preparing of other vegetables—all these things help children who are forming their eating habits to a different sort of interest in their food.

Many mothers who have worked this out themselves will be interested to know that a two year experiment conducted with nursery school children at the Iowa State college has proved the effectiveness of this means of preventing or overcoming eating difficulties.

Letters come in frequently from mothers who have said that our leaflet on cultivating eating habits have changed mealtimes for them. This leaflet will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE efficiency of the postoffice department again comes to the fore. The other day an envelope arrived at the desk of Charles Breasted, executive secretary of the Oriental institute. It had the appearance of a cartouche, with Egyptian hieroglyphics and symbols of the kind that make up the signature of a king as found on ancient papyri. Beneath these symbols it merely said "Chicago." When Mr. Breasted opened the envelope it was, sure enough, a letter for him, written by one Walter Anderson of Mount Vernon, N. Y. The letter had been posted at Mount Vernon Aug. 29 and reached Mr. Breasted's desk, unopened, Aug. 31, so it had not been kicking about the postoffice for long. An employé had written, "Try the University of Chicago" across the envelope, and when it arrived at the faculty exchange had been turned over to an expert in dead languages who had ascertained from the hieroglyphics that the letter was for Mr. Breasted, and sent it over to his office.

Efficiency—All in—Human—Inns—Ale.

WE have mentioned the problems of Chicagoans and their World's Fair guests before. Matters at the Laycock home in Beverly Hills practically have been reduced to a system. As they are unable to provide all of their numerous guests with door keys, they post a list each night of all who are out. As each comes in he is to cross off his name, and the last person in understands it is his duty to latch the door and switch off the lights.

Last week among the guests were Profs. Herndon and Sutton of Haverford college, Pennsylvania, who, with Dr. Herndon's two sons, were the last to come in on a certain night. Awaiting them was a bulletin instead of the usual list, reading merely, "All in." The next morning the Laycocks found the following appropriate addition to the bulletin from tired Fair visitors.

"So are we!" it read.

LOUIS ALBERT LAMB, whom we haven't seen for many years and remember as a sort of oracle with a halo of white hair and a propensity for quoting the classics, writes of an incident that demonstrates the human touch that characterizes the Fair. He and a young friend who had stopped for lunch at the Hall of Science restaurant after a morning of sight-seeing, ordered baked fish, and then began to consider their dessert.

"Ice cream," said the young friend.

"O, my," said the waitress apprehensively [and Mr. Lamb is sure she was a summer-jobbing dietetics major from Downer college]. "Do you think you ought to eat ice cream after fish when you are going to be walking around in the hot sun all afternoon?"

ETHEL M. AIKEN bulletins that while passing through South Chicago on Commercial avenue she stopped at Mary's Inn, and two doors south, John's Out.

THE president of an ale manufacturing company writes a bitter letter about the mention made here the other day that English ale is about 9.4% proof. It seems we forgot to point out [and, as a matter of fact, did not know it] that English ale alcoholic content is measured in proof spirits and that 100% proof spirits is equivalent to 50% by volume. Most Canadian ales are about 9% proof spirits, which is about 4% by volume. Writing all this bores us considerably, especially as we have to look so long to find the % key in the typewriter, but we hope Mr. Rosenak, the president of the ale manufacturing company, will feel better about it all. The point apparently is that by comparison with American ale, which he says actually tests 4% by volume [legal], Canadian or English ale would not be so very much more potent.

BLOOD MONEY

SYNOPSIS.

Uncas Cresap and his Chinese servant are found dead in the upper room of Cresap's boathouse on Kettle pond, near the eastern end of Long Island. Gilbert Jonathan Redd, Cresap's stepbrother, keeps a written private account of developments in the case. A blow on the forehead from a slender, sharp edged implement killed Cresap. The cause of the Chinaman's death is not apparent. Capt. Bray, a special investigator, is an old friend of Redd's. Redd is a former police reporter. Florence Dane, Cresap's niece and an orphan, lived with him. Redd was fond of Florence's mother. He bought a home near Cresap's in order to protect Florence. Cresap made his fortune in the far east. Redd freely admits to Bray his hatred of Cresap, who was a drunkard and a debauchee. The Chinaman and a dwarf, Sabino, are the most important of the servants, and there seemed to be some secret bond between them and their employer. Bray finds, spread out on Cresap's desk, a new will disinheriting Florence. As it is unsigned, the old will stands. Cresap disapproved of Florence's moneyless sweetheart, Gregory Thorpe, who had arrived the day before Cresap died, having driven east from his home in Ohio in response to an urgent wire from Florence. Thorpe can't be reached at the local hotel, where he registered as George Thomas. Florence is on the verge of prostration. Bray picks up Tontini, a bootlegger, who had been landing liquor on Cresap's property.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

A BOOTLEGGER'S ETHICS.

Tontini milked his mustaches and went on:

"Well, we come in and we sees him right here in this room, which was where I always seen him all the time we done business together. The Chink's hanging around. Cresap must 'a' been hitting it up hard that day because he's still got one peach of a hangover. But his brain's woiking all right, see? And here's the idea wot he's got to spill to me, the doity dog! He actually wants me to smuggle in some opium. Get that, chief?—opium! He says that the very next night, which'd make it night before last, there'll be a certain foreign steamer hanging around off the point and her flying a Japanese flag besides a set of signal flags. And he says all I got to do is just range up longside and show the skipper a certain piece of Chink writing and he'll turn over to me a bunch of leather suitcases and then all the rest of wot I got to do is just fetch them suitcases in here and leave 'em hid in this boathouse. And all the while he's saying this that Wong is standing there not saying nothing himself but just nodding his daffy old head till it looks like it's going to fall right off the stem. So from that I knows that it must be Wong that has cooked up this whole plant, him no doubt having Chinese connections that I wouldn't know anything about and wouldn't want to, neither.

"Why next thing youse'll be asting me to moider somebody——"

"And then he says—Cresap does—that my bit out of it will be four grand. And he says how about it for a chance to pick up that nice soft piece of cush for just doing somebody a small accommodation like that? And then I tells him something. I tells him I won't do it, not for four grand nor for four times four grand nor even forty times four grand. I says to him, 'Wot do youse think I am? Why, next thing,' I says to him, 'youse'll be asting me to moider somebody! Bringing in wet goods that won't kill nobody and peddling it off at fair prices is one thing,' I says, 'and asting me to come right out and break the law is another thing,' I says. 'Why, I won't even handle this here absinthe—and there's a big profit in absinthe—because absinthe is against the law, too,' I says. 'It's been against the law since long before this here fool Volstead act, and that makes it out of bounds for me,' I says, 'and you know it,' I says. 'I got a nice wife and a family of nice kids,' I says, 'I got a reputation as a good American citizen,' I says. I'm crazy-sore. I got the old red Sicilian blood in me and that's red hot blood when it gets hot, chief."

"So I've heard somewhere," agreed Bray gravely. "And then what?"

"He boins up. He says I'm nuts. He says I'm a crazy ginney not to listen to reason. He says there ain't no risk in it and no danger in it. And I says to him can't he get it through that punk old head of his that it ain't the danger—it's the principle of the thing with me? . . . Well, that's the way it goes, back and forth, till we're both swearing and yelling. And the final upshot is I tells him if he can't stick to a good respectable traffic that's decent and honorable and high grade and where you meet the best people, but got to go snooting off into some doity low down sideline like smuggling hop, why, then, I guess I'm through. And he says I can suit myself about that and be damned in the bargain. And I says I guess maybe I will suit myself."

Tontini's hands were flying, his feet stamping, his picturesque bosom heaving.

"So me and Lew gets up to go. And then I remembers that coming in here we hits a sunk stump just out beyond in the pond and snags a big leak into the side of our boat. She's ready to sink before we gets ashore. She's a big green skiff, clinker built."

"Exactly," said Bray. "And on one of her thwarts she's got a large brownish smear like a patch of dried blood."

"That's her," said Tontini, "only it ain't blood. It's where one of my boys knocked over a can of brown paint on her at one time."

"I'm the one can swear to its being paint, having had it tested by two different chemists in the last forty-eight hours," said Bray with a wry grin.

"Well, wot wit' her having that hole in her bottom, naturally we can't use her getting back outside. So I asts Cresap will he lend us the loan of one of his skiffs? And he says he'll see me in hell first.

"Well, that ain't stopping me and Lew. We know no matter wot we do he ain't in no position to make a squawk. Besides, we got to get back aboard, ain't we? So we just marches downstairs, and the front door is locked. We pries the hasp off, but the oars and the oarlocks from them two skiffs of his that are down there are put away somewheres and we can't find 'em, and even if we had oarlocks the oars of my rig wouldn't fit 'em because my two pair woiks with thole pins. So we just runs his motor boat outside and then we hauls the busted skiff up inside with his two and off we goes. It's the same motor boat wot we fetched in awhile ago, only youse nabbed us before we could leave her and make our getaway in that extra skiff that we brings with us. And that's my story, chief, and I'm sticking to it."

"That's your story and you're sticking to it," echoed the detective. "But leave us get a line on the timing of it all. You two boys say you made your landing here about half past nine Monday night or maybe a little later, eh?"

Both men nodded.

"And about how long did you stay?"

"Nearer fifteen," stated Driscoll.

"Well, if that's correct, that would have you pulling your freight out of here not later than ten o'clock at the very latest—is that right?"

"Absolootly," confirmed Driscoll with no effusiveness.

"That's what you boys claim," argued Bray. "And I must say for you that, teaming together, you put it nice and straight. But, barring what you say, what is there to prove to me that you weren't still inside this cove as late as eleven or eleven-thirty or even twelve o'clock that night?"

"Plenty," stated Tontini. "If we hadn't gone out before the tide got turned good that there motor boat would still 'a' been inside this cove next morning. Even loaded light like she was tonight, her keel scraped when we come over them shallows down the channel and it was almost high water at that."

"Gents," announced Bray with an air of finality, and quit his roost on the desk, "it looks like you win the plush derby. . . . Well, if you're in a rush to be on your way don't let me detain you boys any longer."

"Youse don't want to hold us then?" inquired Tontini getting on his own feet.

"Not another minute," said Bray.

"Well, if youse should be wanting me youse can most always get me at——"

"Son, I know where you hang out almost as well as you do yourself."

"Much oblige' for youse treating us so swell," said Tontini.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Temperamental Usher.

"Dear Miss Blake: I like an usher. Sometimes he is friendly and other times he is not. His friends say he is crazy about me, but he never mentions the fact. Does he care?

"MELBA."

Aren't you putting a bit too much emphasis on an usher's politeness? If you only see the boy at show time, there's not much to go on, is there?

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

D. D.: A person with an oily skin finds it easy to apply cake rouge, but the dry and average type of skin gets along better with paste rouge. With cake rouge a powder base is needed.

I. D.: BRISK WALKS, COLD showers in the morning, and the use of cold water, and occasional ice rubs will tone your skin into good coloring.

"Home Frozen Delicacies," a booklet containing 50 recipes for frozen desserts, is on sale at the Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 10 cents. By mail, 13 cents, stamps or coin; address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

What a day for ingenious equipment! Why, even the poultry is going bigeyed over the refrigerators nowadays. For these ingenious mansions of coldness are turning out such chilly chicken treats that even the most persnickety hostess no longer has to worry about whether the dinner will really be good for the important aunt or the husband's boss.

And don't infer that all this excitement is over a cold leftover bird waiting for things to be done to his still remaining drumsticks. For not only cold, but frozen adventures are at hand, with chicken in the place of honor.

For instance, have you introduced your family to

FROZEN CHICKEN AND RICE.

2 cups cold steamed rice
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
1½ cups cold chopped chicken
1 cup cooked fresh or canned peas
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix together the rice and mayonnaise. Add the chicken, peas, and seasoning. Turn the whole mixture into a refrigerator tray and chill for 1½ hours. To serve, unmold onto a cold platter, garnish with curls of lettuce, and serve in slices.

And then, have you ever heard of such a perfectly odd thing as frozen chicken à la king? Neither had I until an especially egg minded friend of mine introduced us. Here is the method:

FROZEN CHICKEN A LA KING.

2 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons butter
1½ cups milk
1 cup minced chicken
½ cup cut up fresh mushrooms
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon capers [optional]
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of paprika
2 egg yolks

Blend the flour and butter over heat, then add the milk slowly, simmering until a smooth white sauce is made. Add the remaining ingredients except the egg yolks, and let heat gently in a double boiler for 20 minutes. Add the beaten egg yolks, stirring vigorously.

So far this is simply a recipe for any chicken à la king. But now comes the departure. Combine about 2½ cups of the à la king mixture with one-half cup each of cooked peas and chopped sweet pickle. Soak one tablespoon of granulated gelatin in one tablespoon of cold water for five minutes, then dissolve this over hot water. Stir the gelatin into the chicken mixture and fold in one-half cup of whipping cream, beaten till stiff. Turn the combination into the freezing trays of a refrigerator and freeze for two hours. To serve, unmold and slice on crisp lettuce leaves with a garnish of stuffed eggs and pickle fans.

Or still another chilly salad makes the most of the affinity between chicken and pineapple flavors.

FROZEN CHICKEN SALAD SUPREME.

1½ cups cold diced chicken
¾ cup crushed pineapple
½ cup chopped pecan meats
1 cup whipping cream
1 cup mayonnaise

Toss together the chicken, pineapple, and the nuts. Whip the cream and fold it together with the salad dressing. Add this mixture to the chicken and freeze for from 2 to 3 hours, or until firm. Serve on crisp lettuce with or without further dressing.

Costume Slip Gives Freedom for Tennis, Golf

WOMAN'S OR MISS' SLIP.

This costume slip has bias suppleness through the bodice that assures slenderness to the figure. The lower skirt is cleverly cut. It wraps and opens at the side back and side front, allowing freedom at the hem without detracting from the slim line of the skirt. It is comfortable for walking, dancing, tennis or golf.

The pattern, No. 2868, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 3.—[Special.]—The chargé d'affaires of China and Mme. Yung Kwai entertained at tea this afternoon at the legation in compliment to Mr. Chiu, secretary of the Chinese legation in London, who is making a short visit here. Last evening the chargé and Mme. Yung Kwai gave a dinner for Dr. M. T. Z. Tyao, director of intelligence and publicity of the ministry of foreign affairs of China, and Mme. Tyao, who also are here for a short visit. The companies both included a number of the diplomats who are remaining in Washington over the week-end and holiday.

Attorney General and Mrs. Homer Cummings have as their guest at the Hamilton Miss Gladys Haythorpe of Sydney, Australia, for whom they entertained a company at dinner this evening at the Congressional Country club.

Model Yacht Race at Saugatuck Today.

Interest today at Saugatuck centers around the model yacht race that is to be run off in the Oxbow lagoon. Charles West has made it possible for the summer school of painting in the Michigan town to offer a handsome trophy in this race sponsored by the Stephen Decatur Model Yacht club.

The yacht club is composed of boys who under the tutelage of Carl Byrd have spent the winter designing and making their model yachts. Thomas E. Tallmadge is one of the Chicagoans interested in the event.

Mrs. Potter Lewis Smith and two weeks old Balfe Potter Smith are spending today at home at The Orchard in Barrington with Mr. Smith and Renault Smith, 6 years old. Balfe was the maiden name of Mrs. Harry Spencer Reno, Mrs. Smith's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luce with their young son, Henry Jr., stopped in town long enough the other day on their way east from the Canadian Rockies for a Century club luncheon. Now they are joining Mrs. Luce's mother, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, who has been summering on the Luces' farm in New Jersey.

One of Lake Forest's popular young bachelors, Thomas Leiter, is spending these beautiful late summer days at Beverly on Massachusetts' north shore.

Miss Barbara Wendell, who sailed for Europe a month or so ago with an aunt of hers from Boston, will not be at home in Chicago again until the middle of the month.

Mrs. Francis North Writes from Italy.

A note postmarked Dolomiti, Italy, yesterday told us of the arrival at the Miramonti-Majestic hotel there of Mrs. Francis S. North and her two sons, William and Francis. Mrs. North made the ocean crossing several weeks ago to give her sons an opportunity to attend the Salzburg festival. They will return to Lake Forest about the middle of September.

Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted's and Hulburd Johnston's younger sister and brother, Miss Ethel Johnston and Hugh Johnston, arrived at home Friday and went out to the Olmsteads' house in Lake Forest for dinner that night. Miss Mary Mitchell has been chaperoning these two younger Johnstons through Europe for the last two months. Miss Johnston will soon return to Concord academy in Massachusetts and her brother Hugh will continue at Harvard university.

Mrs. Eckhart Brophy, who has been visiting in St. Louis, Detroit, and other Michigan places, is now with her mother, Mrs. Bernard A. Eckhart, in Chicago. She will be here until the middle of September, when she will return to California. Her daughter and son-in-law, the junior Truman W. Brophys, are up in Canada now, but they will be coming to Chicago soon to visit their grandmother.

Mrs. Eckhart's son and daughter-in-law, the Percy A. Eckharts, and their children will be at home in Kenilworth soon. They have been spending the summer in Europe.

Mrs. Lawrence A. Meeker is spending strenuous days studying art at Hubert Ropp's summer school in Lake Forest. Temporarily she is staying with the John Vincents, although she intends to take up permanent residence in the north shore town.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and their three sons, who have been spending the last three weeks in Banff and Lake Louise, are returning tomorrow evening.

Printed Satin Frocks Smart for Idle Hours

BY RETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris has suddenly gotten excited about printed satin. The boldest black and white printed satin is made into evening frocks. Polka dotted satin is used for sports clothes at Cannes and Monte Carlo. Printed satin lounging robes are the last syllable of home elegance.

The way in which these last are made is quite practical, for they could, in a pinch, be worn in the kitchen when you have to oversee the last minute preparations for dinner. They have an unmistakable atmosphere of lavender and old lace, because the printed satin used for the robe d'interieur is printed with such sweet designs as rosebuds and nosegays, and such.

The one in our sketch, from the Cour Batave, is made of pearl gray crêpe satin printed with rosebuds. The cut of this robe differs little from that of an ordinary bathrobe. It's just as simple, except for the trimmings and the sleeves. Easy to make at home.

The body is a straight wrap-around. The short puff sleeves are cuffed with shirred bands of the material and a band of shirred satin edges the surpliced closing of the bodice. Below the waistline the wrap-around skirt is bordered with a gathered ruffle that has a small, old fashioned heading, and this ruffle edges the hem also.

Earliest Love Lasts Forever, Author Avers

Mother Sets Pattern for Son's Dream Girl.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Two things about men and love one learns from John Langdon-Davies, well known author, writing in a current monthly.

One is that when a man kisses his bride he is kissing the woman he first loved, whether she's there in the flesh or not. Davies claims this not to be sentimentalism, but sound psychology. "For as a man first loves, so will he love at long last."

The other thing is that a man's dream love is bound to resemble his mother in some ways.

"If you value happiness," the author challenges, "be serious about your first love affair."

That first kiss, one gathers from this observer, shapes love's career through life.

The truth about love, Mr. Langdon-Davies tells us, is that every man builds up secretly in his imagination a dream person whom he must look for and find if he wants happiness. He thinks he's found her in that first love and never gets free of the impressions, the feeling, the sensations that come through it.

We gather from Langdon-Davies' remarks that all this flitting from altar flower to altar flower recorded in divorce annals is more or less the pursuit of that first dream love. A man might have the good fortune to meet in a third wife so much that was reminiscent of his first love that happiness ensues. The author tells of just such an incident with an acquaintance. After two marriages that ended unhappily this chap met up with a girl with features, coloring, and the name of his first sweetheart. But tough luck for the bride, we say, with the author's argument that the forgotten one was being kissed on the lips of the new bride.

There probably will be less argument over the author's contention that "a man's dream love is bound to resemble his mother in some ways, so that what children see of their parents' love life is bound to influence their own attitude toward love."

We can support that contention both from confessions revealed here and from observation. The mother whose love life has been unsatisfactory is far less lenient or sympathetic toward a daughter's first lovesickness than the woman secure in her own mate's love. And we agree heartily with Mr. Langdon-Davies that the good example of love in the home, or the bad, has a lifetime influence on children.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933 By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

PROFESSOR FORDNEY AT JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL.

Prof. Fordney, visiting the McFarland Junior High school and having entertained the students with stories, was begged by thirteen year old Jane Mundy for "just one more." Her dark brown eyes were so pleading that the criminologist gave in.

"All right," he said, pulling out the watch he had carried for years. "It was about ten years ago while I was big game hunting with my friend, Sir Richard Percival, when a slim, lithe lion, which I didn't see, stealthily approached me on my left. I was looking in the opposite direction at an unusually large giraffe. Apparently it spotted the lion because it let out a squeal and bounded away. I turned just in time. The animal was almost upon me. I didn't have a chance to fire, and if it hadn't been for Sir Percival, who was standing about thirty yards away, I wouldn't be here now to tell you about it.

"At the crucial moment he saw the lion stalking me. Then he fired. There is no better rifle shot in the world than Sir Percival. He caught that beast right in the temple as it was about to spring, and down it went—dead. I don't mind admitting that for the next few moments I felt a bit shaky. It was a narrow escape."

"Pardon me, professor," interrupted Jane excitedly. "I asked you to tell us a true story and I know this is a fairy tale."

"You're right, my dear, but tell me, how did you know?"

HOW DID SHE?

[See solution on page 27.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Cagney Shaves His Mustache to Finish Film

"Footlight Parade" Outranks Role of Gigolo.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Sept. 3.—[Special.]—After carrying that pinkish mustache of his to the set of "Fingerman" for rehearsals and one day's shooting, Jimmy Cagney has shaved it off and Warner's will have a clean shaven actor for the part of the tricky gigolo, in spite of the fact that all the young men who follow the gigolo profession in Hollywood hotels wear mustaches. Cagney had to appear clean shaven in some added shots for his other Warner film, "Footlight Parade," in which he sang a number and appeared with the song and dance girls.

Ginger Rogers says she was first inspired to become an actress by notices in the Fort Worth, Tex., dailies when she, as a little school girl, took parts in playlets that her mother [newspaper woman] wrote, and put on, in order to raise funds for equipping the schoolyard. Ginger says:

"The notices I got then I have been trying to equal ever since."

"You can buy clothes in Hollywood and feel out of place in New York, but you can buy them in New York and feel tops out here." She thinks that informality of life under the relaxing climatic conditions, "which make you feel well dressed even in house dresses," is accountable.

Evidently feeling that their story can avoid riling the sensibilities of audiences which were disturbed by a somewhat similar plot in Barbara Stanwyck's "Babyface" for Warner, Paramount announces Miram Hopkins to make "Ladder of Men," which Lenore Coffee is now putting in script form from Roy Flanagan's story, and which is, as its title implies, the success story of a woman of many love affairs.

Bing Crosby is to be starred in what is described as a nautical comedy titled "We're Not Dressing" at Paramount. Walden Hall Smith and George Marion Jr., are its authors.

Lorrain Eddie [Mrs. Douglas MacLean], who hasn't done much acting lately, is signed for a part in Radio's "Today We Live," with Irene Dunne and Clive Brooks.

INDIANS WHIP SOX, 14 TO 3; CUBS LOSE, 3 TO 1

THE GUMPS—THAT FIEND AGAIN

ONE HIT AFTER ANOTHER ROUTS THREE PITCHERS

Berry Does Some Fancy Playing.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox yesterday wanted to hold the Cleveland Indians to a score as low as the 12 to 4 by which the Comiskeys lost Saturday, but their efforts were disappointing. The Indians won, 14 to 3. The pitching, which was about the same as usual, was not altogether to blame for the Cleveland total. Charley Berry being guilty of some very poor work on two occasions in which run riots were precipitated after his failures.

WES FERRELL.

The feature of the game, from the Chicago standpoint, was the sportsmanship of Dick Porter, Cleveland right fielder, who enabled Al Simmons to make a hit in the ninth inning, his first of the series and his second in 21 times at bat.

Al has been suffering as few stars ever have suffered. So when he came up with two out in the final inning, Porter backed up against the right field wall as though playing for a homer and Al socked a single to the spot where Dick usually stands.

Al Sees Hit as Omen.

No one knew any better than Al that the hit was a gift, but the big boy was grateful—and he's superstitious enough to believe Porter's benevolence will snap him out of his slump.

Outside of this whimsical little incident, there was nothing that can't be ferreted out of the attached descriptive matter.

Here's the record of both ends of the big first inning: Porter opened the contest with a single and stopped at third on Cissell's double. Averill beat out a bouncer to Kress, Porter scoring and Cissell taking third. Vosmik doubled to center, Cissell scoring and Averill stopping at third. At this juncture Heving was wheeled off and Wyatt came on. Hale singled to left, scoring Averill and Vosmik. Hale went to second on a wild pitch and remained there while Kamm, Boss and Pytlak flied out.

Haas Deprives Al.

Swanson opened the offensive against Ferrell with a single to right and went to third on Haas' double to right. Swanson scored and Haas took third on Dykes' single to center. Simmons sent a long fly to Averill on which Haas could have walked home. Mule, however, became confused and stayed on third, thus depriving Al of a run batted in. Appling singled to center, Haas scoring. Kress forced Appling, Dykes pulling up at third. Hayes shot a single off Boss' shins, Dykes scoring. Berry fanned.

Vosmik opened the sixth with the Indians' second legitimate hit off Wyatt. Hale forced Vosmik, Hayes to Appling, but in trying to complete a double play Appling threw the ball into the dugout, Hale taking second. Kamm drew the first pass of the game. Then Boss singled to center, scoring Hale and sending Kamm to third. Pytlak flied to Haas and Mule's fine throw had Kamm doubled at the plate until Berry dropped the ball after tagging Willie. Ferrell then rammed his No. 8 homer into the left field stands, scoring Boss ahead of him. Porter singled to right. Dykes threw out Cissell.

Berry Helps Indians.

In the Sox sixth, Hayes and Berry singled with one out and Webb, batting for Wyatt, walked to fill the bases. Jones ran for Webb, but Swanson tapped into a double play, Ferrell to Pytlak to Boss.

Berry again proved a big help to the Indians in the seventh. With one out Vosmik tripled off Faber. Hale

GIANTS WIN IN 14TH, 4-3; THEN TIE BRAVES, 4-4

Sunday Law Halts Second Game in Ninth.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Braves checked out of the National league's pennant race today by dropping their fourth straight game to the New York Giants in the 14th inning of the opening contest of a double header, 4 to 3, before holding the leaders to a 4 to 4 tie in the second which was halted by the 6:30 p. m. Sunday time limit with two out in Boston's side of the ninth.

When the Giants came to Boston Thursday the Braves were trailing them in second place by six games. A clean sweep of the series would have put the Braves even with the leaders. But they won only one of the six, the opener, and the four defeats have dropped them into third place, a full game behind the Pittsburgh Pirates, who will take their turn at attempting to stop the Giants on Tuesday.

Luque's Single Scores Jackson.

Full credit for not only the Giants' 14 inning success, but also their even break in the second game must be given to Adolfo Luque, the veteran relief pitcher.

He stepped into the breach when Bill Shores weakened after six innings of first game pitching and, after getting out of a hole in the seventh at the cost of the tying run, checked the Braves until his 14th inning single behind Travis Jackson's safety and two infield outs scored the third baseman with the winning run.

Although he had pitched eight full innings, when Manager Bill Terry discovered that Glenn Spencer was no proper replacement for Roy Parmelee in the second game, he sent Luque back to the mound after the Braves had tied the score with two out in the eighth. Luque was throwing at the Braves as well as ever when the nightcap was called.

40,000 See Games.

The Sabbath double header was expected to draw well over 50,000 and break all of Boston's major league attendance records but, probably due to the Braves' failures, the crowd was around 40,000, leaving about 3,000 vacant seats in the bleachers. Figures for the series, stretched over four days, ranged around 143,000.

THE WARFARE BETWEEN THE HELENS

[This is the first of a series of three articles.]

THE battle of the Helens, started about nine years ago by a schoolgirl snub, may turn into a Thirty Years War. For, despite the silent struggle of the two girls, Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs don't appear to grow friendlier as the years roll by.

Theirs is a bitter combat over social standing as well as over game technique. It is camouflaged by strained smiles, polite handshakings, and vicious games between the tennis champions. It has obviously cost their nation victories they might have won together. And in most every set-to it has been Mrs. Moody's advantage.

The girls' careers have been startlingly alike, except that Helen Moody has had more of almost everything in life—except friends—than Helen Jacobs: more social standing, more money, more style, more tennis experience, more sport and social success, more fame! And, paradoxically, in those few respects in which the girls have not been alike, Helen Jacobs has done all she could do to make herself more like Helen Wills!

Early Careers Are Parallel.

Both are "only" children. Both live in Berkeley, Cal. Both got the tennis training which led to their success from W. C. [Pop] Fuller, coach of the Berkeley Tennis club. Both won similar junior titles in their kid days. Both were national junior girl champs at 15. Both went to the University of California. But both didn't belong to the same sorority. And thereby hangs a tale!

But by the time that tale begins Helen Wills had established herself in so far as Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen would let her, as the greatest woman tennis player in the world.

Born in Centerville, Cal., Oct. 6, 1905—she'll be 28 on her approaching birthday—she was but a little bit of a girl when she first played tennis with her daddy, Dr. C. A. Wills, on the court beside the walls of the old Alameda county hospital. Her father was a physician there. Tennis was his one relaxation—until his little daughter proved to be such an expert she turned tennis into hard work for him.

Fuller Picks a Winner at First Glance.

courts. Dad went into the army medical service. Dr. Wills is of old American stock with an English background. Mrs. Wills traces her ancestry to illustrious Danes.

The end of the war found the family reunited in Berkeley, and it was here that Helen was first spotted on the tennis courts by Pop Fuller. Although the youngster was only 14, Fuller knew he was looking at a future champion and he invited her—aye, begged her—to join the club.

Helen's parents were pleased. They were well able financially and socially to have their little girl a member of a private club, taking her tennis lessons from a paid coach.

Under Fuller's tutelage the very year she became a member the doctor's daughter won the Berkeley club and the Pacific coast junior singles. That was in 1920. In 1921 and 1922 she was national girls' champion, and in 1922 she annexed the girls' doubles championship.

Goes East for "Experience."

The very next year a good looking, modest little girl, extremely polite, accompanied by an exceedingly dignified and smartly groomed mother, was sent east by the California Lawn Tennis association to gain experience.

To gain experience! One look at the youngster and eastern players, coaches, and tennis writers knew she was there to teach them something.

Within two years she had done the almost impossible. At 17 she had beaten the seven times national champion, Molla Mallory. Just a month and a half after she was graduated from the Anna Head School for Girls in Berkeley she was national women's tennis singles champion.

Both Helen and her mother were very popular with the social tennis set of Long Island. Helen was shy beyond words and usually at a loss for them in those days—with the exception of an oral craving for lime lollypops. Her mother was her best asset socially.

Mrs. Wills always is charming to

Scott-Paine Bothered by Roll of Water

Algonac, Mich., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Defeated in the opening heat of the Harmsworth trophy race, Hubert Scott-Paine, British challenger, was hopeful tonight that smoother water would prevail for the second contest with Gar Wood tomorrow.

The British pilot said that throughout yesterday's opening heat he did not get accustomed to the water. "There was a roll in the water; no surprise," he said. "It was impossible to see where the roll began or where it finished."

Chances Still Good.

"I have no intention of trying to do anything spectacular," he said, concerning his plans for tomorrow's race. "If water conditions are suitable," he added, however, "I can put up much faster time and, of course, we shall know more about that on Monday evening."

He said he still thought his chances in the Harmsworth "are of the same value as when I left England."

Wood, who had easy going with his big Miss America X. yesterday, was confident he would clinch the trophy with tomorrow's race.

"I did not open up Miss America X., I did not have to," he said, adding that he would be in Monday's race "to win."

Wins Slowed Up.

Wood started yesterday's race with a tremendous burst of speed, to be first across the starting line, although only by inches. Opening up his four 12 cylindered motors, he soon shot away to a lead of more than two miles, throttled his defender down and was going just a shade over 77 miles an hour at the finish.

Scott-Paine did not get the maximum speed out of his boat at any time during the race, according to the timer's records.

DODGE RETAINS MEMORIAL CUP IN THREE HEATS

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Horace Dodge, driving the Delphine VII., kept the Dodge memorial trophy in the family today by winning two of the three heats. Only three boats started and one of them, Victor I. Kleisrath's Hotsy Totsy, of South Bend, Ind., was forced out at the end of the second heat with a large hole in its bottom. It was third in both heats it raced.

George Reis' El Lagarto of Lake George, N. Y., which wrested the prized gold cup from Dodge Friday, did not compete, because it was dismantled for inspection following the gold cup race. Dodge had insisted upon the inspection, provided for in the gold cup rules.

Dodge took the first heat with an average speed of 59.532 miles an hour. Bill Horn, at the wheel of Delphine IV., captured the second heat with an average of 60.191 miles an hour. Dodge raced to an easy victory in the deciding heat without extending his craft.

Sox Get Six New Players; 2 Collegians

President J. Louis Comiskey of the White Sox yesterday made formal announcement of the signing of six new players. Mr. Comiskey's memoranda concerning the young men follows:

Pitcher Otho Nitcholas of Oklahoma City, Okla., age 22 years, weighs 175 pounds, and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He has won 15 and lost 15, for an earned run average of 2.76. He will report within the next few days.

Pitcher Dale Mills of Topeka, Kas., 6 feet tall, weighs 185 pounds; won 7 and lost 3; earned run average, 2.68. Mills is 22 years of age.

Get a Catcher, Too.

Pitcher Hutchinson of Galveston, Tex., won 7 and lost 2. Hutchinson is 22 years of age.

Merritt Lovett, infielder of the University of Chicago, has been signed by the White Sox. This boy is making the eastern trip with the Sox.

Milton Bocek, outfielder and clean-up hitter of University of Wisconsin, has been signed by the White Sox and will make the eastern trip with the club. Bocek is from Cicero, Ill.

Bocek Hammers Fences.

Mills, Snyder, and Hutchinson will report at spring training camp in 1934.

He batted for Faber in the eighth inning yesterday and took three straight strikes.

Japanese Girl Swims 200 Meters in 3:05.2

TOKIO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Miss Hideko Mayehata, Olympic swimmer, set what was claimed to be a new world's record for the 200 meter breast strike swim over a 50 meter course in the all-Japan women's swimming meet at Nagoya today. Her time was 3 minutes 5.2 seconds.

HANDICAP TOPS LINCOLN FIELDS PROGRAM TODAY

Don Manuel 2-1 Favorite to Win Fifth in Row.

BY FRENCH LANE.

When the Lincoln Fields Jockey club opens its autumn turf season this afternoon before what may be the largest race crowd of the year in Chicago, Don Manuel, Kentucky 2 year old hi... as been doing most of his racing in Chicago, will rule as the favorite to win the seventh running of the Joliet handicap.

This son of Bostonian-Southern Queen, which started a winning streak at Arlington Park and continued it unbroken at Hawthorne, was held at 2 to 1 last night. Risky Miss, a fleet filly from the Pacific coast, which races for T. C. Worden of Chicago, was the second choice at 3 to 1. Penncote, never out of the money in 15 starts but seldom able to win, had a good following at 4 to 1.

Wins Four Straight.

Don Manuel's latest winning streak includes four straight victories in which he has shaken his flying heels into the eyes of some of the fleetest juveniles that have raced here. He has demonstrated that he is quite a stretch runner, having come from behind to score all of his victories. He has raced about as consistently as any 2 year old in the west, for in eleven starts he has reached the winning post on seven occasions.

Trey and Wacoche, the Audley farm stable entry, were also well backed. Trey is to carry the top weight in the race, shouldering 116 pounds to the 110 pounds which the favorite, Don Manuel, is to pick up.

Labor day crowds at Lincoln Fields for the last few years have averaged around 30,000 and Col. M. J. Winn, the executive director of the track, believes that this average will be maintained today. He based his prediction on the advance demand for reserved seats both in the clubhouse and the grand stand sections. It will not surprise him if the attendance is the largest in the history of the Lincoln Fields track.

Always Attracts Good Horses.

There were 16 overnight nominations for the revival of the Joliet Handicap. It is expected that at least a dozen of them will accept the issue in the brush at six furlongs.

The Joliet, since its first running back in 1926, has engaged some of the great 2 year olds of the time. In the first running No Regrets, one of the best juveniles of her year, was the winner. In the second, which came in 1927, the great champion filly, Anita Peabody, galloped to victory. The following year Belle of America, then the pride of Kentucky, was victorious, while Capture was the winner in 1929.

Then came two triumphs in a row for color bearers of the Nevada Stock Farm stable, which then was one of the leading establishments in the country. Siskin winning it in 1930 and Hygro in 1931. Both were among the leading juveniles of their year. The race was not revived last year. Hygro's six furlongs in 1:11 2-5 was the fastest time ever made in the race. Most of the winners have ruled as topheavy favorites.

Cathop in NRA Purse.

Eight races are on the opening day program. The second best number is the NRA purse, which is a dash of 7 furlongs. It engages Cathop, Madwind, Lemon Hills, North Mill, Dusky Devil, Bahamas, and Glynson. Cathop likely will rule as a strong favorite, his recent races at Hawthorne indicating that he is at the top of his form.

Lamson, Bike Race Trainer, Found Stabbed in Heart

Newark, N. J., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Edward Lamson, 46, trainer of noted bicycle riders, was found dead tonight in a rooming house, stabbed through the heart. After an investigation of several hours during which the possibility of murder was considered, police pronounced the case one of suicide.

American Women Beat Denmark in Hockey, 4-2

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The All-American women's field hockey team, preparing for the international tournament starting here Wednesday, defeated Denmark in a practice game today, 4 to 2.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

OPENING games in the first national baseball tournament sponsored by the Catholic Youth Organization will be played tomorrow at Comiskey park. The meet will close Saturday with a contest between the two survivors of the preliminary rounds for the Catholic championship of the United States.

This event is further evidence that the C. Y. O. movement is the most constructive force that has come into amateur sport in recent years. Founded in the midst of the worst economic depression in the country's history, it has carried on the most comprehensive athletic program attempted by any organization.

Its success has been phenomenal. More than 25,000 young men and women annually engage in events under C. Y. O. supervision. The soft ball tournament recently concluded enlisted more than 300 teams from every part of the archdiocese. Boxing, basketball, track, swimming, golf, and bowling attract thousands of participants and tens of thousands of spectators.

Special efforts have been made to interest boys and girls of the poor neighborhoods, many of whom never have a chance to avail themselves of high school or college athletic facilities. Americans, Irish, Germans, Poles, Italians, Slovaks, French, Belgians, Filipinos—all the groups that make up the great melting pot known as Chicago—are drawn together, sometimes engaging one another in friendly rivalry, again fighting side by side as teammates. They thus enjoy the experiences usually reserved for college athletes.

Competing as a unit against teams from all over Chicagoland, C. Y. O. boxers have more than held their own in Golden Gloves. They have won the team trophy the last two years. Several of the most widely known Golden Gloves boxers—Leo Rodak, Max Marek, John Pacek, Henry Rothler, and John Ginter—were from the C. Y. O.

Credit for the origin and development of the Catholic Youth Organization belongs to the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago. He always has been an enthusiastic supporter of amateur athletics. Old time residents of the west side will tell you he could have been a major league baseball player if he had not dedicated his life to more important fields.

For years he has been an almost nightly patron of Golden Gloves. Even in the preliminary rounds you usually can find him looking on from a remote corner of the arena. Out of his interest in Golden Gloves came the idea of a great boxing tournament for Catholic boys.

The success of the C. Y. O. movement is attested by the rise of similar organizations in other sections of the country. San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Salt Lake City, and many eastern cities have diocesan leagues fashioned after Chicago's. The baseball tournament opening tomorrow will include teams from Kentucky, Utah, Michigan, and Illinois.

The Cubs and Sox and other major league clubs can well afford to encourage the C. Y. O. baseball meet. The American Legion and the C. Y. O. are among the few organizations which are doing something to keep competitive interest alive in America's national game.

HAFEY DROPS OUT OF BIG SIX; GETS 1 HIT IN 5 TIMES

The batting performances of baseball's big six were far from impressive yesterday with only three members in action. Hafey, who joined the group Saturday, dropped out when he connected with only one hit in five times at bat, while Heinie Manush and Al Simmons lost two points and one point, respectively. Jimmy Foxx, Chuck Klein, and Virgil Davis were rained out.

Women's Skate Champion Dies of Mysterious Malady

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 3.—Jean Wilson, world champion woman speed skater, died in St. Michael's hospital tonight of a mysterious malady which attacked her a year ago and which physicians have never been able to diagnose. At the last Olympics at Lake Placid she won the 500 meters and was second in the 1,500 meters speed skating event.

VANCE FANS NINE IN TAKING DUEL FROM WARNEKE

Cards Bunch Hits in Two Innings.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs don't seem to know that the one time terrible Dazzy Vance is just an old fellow coasting downhill. They let him shine yesterday in all the splendor of his palmy days, and while the Cubs were thus engaged the Cardinals were doing enough to the usually peerless Lon Warneke to attain a 3 to 1 victory in the opener of a three game series. Warneke made the mistake of mixing his hitting with his pitching, and he wasn't the same after that.

RIGGS STEPHENSON.

Vance was in such a frisky mood that he refused to stop short of anything less than a performance such as he habitually showered on the Cubs in other days. He was always fanning 10 to 14 of them. He has slipped, of course. That's why he could set down only nine on strikes yesterday. But he was a little too brutal with Babe Herman. He made a strike victim of his former Brooklyn mate on three occasions. Stanley Hack fell that way twice. The other strikeouts were scattered.

Can't Fool Stephenson.

The one man Vance couldn't fool was the always reliable Riggs Stephenson, who even in the old days didn't take the Dazzler seriously. Stevie was up four times and in each instance banged a single over the infield and once he waxed so bold as to steal second. But Stevie received no assistance. Three of his hits were preceded by strikeouts and followed by things equally futile. One of the hits was followed by a safe smash in the ninth, but this merely moved him to third, which was at least some distinction. He was one of three Cubs able to travel that far against the veteran speedballer.

Warneke's start indicated that he wasn't going to have much trouble picking up his sixteenth victory instead of his tenth defeat of the season. He fanned the first two men to face him, and that probably was what invited the time honored jinx. He didn't even let a Cardinal reach base in three innings. But as soon as he had sprinted to attain a double and a run in the third he went into a decline. The Cards frisked him for three hits and a pass, good for two runs in the fourth. He was hit some more in the fifth, and the final run of the afternoon resulted.

Has Fun with Cubs.

For the first couple of innings Vance had just as much fun with the Cubs as when he was a star, instead of an aging gentleman. His high spot in these two sessions was the serving of three strikes to Babe Herman. The low spot was a single with which Stephenson followed the fanning of the Babe in the second. The next two men, however, offered nothing better than tall flies. Then Warneke put a temporary crimp in Vance's progress.

After Jurges had stood at attention while a third strike drifted past at the opening of the third, Warneke reached out for a high pitch and whacked it solidly into left for a double. Hack ran the count to 3 and 2, but made the mistake of thinking the next was a ball. He discovered, too late, that it was a strike. The inning was prevented from becoming a total loss when Billy Herman singled to center to drive Warneke across the plate. The third out was recorded on Cuyler's easy tap to Vance.

Watkins Starts Attack.

KING MELTS OFF A FEW POUNDS IN WORK TO HIT 200

Lands on One Opponent and Misses Two.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grand Beach, Mich., Sept. 3.—King Levinsky, Chicago's fun loving heavyweight, made the most of this sultry Labor day Sunday in his arduous preparation for his battle with Sailor Jack Sharkey at Comiskey park Sept. 15. Levinsky went through the routine prescribed for all fighters in his camp here today, boxing four rounds, skipping the rope and pommeling the light bag.

Levinsky shed several pounds of unnecessary avoirdupois. This marked the day a success, for the King is concentrating on making 200 pounds and his boxing and road work are designed to reach this figure rather than to make him the equal of Sharkey in ring strategy or ability.

All the Same to King.

Change of scenery—this is the first time Mrs. Lena Levy, the King's sister-manager, has gone in for a training camp in home territory—apparently has meant nothing to Levinsky. The King is the same king regardless of surroundings. He could stay in camp from now on and never be other than a wild swinging, free style puncher. A ...es of managers long ago crossed off as impossible the task of making Levinsky into a boxer. But Levinsky still possesses the gift of throwing his padded fists a bit harder than the average.

Levinsky misses more times than he reaches his intended target. He did today in his training and he'll do it tomorrow and the night he faces Sharkey. But those who buy tickets for the Comiskey park fracas probably hope that one of the many blows will caress Sharkey on the jaw. This just about summarizes the King's hope of success against the ex-champion. Then there are others who never have liked Levinsky and persistently have attended his matches in the belief that one of his opponents will plaster him with a knockout blow. Levinsky has knocked out few top notchers, but he never has been put down for the ten count.

Just So Much Work.

Levinsky's workout today against three sparring partners was a drab affair. However, the King never has been brilliant in his training sessions and many suspect that he would make as good a showing in the ring if he skipped the day after day drudgery of preparations. Levinsky went two rounds with Larry Johnson, one time sensation of the light heavyweight ranks. He boxed a three minute period with Roy Williams and finished with a round with Ed Wills, a former Golden Gloves champion.

Johnson made Levinsky appear better than usual by covering up in the corners and taking the King's series of hooks without retaliation. Williams and Wills, outweighted by many pounds, depended on their speed for protection. They danced in and out, jabbed and countered, and Levinsky was hard put to find a landing place for his blows.

A Few Fans Are Out.

To those who know Levinsky, this is immaterial. Many fighters have proved that he who hits and steps back can win a decision over the King. But the minute in the ring today cut off several pounds, satisfied a sparse gathering of holiday customers lured to the ringside by the gaudy posters announcing the Chicago fight, and as such was a success.

No matter what Levinsky may do in the camp in the next week, he still must depend on superior condition and a chance blow to whip Sharkey. Jack doesn't fear Levinsky. That is indicated by his fight schedule which calls for a match with Tommy Loughran at Philadelphia the latter part of this month and other bouts which Sharkey hopes will bring him back to the top of the heavyweight heap.

He's Not So Dumb.

Levinsky's work in the gymnasium may lack color, but he is superb copy at his beach cottage. If it is possible one might wish to correct a public that has been taught to believe in Levinky's innate dumbness. He has a highly developed sense of humor. That this is expressed in broad accents is no fault of Levinsky's, for to him a spade is a spade and why should any one try to find another word which means the same thing?

Moreover, the King is the King and he can do no wrong. His trainers and ring mates obey his orders, for after all the are his employés. He's the center of every crowd and his autograph already adorns the books of most of the kids who spend the summer on this sandy shore.

Just Bring on Sharkey!

Levinsky may believe he can whip Sharkey. He hasn't given his opinion on the subject. It is a certainty however, that the King is not afraid of meeting Jack. Lacking imagination, he can't know the fears that hover around a Tunney on the eve of fighting a Dempsey.

The managerial contingent which expects to make a few dollars from a Levinsky success is obviously doing all possible to make the King ready for his test at Comiskey Park. Doc Casey, widely publicized as one of the most intelligent of ring generals, now has been given other helpers, particularly Pete Reilly. Reilly expects to spend most of his time here for the next week. He is the manager who carried Bat Battalino along as featherweight champion and then picked up a share of Freddie Miller, who eventually supplanted Battalino. Reilly is said to have a financial interest in the King.

Want to Borrow a Car?

Nick Florio is Levinsky's ever present companion, ample guarantee that he will not stray from the narrow path of right living. Camp life is just a lot of fun for Levinsky anyway and he has no definite plans for his spare moments or for the future, for that matter. He has his automobile, which he will lend to any one on short notice; eats all he desires, and what more can he want?

HUNTERS! GET A DOG TO RETRIEVE CRIPPLED DUCKS

That's Message to You for Coming Season.

BY BOB BECKER.

Big losses in our duck population can be avoided if hunters will use retrievers to recover crippled birds and also stop the senseless, out-of-range shooting at birds. This is the important message now being broadcast to sportsmen on the eve of another waterfowl season as a result of the scientific study conducted by Prof. Paul L. Errington, in charge of wild life research at Iowa State college.

Prof. Errington and his assistant, Logan J. Bennett, secured their facts from 106 hunters who shot 1,315 ducks in Iowa last season. Complete details of the study and the lessons to be drawn from it are found in an article prepared for Outdoor Life.

Here Are the Figures.

A glance at the figures will give every sportsman an idea of the appalling losses in birds due to crippling and not following up and retrieving the ducks with dogs. Thirty-five average duck hunters [average in experience and shooting ability] went into a marsh [no dogs], shot 212 ducks, of which they lost 88. This is a loss of 41 per cent. Six veteran hunters, better shots and better at marking and following cripples, dropped 194 birds during the season, recovered 168, and lost 31, thus losing just 16 per cent of their birds. Notice that difference.

In pass-shooting the percentages are so high that they ought to make any duck hunter think twice before he pulls down on a bird which is beyond the sureshot range. Checking the experiences of 26 veteran hunters, Errington found that they lost one-fourth of all birds hit as they flew over a pass. Average hunters [ten of them] reported that they lost 59.7 per cent of all the birds they hit. Decoy shooting was the most efficient type of duck hunting from the standpoint of few lost birds. Thirteen experienced duck shooters [without dogs] hunting over decoys lost only ten per cent of their birds.

Here's Professor's Comment.

One of Errington's comments on how birds are lost is particularly important. He says:

"Many hunters without a dog, boat or boots, continue to drop bird after bird out on water where there is no chance of their being washed in or picked up. Indeed, the hunter's personal attitude governs so much the number of dead and crippled ducks he leaves behind him that other factors assume as aspect of trivial consequence."

He adds that a good dog is of inestimable assistance in holding down the percentage of cripples. If there is anything that should urge duck hunters to use some type of retriever, this Iowa study on appalling losses should do it. It is apparent that if sportsmen would take an Irish water spaniel, a springer spaniel, a cocker, Labrador, Chesapeake or any dog that will go into water and weeds for cripples, hundreds of thousands of birds would be saved each year.

The Warfare of the Helens

The Story of Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs —Enemies On and Off Tennis Court.

every one in a dignified, kindly way. She looks her dignity. She has a knack for the proper stylish dress—a knack which her daughter later acquired to the nth degree. Helen's mother, well educated and well poised, was socially correct in all things.

England, France Pay Homage to Helen.

Less than a year after she won the American championship Helen Wills' game, her modesty, her reserve, her gray eyes, her eyeshade were the talk of England, where she played, accompanied by her mother. France went wild about her, and a match was urged between Suzanne Lenglen, then admittedly the best woman tennis player in the world, and "Little Miss Poker Face."

Helen Wills had gained that name early from Ed Sullivan, columnist, and it has stayed with her through the years, although a few sports writers have argued that it is inaccurate and unfair, that Helen Wills' eyes and lips reveal plenty of emotion during her games. Nevertheless, most sports writers agree that from the beginning of her career to the present she has played a methodical, mechanically beautiful game, without the slightest display of enthusiasm.

Years passed quickly. Little Helen Wills, who in 1925 won her third national singles championship, was growing up. She was denying her engagement to a fellow University of California student, Gerald Stratford. She was slow metamorphasizing into the fashionable, lovely girl she is today.

In January, 1926, she went to Europe again—"for fun." But it was freely said that the much ballyhooed Lenglen-Wills match was at last being staged. Miss Lenglen had heard much about Miss Wills—so much, in fact, that there was a growing tension between those two tennis lights.

Loses One Match and Gains Another.

The match was held in February. A few days before Helen suffered a gashed knee. She played just the same and she made Mlle. Lenglen extend herself considerably. But the French champion won, 6-3, 8-6. The French were openly pleased because Little Miss Poker Face made no excuses. She would, she said, like another chance. She should have it!

But if she lost that match she gained another.

For at that same time she met quite by chance a young man a few years her senior, Frederick Shander Moody Jr. He was touring Europe's art galleries with his father, a socially prominent San Francisco business man. The Moody and Willis families had been friends for years. Helen had never happened to meet Fred. He didn't care for tennis. She didn't care for sailing—his favorite sport. But they both loved to dance.

Before another match could be arranged between Wills and Lenglen, fate stepped in. Helen was stricken with appendicitis. The operation put her out of tennis for several months. Then she had to return to school, and before other tennis plans could be made, Mlle. Lenglen had turned professional.

Along Comes a Freshman Named Jacobs.

Although Helen took frequent leaves of absence from school to attend to her tennis affairs, she was a good student, majoring in art—she acquired the gift of drawing from her mother—and in her junior year she was chosen for Phi Beta Kappa, scholastic society. She was by that time also a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, social sorority—and now we're back to the school girl snub, again. There are two versions of it.

One is that Helen Wills' sorority sisters had their eyes on a university freshman—a Helen Jacobs—as a pledge and future member. Western sports writers were saying that this Jacobs girl, two years younger than Miss Wills, was a coming champion; that she would some day be Helen Wills' closest rival. The writers were paying her proportionately more compliments than they were paying the national champion, because the Jacobs gal was news. And this was said to have developed a bit of natural friction between the two tennis lights.

Levine Boxes Geno Tonight at Marigold

Sammy Levine, west side featherweight, and Young Geno of La Salle, Ill., will meet in an eight round bout tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. It will be Levine's first appearance here in six months, when he beat Davy Day.

Johnny Fitzpatrick and Harry Booker, local 126 pound boxers, are matched for six rounds in the main supporting bout. Henry Rothier will make his third professional start against Mickey Landis of New York in a four round bout. Other matches:

Steve Pajdo vs. Eddie Smith [4].
Kid Norfolk vs. Bobby Millsapp [4].
Neil Donald vs. Marie La Plante [wrestling].

Joey Bozak, Blue Island featherweight, and Freddy Gravelle of Kankakee, Ill., have been matched in the windup tomorrow at the outdoor arena at White City. Frank Ketter, north side heavyweight, faces Verne Trickle and Einar Hedquist meets Jerry Kucera in preliminary contests.

Sam Abruscato, Western stadium matchmaker, has arranged three bouts to support the Gordon Fortenberry-Fritz Heinz eight round main event tomorrow. They are:

Joe Kleko and Fred Miller [4].
Walter Mady and Moss T. Brawner [4].
Johnny Morris and Ralph Mote [4].

Johnny Long, Gary, Ind, light heavyweight, and George Williams of the west side are paired in a six round semi-final at Northwest stadium Wednesday. Long has not boxed in almost a year, while Williams has won 14 of his last 18 matches. In his most recent start he beat Jack Moran.

Paul Dazzo, local junior lightweight, is expected to give Tony Muscarello a test in the ten round feature bout. Dazzo whipped Art Donovan and Bert Visconi recently. Muscarello has compiled a string of nine straight triumphs. Pete Verri engages Hank Bucker and John Pekovitch is matched with Chuck Reed at four rounds.

The Coliseum has been selected as the site for Champion Primo Carnera's four round exhibition bout on Sept. 11. He is scheduled to leave Hollywood, Cal., Saturday by airplane for Chicago. It probably will be the champion's last appearance in America until after his title contest with Don McCorkindale, heavyweight title holder of Great Britain, in Rome on Oct. 20. He is to leave for Rome Sept. 16.

LAMBERT TIES WORLD CASTING ACCURACY MARK

Ernie Lambert, captain of the Lincoln Park Casting club, tied the world's record with a perfect score of 100 in the wet fly accuracy event yesterday afternoon at the club's casting pool, Fullerton avenue and the inner drive.

J. B. Nystrom won the accuracy bait events by capturing the five-eighths ounce accuracy bait with a score of 99 per cent, which tied the national record, and the three-eighths ounce accuracy bait with 97 per cent.

F. R. Steel won the dry fly unknown with 97 per cent and the distance fly with a 104 2-3 feet average. The summaries:

Wet Fly Accuracy—Won by Ernie Lambert, 100 per cent; W. B. Sturgis, second, 99 per cent; Eddie Davis, third, 98 per cent.

Five-eighths Ounce Accuracy Bait—Won by J. B. Nystrom, 99 per cent; Eddie Davis, second, 98 per cent; A. J. Naugle, third, 97 per cent.

Three-eighths Ounce Accuracy Bait—Won by J. B. Nystrom, 97 per cent; E. Lambert and Joe Nystrom, tied for second, 96 per cent; A. J. Naugle and Eddie Davis, tied for fourth, 94 per cent.

Dry Fly Unknown—Won by Frank Steel, 97 per cent; Eddie Davis, second, 90 per cent; Joe Nystrom Jr., third, 87 per cent.

GIVES CHECKER EXHIBITION.

N. W. Banks of Detroit, Mich., world's checker champion for almost 24 consecutive years, will play 140 games simultaneously in four hours at A Century of Progress today. He will start playing at 1 o'clock on the North lagoon boardwalk.

SENATORS BEAT RED SOX, 3-2, ON BOLTON'S SINGLE

Pinch Batter's Hit in 9th Scores Bluege.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Cliff Bolton, rookie catcher, stepping up to the plate as a pinch hitter with two out in the ninth inning today, hit a single to left to give the Washington Senators a 3 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

BROWNS WIN, 2-1; TIE, 5-5.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns closed their home season today with a 2 to 1 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the first game and a 5 to 5 tie in the second, which was called after the ninth inning because of darkness.

George Blaeholder, supported by brilliant infield work, was the major factor in the Browns' victory, even though Tom Bridges, Detroit pitcher, held them to six hits. Blaeholder yielded eight safeties and was scored on only once, in the sixth, when Detroit bunched three hits. Score:

Pirates' Streak Ends at Eight; Reds Win, 9-3

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates' headlong drive in which they had won eight straight games, was stopped today by the last place Cincinnati Reds, who soundly beat them, 9 to 3, although both teams got 12 hits.

Ralph Birkofer, a rookie pitcher, was the chief victim of the Red's attack, but Waite Hoyt also was trampled upon when he went to the rescue. Red Lucas hurled for Cincinnati.

DE PAUL TO HOLD FIRST FOOTBALL DRILL TOMORROW

Completion of De Paul university's football schedule and plans for the start of practice tomorrow were announced yesterday by Athletic Director Jim Kelly.

The De Paul squad will have an eight game schedule. Competition will begin Sept. 30 when the University of Omaha will be met in a game here. No site has been selected for the home contests.

One of the new teams on the schedule is the University of Dixie. The southern school will be engaged in the windup battle Nov. 18 at Dallas, Tex. This is the only long trip on the De Paul program.

Sept. 30—Omaha vs. De Paul at Chicago.
Oct 7—Valparaiso vs. De Paul at Chicago.
Oct. 22—Niagara vs. De Paul at Niagara.
Oct 28—Western State vs. De Paul at Kalamazoo, Mich.
Nov. 4—South Dakota vs. De Paul at Chicago.
Nov. 11—St. Thomas vs. De Paul at Chicago.
Nov. 18—Dixie vs. De Paul at Dallas, Tex.

speed grounder toward right and it was just a fraction beyond Infielder Herman's reach. It slipped off his finger tips and rolled slowly toward the outfield, giving Watkins time to score from second. Then Allen lined a hit over short and Medwick registered. Durocher's popup put a stop to the rally.

Two hits caused another run to be shaken from Warneke in the fifth, giving the Cards a 3 to 1 edge. Lewis a rookie catcher, led off with a single to left, and Vance sacrificed. The speedy Martin hit safely to left. It was nothing more than an every day single, but the speedy fellow reckoned he might as well stretch it into a double. He didn't fall short on his reckoning. Lewis scored easily. Martin didn't get beyond second because Watkins popped a foul to Hartnett and Frisch was thrown out by Warneke.

Stephenson Steals Second.

Stephenson tried to stimulate the business of run getting in the fourth. He singled to center after Babe Herman had been thrown out by Durocher. Hartnett helped himself to three of Vance's strikes. Then Stevie, in despair, stole record, but was left there when Grimm rolled to Collins.

Another chance arose in the sixth, but more strikes were brought into the proceedings by Vance. Billy Herman led off with a single, but both Cuyler and Babe Herman fanned. Stephenson then singled to center. Billy Herman headed for third on the hit, but was cut down on a perfect throw by Allen.

Warneke was confronted with another ticklish situation in the seventh, but frustrated his asasilants. Another single by Lewis opened the inning, and Vance did the usual sacrifice. Martin was thrown out on a ball knocked down by Warneke and Watkins drew a pass. This brought Frisch into the center of the picture, but Warneke took care of the Cardinals' manager on strikes.

Koenig Draws Pass.

The Cub eighth was enlivened by the appearance of Koenig as pinch man for Warneke. He drew a pass. There was much whooping when Vance threw three wide of the plate to Hack, but the Dazzler amended his ways in time to fan the youngster. Billy Herman tried to catch Vance off balance with a surprise bunt, but the old timer had seen that trick before. He picked up the bunt and threw the runner out at first. Then Cuyler grounded to Durocher.

The Cubs kicked up a fuss in the ninth, but it did nothing more than delay the finish. The inning started with the last jolt for Babe Herman. He fanned for the third time. Stephenson singled to left for his fourth straight hit. Hartnett boosted a high fly and Allen grabbed it. Grimm came through with a single that sent Stephenson to third. Grimm retired to let Demaree run for him, and Hendrick batted for Jurges. He popped to Durocher and there was no more.

U. S. RIFLE TEAM EXCEEDS 1,963 IN SHOOT IN OHIO

Camp Perry, O., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A score exceeding the record of 1,963 was amassed by the American team of ten members in finishing the international small bore rifle team match late today.

Today's scores, however, will not be announced until the other competing nations have completed their firing on their home ranges and then the results will be announced from Paris. The match is fired at fifty meters.

Another new record was made today when the Standard Steel Car Rifle club of Butler, Pa., landed first place in the interclub long range team match with a score of 785 out of a possible 800 on the 200 yard range.

The Dover, O., Rifle club was second with a score of 773, the Midway Rifle club of Chicago was third with 771, the Dayton, O., Rifle and Revolver club fourth with 768, and the Bowling Green, O., Rifle club fifth with 766.

CHICAGO JUNIOR LEGION NINE TIES NEW ORLEANS, 7-7

New Orleans, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Four thousand fans had a big day of baseball today as an aftermath of the American Legion junior series in which Chicago defeated Trenton two games straight.

Today in the opener of a double header exhibition, Trenton, runner-up to Chicago for the national junior crown, triumphed, 4 to 3, over the New Orleans 1933 Legion entry in seven innings.

The second game resulted in a 7 to 7 tie between the Chicago champions and the New Orleans 1932 American Legion champions. The game was ended after the eighth inning by darkness. Score:

Trenton	010	210	*—4 6 0
New Orleans	000	011	1—3 7 2

SECOND GAME.

Chicago	600	100	00—7 11 1
New Orleans	000	202	21—7 9 3

Batteries—Graebe and Weiss; Graffagnini and Guillot.

HACK'S BACK, BUT SO IS VANCE

Indians Beat Sox, 14-3, in Series Final

grounded to Dykes, who threw to Berry in time to head off Vosmik at the plate. Charley, however, held the ball while Vosmik ran back to third and Hale advanced to second. Kamm singled to center, scoring Vosmik and Hale. Hayes made a miracle play to throw out Boss. Pytlak beat out an infield hit. Ferrell singled to left, Kamm scoring. Then Porter doubled, scoring Pytlak and Ferrell. Appling received an ovation when he threw out Cissell to end the inning.

With one out in the eighth Vosmik singled to left and Galatzer went out running for him. Faber made a wild throw to first and the runner took third. Kamm singled to left scoring Galatzer. Boss grounded out to Kress.

Manager Lew Fonseca and his little band of disillusioned performers last night shuffled off for Detroit, the first stop on the White Sox's longest road trip of the year.

A double header will be played with the Tigers this afternoon. Ted Lyons and Sam Jones are scheduled to see what they can do in the matter of pitching.

The pause in Detroit will be brief. At 11:30 tonight the rip snortin' Comiskeys will dash on to Washington, bent on bearding the coming American league champions.

Collegian Bocek made his professional debut when he batted for Faber in the eighth. The Indians were leading, 14 to 3 at the time—a situation in which many a pitcher would have eased up a bit. But not the sour Mr. Ferrell. He was bearing down on the kid like a world series hinged on the batter.

Hanley Leaves for Canada on Vacation Trip

Coaching all-star football teams is pleasant, but for real satisfaction Coach Dick Hanley prefers his own Northwestern squad, he said yesterday as he prepared to leave for a vacation in Canada before the opening of practice Sept. 15.

"The players on the East team were a fine bunch of fellows," Coach Hanley said. "There wasn't a prima donna in the outfit and we had a lot of fun getting ready for the game.

"But a coach gets more satisfaction out of his own squad. He teaches the boys fundamentals and watches them develop week by week. It was a great experience working with a team of stars, but all the same I will be glad to greet our own squad Sept. 15."

The Wildcats will have a green team this fall, but one that is definitely on the upgrade, Coach Hanley believes. He scouted talk of a championship eleven, holding that such reference was far fetched.

Cubs Will Face Dean in One of Today's Battles

The Cubs have nothing much to look forward to in this afternoon's double header with the Cardinals. The champion striker out of them all, Mr. Dizzy Dean, and Tex Carleton will handle the pitching for the visitors. Dean will be seeking his nineteenth victory of the season and Carleton his sixteenth. Charley Root and Guy Bush will work for the Cubs.

Until yesterday Pepper Martin had been out for several days because of a wrenched ankle. He didn't look much like a cripple when he tore for second to accomplish a double in the fifth. Martin saw Stephenson and Jurges hesitate about picking up the ball, and so he wasn't content with a single.

Among the press box occupants was Mordecai Brown, the famous Cub pitcher of the Frank Chance days. Brownie is an oil magnate and is spending the summer acting as greeter at one of the oil exhibitions at a A Century of Progress.

VINES TO OPEN DEFENSE OF U. S. NET TITLE TODAY

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Their numbers cut to sixty-four, tennis' international stars took a day of rest today preparatory to resuming action in the second round of the national singles championship tomorrow.

There was little in the twenty-six first round matches yesterday to stir up even a modicum of excitement as favorites, led by Frank Shields of New York and Fred Perry of England, disposed of minor opposition with practically no trouble. Six other seeded players—Frankie Parker, Milwaukee; George Lott, Chicago; Gregory Mangin, Newark; Ryosuke Nunoi of Japan, and the Australian youngsters, Don Turnbull and Adrian Quist—advanced with them into the second round.

Tomorrow's program will be marked by opening tests for Ellsworth Vines, winner of the title for the last two years, and one of his most dangerous challengers, Jack Crawford of Australia. Both drew first round byes and thus went into the second round, Vines against Ray Palmer of Malba, N. Y., and Crawford against Julius Seligson of New York.

CALUMET CITY SHOOTER WINS AT LINCOLN PARK

Breaking 143 targets out of a possible 150, W. Wojceihoski of Calumet City yesterday won the first of the two day series of open trapshooting events at the Lincoln Park Gun club, which will be concluded today with the annual Labor day tournament.

Dr. E. J. Davis of East Chicago, Ind., was second with 142. G. R. Batten and C. M. Spainhour, both of Chicago, tied for third with 141.

Fort Sheridan Wins, 5-4, in Polo Contest

In a badly played game resembling more eight schoolboys at shinny than the dashing, scientific polo games between the East and the West at Onwentsia the Fort Sheridan high goal team defeated a combined civilian and military quartet, 5 to 4, yesterday on the Fort Sheridan field.

The game was the first of a series for possession of the Gen. Frank Parker trophy. The second will be played this afternoon and a third, if necessary, next Sunday.

With the score tied at 4 to 4 in the last minute of play, Capt. C. B. Cole made the winning goal for Fort Sheridan. He had just entered the game as a substitute for Lieut. Larry Smith, who was injured during the final chukker. Lineup and summary:

FT. SHERIDAN [5.]		ALL STARS [4].
G. Smith	No. 1	Porter
Wilkinson	No. 2	Corpening
Davis	No. 3	Rodes
L. Smith, Cole	Back	Lorber

Score by chukkers:

Fort Sheridan	101	110	01—5
All Stars	011	100	10—4

Goals—Davis [2], G. Smith, Cole, Wilkinson, Porter, Corpening, Rodes, Lorber.

ARTILLERY WINS, 6-5.

The 124th Field Artillery polo team defeated Oak Brook, 6 to 5, yesterday in the first game of the central open tournament at Oak Brook. Lineups:

124TH FIELD ARTILLERY [6].		OAK BROOK [5].
Capt. L. Everett	No. 1	Horace Wetmore
Maj. R. Hunter	No. 2	George Bates
Capt. W. Everett	No. 3	Paul Butler

Oak Brook	2	0	0	1	1 1—5

Goals—W. Everett [3], L. Everett, Hunter, Schuh, Wetmore, Bates, Butler [2], Stockton.

SMITH SCORES 5 GOALS.

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Cecil Smith, star Texan, scored five goals as Greentree and the Hurricans played to an 8-8 tie in a six chukker polo game here today. Capt. C. T. I. Roark's four goals led the Hurricanes' scoring.

RECORDS FALL IN N. A. A. U. WEIGHT LIFTING CONTEST

Six national records were broken in the national senior A. A. U. weight lifting championships held in the garden of the Old Heidelberg inn at A Century of Progress yesterday.

Lucian Leplante of the West End A. C., Gardner, Mass., shattered two national records. In the 112 pound class in the two hand slatch he hoisted 149 pounds and in the two hands clean and jerk he lifted 198½ pounds.

Less Tennis for Davis Cup Team Urged

New York, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Offering no alibi for the unexpected defeat of the American Davis cup team by the British this year, Bernon S. Prentice today made public his official report as chairman of the United States Davis cup committee. He defended the entire course of the 1933 campaign and recommended only in general terms that "those anticipating strenuous tennis in the spring and summer should reduce their play during the winter months."

Prentice referred to the "mental staleness" caused by continual play, such as "Ellsworth Vines and Wilmer Allison, the American singles players engaged in by touring Australia last winter," but offset this suggestion of criticism by remarking that the hero of the British victory, Fred Perry, also had played continually during the previous year, including a trip to South Africa.

Team Not Overtrained.

The Davis cup chairman branded as "absurd" the charge that the American team was overtennised or overtrained otherwise; insisted that complete harmony prevailed within the organization, pointing out that financially "we did better than break even," and sounded an optimistic note for Americans in the shift of deciding play from France's hard courts to England's turf.

"It is unfortunate that, due to misunderstanding through press comments, certain facts in connection with our European play should have to be laid before you," said the report. "Last year when England was unexpectedly defeated in the interzone finals by Germany, no explanations were given and no excuses made. England took her defeat without comment and hoped for better luck next time. . . . The answer is that England does not take her sports too seriously and realizes that excuses and alibis are not consistent with sportsmanship and playing the game.

English at Their Best.

"We know that to have matched Austin and Perry on the days we played them, on a court perfectly suited to their games, Vines and Allison would have had to have been at the very top of their form. Nothing can detract from their great victory and their record is magnificent."

CARP FISHING TO BE PERMITTED IN PARK LAGOONS

Fishing for carp will be permitted beginning tomorrow in the lagoons of the west park system, it was announced yesterday by Harry Joseph, president of the west park board. The fishermen must obtain a state fishing license, costing 50 cents, at the park administration building in Garfield park, or at one of the loop stores which sell them, and must use one of the park rowboats. They must throw back other fish than carp which they catch, the purpose of the fishing season being to reduce the number of carp in the lagoons to permit the breeding of game fish. Fishing is not permitted on Sundays or holidays.

Norwegians and Slavias Tie in Soccer, 3-3

The Slavia soccer team of Cleveland and the Norwegian-Americans of the Chicago International league, playing their first games of the season, battled to a 3 to 3 tie at Sparta stadium yesterday.

The Norwegians led, 1 to 0, at the half through a goal by Starrett. McNair tied the score shortly after the second half opened following a corner by Griffith. The Norwegians, after repeated attacks, broke through the Cleveland defense and went into the lead again, Stavnem scoring from 5 yards. Thomson made the score even again, but George Caraffi put the Slavias ahead.

Just as the whistle was about to sound Stavnem sent in the tying score for the Norwegians with a shot from 20 yards. Lineup:

BANKERS OF U. S. BEGIN ANNUAL MEETING TODAY

Sisson Raps Critics of Credit Stand.

The American Bankers' association will open today at the Stevens hotel its fifty-ninth annual convention. The subject matter of discussions has been, to a large extent, provided by events which have transpired, and by policies undertaken or intimated, since the inauguration of the new administration. The convention, for which an attendance of 4,000 to 4,500 bankers is anticipated, will be in session through Thursday, Sept. 7.

FRANCIS H. SISSON.

After devoting yesterday to visiting A Century of Progress, members will be occupied today by meetings of committees, commissions, and two of the four divisions of the association. The first of three general sessions will open tomorrow morning.

Statement by Sisson.

The banks stand as ready today to make good loans to their customers as they ever did and "repeated assertions by administration officials that the banks are culpable for not being more willing to extend credit in promoting the plans of the NRA are absolutely unjustified."

This statement was made last night by Francis H. Sisson, president of the association, who was one of the early arrivals. Mr. Sisson asserted that the banks need the earning power which good loans would give and are in a position to extend credit to sound business. He added that unsound loans or overexpansion of credit could only result in disaster to the banks and to business.

Wants Act Modified.

Mr. Sisson insisted that there must be important modifications of the Glass-Steagall act if it is to have any beneficial effect upon the banking business and the service of banking to the country. He said the following suggestions have been made: 1. That deposit insurance be modified if not eliminated. 2. That the securities act handicaps financing to such an extent that it will seriously jeopardize business expansion. 3. That the elimination of security affiliates not only is a handicap to business in general, but also to the government in meeting its financing needs.

What the nation needs, Mr. Sisson asserted, is fewer banks, more adequately capitalized, better supervised, and better managed; standardization of laws and methods, greater and more intelligent coöperation between government and banking, and better understanding by the public of its joint responsibility in maintaining banking solvency and efficiency.

Federal Chiefs to Speak.

Prominent speakers at the general convention include A. A. Berle Jr., special advisor to the Reconstruction Finance corporation; Eugene R. Black, governor of the federal reserve board; Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and James F. T. O'Connor, controller of the currency.

This morning the national bank division of the association will assemble under the presidency of J. R. Cain Jr., vice president of the Omaha National bank. O. Howard Wolfe, cashier of the Philadelphia National bank, will speak on "Interest Rates on Time Deposits," a subject on which the governor of the federal reserve board is also expected to touch.

Mr. Cain has arranged a symposium on the problem of "Adjusting Loaning and Investing Policies Under the Banking Act of 1933," in which Marvin E. Holderness, vice president of the First National bank, St. Louis, will represent the city banks, and Charles F. Zimmerman, president of the First National bank, Huntingdon, Pa., the country banks.

Trust Group Meets Today.

The trust division, of which R. M. Sims, vice president of the American Trust company, San Francisco, is president, will meet this afternoon. A statement on "Trust Departments and the Bank Holiday" from the controller of the currency will be read by Gwilym A. Price, vice president of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust company. Philip A. Benson, president of the National Association of Mutual Savings banks, will address the division on "The Legal List Under Present Day Conditions."

Members of the savings division, whose president is Gilbert L. Daane, president of the Grand Rapids Savings bank, will gather tomorrow afternoon to hear three addresses, besides that of Mr. Daane. Oliver W. Roosevelt, first vice president of the Dry Dock Savings institution, New York City, will speak on "The Significance of the Savings Banks Trust Company in the Savings Business in New York State"; Simon Newcomb Whitney of the Chase National bank, New York City, on "Do Savings Hamper Prosperity?"; and Orrin C. Lester, vice president of the Bowery Savings bank, New York City, on "Maintaining Confidence in the Savings Dollar."

Farmers See No Benefit in Rise in Prices

BY PAUL POTTER.

Some of the large Chicago business concerns whose arteries of trade extend back into the hinterlands of the great middle west are beginning to get reports from their farmer friends that prices of things the farmer has to buy are advancing faster than those things he has to sell.

Last July, when inflation talk was in the air, commodity markets joined in a merry upturn and prospects for trade with farmers this fall seemed unusually bright. But the farmers know, and they are beginning to express themselves on the subject in farm meetings and at silo filling, that what has happened is not putting up prices of the products that bring cash with which to meet the taxes and other fixed expenses of the farm.

Some Farmers Handicapped.

On the contrary, the advances in grain prices have merely increased the cost of doing business for several million farmers whose major income is derived from livestock, poultry, and dairy products. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace made this clear in Washington on Thursday when he outlined the obstacles to agrarian betterment via the inflation route.

Hogs and cattle, which together consume the major portion of the corn, oats, rye and hay crops of the nation, as well as by-products of the cotton industry, are still selling at about the prices quoted in May, before any efforts were made by the government to adjust economic factors for agriculture. One-seventh of the nation's land is in pasture, turned into cash only in the form of some livestock product.

Plan to Reduce Surplus.

The two major crop adjustments under way by the government, in cotton and wheat, both will reduce the existing surplus in the United States by a less amount than the existing surpluses of these crops in the world market. These two adjustments, consequently, are said by students of the problem to be serving to correct a world overproduction.

When the plans for these reductions were announced, and when they were put into effect, prices of the commodities affected failed to rise, and in both cotton and wheat markets the prices have declined since the reduction schemes began to operate. When the reduction plan for pigs and sows was introduced last month, livestock prices also went down instead of up.

Butter Loses Upturn.

There was a flurry during August, when the government announced that $30,000,000 would be spent to buy up surplus butter and take it off the market. Prices went up for a while, but have dropped again as it is learned that not a penny of this sum has been spent, nor do plans seem to exist for executing the order.

The department of agriculture reports that as of Aug. 15 the prices of things the farmer buys were 12 per cent over pre-war prices of the same items. The index number for farm products stands at less than 80, using 100 as the index of pre-war farm prices.

Fruit and vegetable prices are somewhat higher than a year ago, in a market without futures trading but due to generaly adverse growing conditions this season compared with a year ago.

Prices Are Compared.

Hog prices in May were under 4 cents a pound, cattle under 6 cents a pound, butter 21 cents a pound, eggs 13¼ cents a dozen, cash wheat 55 cents a bushel, cash corn 28 cents a bushel, and cash rye 40 cents a bushel. Today the prices comparable to those given are: Hogs, under 3.8 cents; cattle, under 6 cents; butter, 22¼ cents; eggs, 14¼ cents; cash wheat, 85½ cents; cash corn, 50 cents, and rye, 72 cents.

In the last week several farm implement concerns have advanced machinery prices, seedsmen are quoting prices one-third to two-thirds above those last spring, the farm labor index has advanced several points, and the foods, fuel, and clothing a farmer buys are advancing along with those of city dwellers.

Harvest time in 1933 has not brought the agricultural situation anywhere near the objectives set forth in the agricultural adjustment act: "To a parity with prices of 1909-1914."

WOMEN BANKERS TO OPEN MEETING AT BLACKSTONE

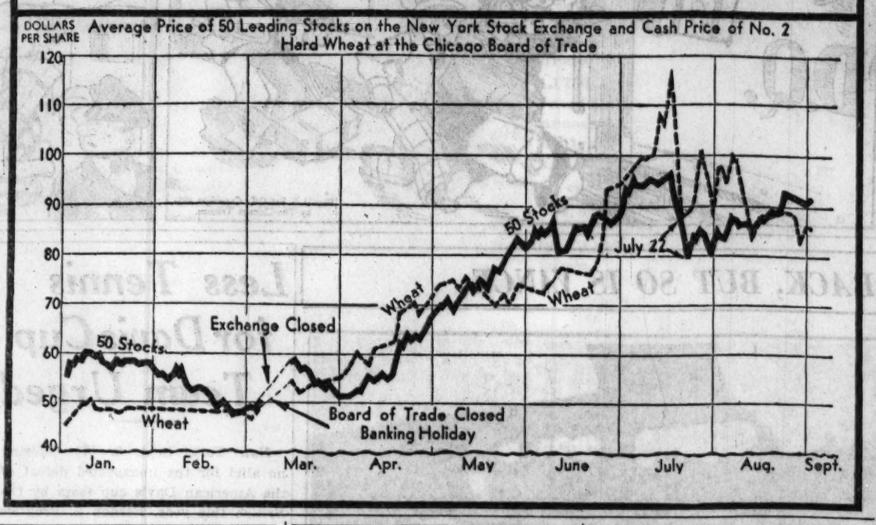
Women executives of some of the largest banks in the country will attend the three day convention of the Association of Women Bankers at the Blackstone hotel, starting today. A tea in the Marble room of the hostelry will be the first function on their program.

The guests are expected to include a majority of all the women in this country who have risen to places of prominence in the financial field.

Three past presidents of the group will be registered at the Blackstone, as will the present head, Miss Agnes Kenny of the First Wisconsin National bank of Milwaukee. The former presidents are Miss Mina Burere of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company and Miss Jean Arnot Reid, Bankers Trust company, both of New York, and Miss Grace Stoermer of the Bank of America N. T. & S. A. of Los Angeles.

Wheat and Stocks Move Together in Rise and Fall



FARMER GROUP ASKS HELP FOR SUGAR GROWERS

The American Farm Bureau federation yesterday appealed to domestic sugar producers and refiners to oppose any code under the agricultural adjustment act that would put American sugar on a quota basis in comparison with the foreign product.

In a communication addressed to all member groups, the federation said it took action after protests filed by western state farm bureaus, which said the quota limitation would crowd domestic producers out of the market they now have.

They objected further to any limitation on building new sugar factories or facilities for the manufacture of sugar beets or cane into refined sugar. Also the western bureaus denounced any policy to give consideration to representatives of foreign producers of sugar in considering the course that the United States should follow in dealing with domestic producers.

Edward O'Neal, president of the federation, declared: "There is no excuse for a tariff on sugar unless the tariff is for the benefit of the American farmer."

CHICAGO FACTORIES HAVE ENOUGH ORDERS TO RUN UNTIL JAN. 1

Chicago manufacturers and wholesalers of stable goods have enough back orders on hand right now to keep them going full blast for the balance of the year, it was announced by trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Reviewing local commercial conditions during the last week, these observers found retail turnover still seeking new seasonal peaks, a slight recession in wholesale future commitments and general optimism in practically all other lines of business.

The influx of holiday visitors to A Century of Progress was said to have exceeded anything in this history of Chicago. In three and a half hours yesterday morning the Pennsylvania railroad alone emptied 48 trainloads of passengers at union station. Of these 33 were extra excursion trains.

The resultant activity in Chicago's hotel, restaurant, amusement and local transportation circles was what might be expected.

The opening of the automobile week at A Century of Progress has also helped to stimulate this line of business with lower priced models answering good demands.

U. S. OBLIGATIONS MATURING CLOSE TO 3 BILLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 3.—Obligations of the United States government that will mature within the next twelve months amount to $2,950,886,200. They consist of treasury certificates of indebtedness, notes and noninterest bearing discount bills.

In addition the first Liberty loan 4¼s are redeemable on Dec. 15, 1933, if notice is given by Sept. 15. This issue amounts to $535,982,000. The Liberty 3½s, outstanding in the amount of $1,392,227,350, will also become redeemable on Dec. 15 if three months' prior notice is given. The fourth Liberty 4¼s, of which $6,468,095,250 are outstanding, may be redeemable in whole or in part on April 15, 1934, if notice is given by Oct. 15, 1933.

Simmons Company Reports Gain in Unfilled Orders

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The central division plant of the Simmons company booked during the week to Aug. 24 orders for 39,478 units, bringing unfilled orders up to 52,000 units. The orders on Aug. 18 stood at 38,009 units. The plant operates on two eight hour daily shifts.

WALL ST. SEES CRITICAL PERIOD LOOMING AHEAD

Wonders What Fall Will Bring.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 3.—Labor day comes and the stock market goes over the great divide to whatever of good or ill the new season may have in reserve for it. Most commonly the date has brought little change in the past—except some disheartening disappointment to those who insist on setting it down willy-nilly as the high calendar point where midsummer inactivity turns into autumn trade revival.

It usually happens that the revival, if it does not get lost for good, is a month or two in rolling around. It never did get in last year, the discovery of the critical bank situation largely nullifying even the progress that had been made in the late summer upturn. September of 1931 had brought a similar disappointment to those hoping for an "autumn movement," and every one knows the early fall of 1930 brought the big break in wheat, which was the forerunner of a big stock market crash.

Wonder What's Ahead.

There are signs aplenty that this year's "turn" of season may be equally disappointing to those who have been looking forward to it to usher in the millennium—what with the inauguration of the new code system and other actions. Some such suspicion has been growing in the minds of astute observers of the speculative community for the last two weeks or so. During the last few days it has developed into a perplexity bordering on anxiety in some quarters more or less given to skepticism on the score of the NRA program.

Popular uncertainty on the score has brought the market to almost a complete standstill. Prices, indeed, gave ground slightly in the five dull and monotonous trading sessions of last week, all of them together resulting in a turnover of only 9,772,919 shares.

Summaries Show Declines.

Industrial summaries were inclined to lay the curetailment largely to uncertainty surrounding the codification plans of the recovery administration and partly to seasonal influences. The comments were generally optimistic, but the reaction, whatever its major causes, could not be ignored. Most commentators seem to think that much is going to depend, over the next few weeks, on the success or failure of the big drive which the NRA forces are undertaking in an effort to revive the recovery movement thus suddenly interrupted.

Accountants Ask Security Law Changes

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

While Chicago accountants generally are in sympathy with the provisions of the new federal security act, a number feel that some of the provisions should be liberalized in order that the law may work with the effectiveness hoped for it.

Investment bankers are asserting that the law is so complicated and so strict that it will largely stop all new financing. They insist that as a result of a halt in meeting the legitimate needs of business for new capital many of the efforts being made at Washington to put men back to work may be offset.

The act states that officials of companies, boards of directors, investment house officials, and accountants or appraisers participating in the compiling of information regarding an issue of securities are jointly responsible.

Investors May Sue Signers.

Should any investor lose later, he may sue all parties civilly, provided he is able to show that complete information was not available when he made his purchase or that there were inaccuracies. All parties signing the registration forms sent to the federal trade commission at Washington are jointly responsible for their accuracy and may be sued for any breach for a period of ten years.

One well known Chicago accountant yesterday gave some views on the law. He held that the federal trade commission will need to define many terms of the act in order to clarify it. Much, however, will have to be clarified by court decisions, he added.

"Success or failure of the law will depend on its administration," the accountant said. "It can kill the legitimate security business or help it. Strong arm methods will invite the bootleg security dealer to take a chance, and the legitimate dealer will have to stand and take it on the chin.

Accountants Held Responsible.

"Accountants and other experts are held responsible for their reports, and they should be so held. The forms drafted to present accounting reports are too fixed. Accountants could show more valuable information if they were left freedom of action.

"The commission is doing its best with a very difficult job. So far, at least, its intentions are good.

"In my opinion the commission should draft an advisory committee of $1 a year men for consultation whenever necessary. This committee should consist of two certified public accountants, two economists, two lawyers, and two investment bankers. These men should be in a position to give freely of their time for the good of the cause.

"The details which must now be included in a prospectus will need to be greatly reduced in volume or the cost will be prohibitive. Regulations covering the following points, including definitions, should be issued as rapidly as possible: 1, last date; 2, bona fide offer; 3, new offering; 4, public offering, etc."

CO-ORDINATING OF CODE CHECKS STEEL BUYING

Mill Output Falls Off to 45 Pct.

With Labor day the iron and steel industry enters a period of restricted buying and "price digestion" rather than of seasonal upturn in demand, according to the magazine Steel. A further decline, symptomatic of the present falling off in business, brought steelworks operations for the week ended Sept. 2 to 45 per cent, the lowest percentage since the last week of May, reports the magazine. A year ago, however, operations were running at less than 15 per cent.

"Schedule of prices, basing points, extras, differentials, switching charges and other data filed with the American Iron and Steel Institute in accordance with the industry's code have so deranged buying and selling relationships as to check almost completely market activity," says Steel.

Expect Two Weeks' Dullness.

"Fully two weeks will elapse before producers and consumers again talk the same language. In the meantime, whatever expansion occurs in the consumption of steel—and indications are that the trend will be up rather than down—will be largely satisfied by drafts upon inventories. Buying over the next fortnight will be limited to urgent requirements."

Once adjustments have been made to the new price structure, however, the market will recover some of its strength, the magazine says. An influence which may impel an improvement later in the month is the filing of prices for the fourth quarter. In general current prices are for the balance of this quarter only. Advances in some prices may spur specifications against current commitments.

"The industry believes that if general business does not expand spontaneously, it will be induced by an inflationary program at Washington," the magazine remarks.

Price Schedules.

Schedules filed but not yet officially promulgated include the following: Bars, plates and shapes stationary at 1.60 cents, Pittsburgh, but the Chicago base now 1.65 cents instead of 1.70 cents; cold rolled sheets of auto body and furniture quality up $3.00; prices of standard pipe, line pipe and oil country tubular goods reaffirmed, but adjustments made in boiler tubes.

The magazine reports that the net result of these and other changes, effective immediately and for this quarter only, is in general that the iron and steel composite has risen $1.13 to $31.23, and the finished steel composite, 80 cents to $48.30. Scrap, however, declined 58 cents to $11.00.

A Tradition in Financial service that has come to be counted on by many firms and families

IT IS a policy of The Northern Trust Company to keep its service simple and direct. For its customers it tries to do all that a conservative financial institution can do—all that is consistent with sound banking.

Many firms and families have come to count upon this established concept of service.

Some of these customers use many of the departments of The Northern Trust Company. They include conservative business heads who find this bank co-operates closely and directly in matters of commercial banking. They include men and women who carry here their personal checking accounts, as well as heads of families who look to this company to carry their plans for their estates down through the years.

And there are many families who have entrusted their savings to the bank.

The Northern Trust Company feels that all of these customers desire to find here the same character. A conservatism, an unchanging idea of banking and trust relationships, an earnest effort to serve are common to all departments.

Those to whom such ideas seem practical are invited to use the facilities of the institution. There are five departments: Banking for commercial and personal checking accounts, Trust, Savings, Bond and Safe Deposit.

THE DIRECTORS OF THE NORTHERN TRUST COMPANY ARE:

A. WATSON ARMOUR, Director, Armour & Company
SEWELL L. AVERY, President, U. S. Gypsum Company
ALBERT B. DICK, JR., Vice-President, A. B. Dick Company
JOHN T. PIRIE, Carson Pirie Scott & Company
EDWARD L. RYERSON, JR., President, Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc.
HAROLD C. SMITH, President, Illinois Tool Works
WALTER BYRON SMITH
JOHN STUART, President, The Quaker Oats Company
SOLOMON A. SMITH, President, The Northern Trust Company

The Northern Trust Company's entire building, in the heart of Chicago's financial district, is devoted exclusively to serving the financial and property needs of its customers

RETAIL BUSINESS GAINS DESPITE SOME SETBACKS

Basic Industries Ease a Bit During Week.

New York, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Although the wings of the blue eagle drooped slightly during the last week, the route it has outlined for business showed steady progress.

Production in some of the basic industries continue to taper off, but retail distribution has shown further improvement. In fact, early estimates of the August sales volume indicate that gains over last year ranged from 5 per cent as high as 35 per cent.

However, reports from some of the small centers, as tabulated by trade reviews, show that the higher wages and wider employment—under the stimulus of the national recovery campaign—have in some cases tripled the sales totals of August, 1932.

Retail Sales Gain.

Retail sales, it is shown in reports, are increasing at a more rapid rate than industrial activity is declining. While output in many divisions has leveled off from the peak positions reached a few weeks ago, current operations are generally far ahead of last year.

"The general public," finds Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., "appears to have become reconciled to the inescapability of increasing prices and apparently is prepared to withstand the shock of the abrupt advances which will become general on the first of this month."

Electric power output for the week ended Aug. 26—latest reportable period—was 13.5 per cent over last year, as compared with an increase of 15.2 per cent registered in the preceding week. Improvement was shown in 11 geographica divisions throughout the country.

Rail Loadings Steady.

Railroad loadings of revenue freight as reported for the latest week totaled 631,998 cars, four-tenths of 1 per cent under the preceding week but 17.5 per cent ahead of the corresponding week of 1932. All classes of freight showed sizable gains over last year except the movement of live stock. Grain and less than carload freight.

Automobile production last week showed a marked decline from the preceding week. As analyzed by Cram, this was the logical result of the fact that manufacturers had accomplished the bulk of their projected August output by the end of the previous week. Production was estimated at 93,843 units, a decline of 6,204 units but still far above the production of 79,600 units shown in the like 1932 period.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

United Corporation.

Investors' Guide: Will you please let me have the benefit of any information you may have concerning United corporation?—C. O. M.

Answer: United corporation is primarily a public utility investment company. It has followed the policy of investing for long term holdings.

At the close of 1932 it held a 26 per cent interest in United Gas Improvement common; 22 per cent in Niagara Hudson Power; 21 per cent in Columbia Gas and Electric, and 18 per cent in Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, besides other small holdings.

In the first quarter of 1933 Niagara Hudson Power reduced its dividend. In 1932 Public Service of New Jersey reduced its dividend, while Commonwealth and Southern and Columbia Gas and Electric omitted them.

Total income for the first half of 1933 on a nonconsolidated basis was $3,439,000, and net income was $5,934,000, or 15 cents per common share. For the corresponding 1932 period gross was $7,553,000 and net was $2,054,000, or 23 cents per common share.

Net income for 1932 was $13,824,000, or 44 cents per common share, against net of $18,445,000 for 1931 and $16,830,000 for 1930.

Liquidating value of the common stock at the close of 1932 was $9.41 per share, against $9.18 the year before.

Securities with a cost of $592,822,000 had a market value of $272,256,000, and cash was $725,000. There were no other assets. Liabilities consisted only of a demand loan of $11,672,000. There was no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 2,489,064 shares of $3 dividend no par preferred and 14,529,465 shares of no par common.

Dividends are being paid on the preferred, but directors voted to omit the Oct. 1, 1933, common dividend.

Except for the investment in Columbia Gas and Electric, holdings are primarily in distributors of electricity operating east of the Mississippi. Generally speaking, the companies in which United corporation are interested enjoy strong current positions and have given evidence of stable earnings.

The corporation occupies a central position among a group of interrelated organizations, and, it is believed, will probably be a strong factor in inducing interconnections and development of superpower systems among the companies in which it is interested.

Street Certificate.

Investors' Guide: You explained for me the meaning of "street certificate." May a person place an order to sell 50 shares of a certain stock with instructions to buy 100 shares of lower priced stock, this to be sold at a point profit, without waiting for certificate to be issued?—H. C.

Answer: Yes.

NATIONAL TEA CO. DIVIDEND RAISE SEEN AS LIKELY

Possibility of the National Tea company increasing the dividend on its common stock was indicated yesterday with a statement by W. E. Russell, controller, that the board of directors, although desirous of increasing the rate at the last meeting, decided to defer action until the next quarterly session. At the meeting on Saturday the board declared the regular 15 cent dividend on the common stock, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 14. It was stated that the board deemed it advisable to defer action on an increase until the next meeting because the dividend just declared was the last of the current year.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST

DeLEE

University of Beauty Culture

Train You in the Easy, Modern Way.

The Fall classes are now forming at DeLEE. Enroll now and you will have completed your training just at the season when the demand for good beauty operators is at its height. You, too, can have a pleasant, good paying position.

Why worry about getting work? Learn beauty culture by the DeLEE individual, personalized method and you are sure to qualify for one of the best paying positions. DeLEE prepares you for the best positions in the most modern, smart, beauty shops and actually helps you to obtain such positions.

DeLEE Makes Learning and Earning EASY.

At DeLEE you will receive instruction in the use of only the most modern, up to date equipment. There is not one piece of old fashioned equipment in the DeLEE school. You will also find tuition fees reasonable at DeLEE. Payments and hours can be arranged to suit your convenience. DeLEE maintains both day and evening classes.

There are no "extra charges" for uniforms, instruments, textbooks, etc. You can "earn while you learn." DeLEE provides free employment service to help you earn money while you learn and to help you obtain a good paying job when you are graduated. You need not have had previous experience or a high school education to enroll at DeLEE.

Post-Graduate Courses Now Available.

DeLEE offers an unusually attractive plan to licensed beauty operators who wish to take post-graduate work. Call in person and investigate this plan.

VISIT DeLEE FIRST.

Enroll in no beauty school until you visit DeLEE. Call in person and let Miss Rube Lorrain Stevens, the DeLEE Dean, show you through our light, airy, colorful classrooms. Talk with her and learn for yourself why DeLEE training prepares you for a BETTER JOB.

Crowd of More Than 360,000 Breaks Record at World's Fair—Chicago Is Host to Half Million Visitors

CROWD OF MORE THAN 360,000 BREAKS ALL RECORDS AT FAIR AS CITY IS HOST TO HALF MILLION HOLIDAY VISITORS. A view on the Midway of A Century of Progress yesterday showing a portion of the dense crowd which flocked to the grounds. This picture is taken looking south from the Midget Village. The attendance at the Fair yesterday exceeded the previous high mark of 272,936. A still larger turnout is expected today. Hundreds of thousands of visitors poured into the city yesterday by rail, air and automobile. (Story on page 1.)
